ROME, Nov. 8.—Even those citizens who don't ordinarily take much interest in politics are awaiting the election of Nov. 16 with the greatest interest, tinged with a certain amount of anxiety. It is likely to be a red-letter day in the parliamentary annals of Italy. The war and the new method of voting have brought about a great change in the class of candidates who aspire to represent the country in the Chamber of Deputies.

The electoral reform consists in voting not merely for a candidate representing one constituency, as was the case formerly, but for a list comprising from ten to twenty candidates who have the same aims and political program. The Kingdom is divided into fifty-four regions. Each party has compiled a list which pits itself against the lists of other parties.

The reform has the object of preventing corruption, which was much easier when only one candidate had to be elected by a relatively limited number of electors. On the other hand, it has had the effect of eliminating from the lists almost all the best known and most responsible of the Deputies whose terms expire, such as Barzilai, ex-Minister and a delegate to the Peace Conference under Orlando; Sonnino, ex-Premier and several times Minister of Foreign Affairs, &c.—men who have dedicated their whole lives to Government service. The reason for their refusal to present themselves again as candidates is their reluctance to have their names figure in lists of candidates with whom they cannot fully co-operate, owing to differences of opinion.

The result has been that the candidates who have presented themselves are, many of them, unknown, and are mostly recruited from the ranks of printers, carpenters, butchers, peasants, &c., interspersed with a few doctors and lawyers. Many voters are asking themselves whether these men are sufficiently educated to be capable of governing the country. The two parties which it is predicted will make proportionately the largest gains are the Socialists and the Popular Party, or Catholics. These are the only two parties which have all along had a definite political program well organized and much diffused. The former has its greatest number of followers in the cities, especially in the great industrial centres; the latter in the country among the peasants.

The other parties can hardly be called parties. They are mere followers of a leader and are called after him, as, for example, Giolittiani, (followers of Giolitti,) followers of Orlando, Salandra, &c.

Fear is expressed that the Socialists will succeed in acquiring a dangerous preponderance in the Chamber. Therefore many of the well-to-do and upper classes will vote for the Popular Party candidates. The Popular Party has a vast program of reforms, among them wider popular education, energetic measures for the development of agriculture in order that Italy may produce what is necessary for her own consumption, and the entire reorganization of Italian industries to enable the nation to be less dependent upon imports. Besides this, the Popular Party requests that the Government guarantee respect for the Catholic religion.

Chivalric Foes in the Campaign.

UDINE, Italy, Nov. 7.—One effect of the war is the substitution of chivalry for recrimination in politics, to judge by the campaign for the general election in this province.

At a meeting in the City of Casarsa, where the Socialists and the Catholics are arch-enemies, Dr. Donati, a former soldier representing the Catholics, gave a most commendatory description of his adversary, Major Zaniboni, who, although opposing the war on Socialistic principles, nevertheless fought heroically.

Dr. Donati said that when he was wounded and taken to the hospital at Cormons a delirious soldier in the bed next to his repeated unceasingly, "Zaniboni! Always first, always leading! Brave Zaniboni!"

ROME, Nov. 9.—Gino Bandini, candidate for the Chamber of Deputies for Rome, in a speech delivered today, [illegible] the prosperous development by Italians of colonies in South America, from which he had recently returned.

Signor Bandini promised that if elected he would dedicate himself to the Italian colonies in Latin America and to commercial expansion there. He complained of the Italian Government's neglect of the admirable forces there and urged the necessity of "inaugurating a wise and vigorous emigration policy for augmenting the Italian representatives in South America, this being not only a duty toward our brothers there, but a protection for the great Italian interests."

"I firmly believe that the Italianity of Fiume, which nobody reasonably can deny, will finally be solemnly consecrated in the Peace Treaty," says Signor de Nava, Minister of Liberated Provinces, in a letter addressed to his constituents at Milan.

"To this end," the Minister adds, "the Government will dedicate all its energies. The rights of people and the rights of nations never die. Time cannot annul them, nor can violence or brute force smother them."

Republican Won by 1,300 in Oklahoma; Favored Reservations in League Fight

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 9.—Returns from fifteen scattered precincts reporting today increased to 1,300 the lead by which J. W. Harreld, Republican, was elected to Congress in the Fifth District yesterday over Claude Weaver, Democrat. Out of the 265 precincts in the district 261 have been heard from. The missing precincts are small country boxes which cannot materially affect the result.

The League of Nations and support of the Administration were the only issues of the campaign. Both candidates made their appeals from this standpoint only, declaring that personality would not enter into the campaign. While Weaver supported the President and the League Covenant, Harreld took the position of the "mild reservationists" in the Senate.

Benjamin F. Lafayette, Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, has issued an explanation saying that the defeat was due to overconfidence on the part of the Democrats. He says that the voters of the district were not awakened to the fact that the result would be construed nationally as the stand of the people of the district on the League of Nations.

Many women of the district voted for the Democratic candidate, together with the farmers, but Oklahoma City and County, with Guthrie and vicinity gave Harreld majorities too great for the outlying precincts to overcome.

ASTOR CAMPAIGN ENTERING LAST LAP

Close of the First Week Sees All Three Candidates Claiming Victory.

LADY ASTOR CITES BIBLE

Tells Hearers That the 'One Genuine Socialist in History' Taught the Golden Rule.

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 9, (Associated Press.)—Andrew Bonar Law, Government leader in the House of Commons, sent the following message to Lady Astor today:

"I hope and believe that you will secure a triumphant victory in the contest you are conducting with so much energy and ability."

Plymouth today is taking a breathing spell in the most hotly contested Parliamentary bye-election campaign in its history. As the first half of the campaign, which has assumed a whirlwind character, ends it finds all three contenders for the seat vacated by Lord Astor expressing unflagging confidence in the result—each asserting that he—or she—will be returned the victor at the polls. It has been said that the campaign is dominated, not by politics, but by personality. In this respect, Lady Astor easily maintains precedence in public interest.

This Devonshire seaport, which a few months ago discussed little except the "Nancy IV" (the American seaplane NC-4, which first negotiated the transatlantic flight,) last week had "Nancy" Astor as its principal conversational theme. This was due not alone to her unconventional speechmaking, but by reason of the fact that she was the best known person in the city because of her varied philanthropic efforts in the last ten years of the Astors' residence here.

While supporters of the two male candidates for the seat concede the merits of Lady Astor's arguments, they insist that a victory by her, should that be the outcome of the campaign, will not be a "walkover." It is pointed out that labor in recent years has been making rapid strides in this normally Unionist stronghold and threatens to overcome the majority the Liberals thus far have held over the labor poll. The uncertainty of the woman vote and the fact that the prohibition issue has been injected into the fight lend additional complications to the situation, which these observers contend will result favorably to labor and the Asquithian Liberal candidate.

But against this may be set the claims of Lady Astor, who characterizes herself as not a "sex" candidate and addresses her appeals to women because the "moral influence of women is needed in England today in adjusting the nation's pressing economic and social problems."

"Women are essential," Lady Astor contends, "to the introduction of a policy of thrifty, national housekeeping, which is imperative to establishing the empire on a sound post-war foundation." Aside from the introduction of many American slang phrases in her speeches, Lady Astor's faculty for coining cleverly-turned "comebacks" has sounded a novel electioneering note, as likewise have her generous sprinklings of Scriptural quotations when diagnosing local, national and world-wide ills and prescribing remedies. What is considered her most effective reply to rabid Socialist challenges has been: "There is but one genuine Socialist in history. He said, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself.'"

This week the three candidates and their supporters will enter the last half of the campaign, intending to continue the strenuous pace they have been going until next Saturday, which is polling day.

TWO FAMILIES CLAIM RETURNED SOLDIER

DANBURY, Conn., Nov. 9.—A remarkable case of dual identity was revealed today when a man arrested last night in Norwalk was brought here by O. J. Waite, an investigator of the War Risk Insurance Bureau. Waite arrested the man as Private Henry Bromley, Jr., of Bethel, but today decided to report to Washington that he was Samuel Reddy of New Canaan, and that Bromley was dead.

The case goes back to Nov. 20, 1918, when Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bromley of Bethel, received word that their son had been killed in action in France. Mrs. Bromley committed suicide a few hours later. Last May a soldier arrived in Bethel and was greeted as young Bromley. He went to the Bromley home where the elder Bromley welcomed him as his son. After remaining in Bethel several days the youth disappeared, leaving word that he was not Private Bromley, but Samuel Reddy.

The War Risk Insurance Bureau representative appeared soon after to straighten out the tangle over the insurance money which had been paid to Bromley after his son's death was reported. It was not until a few days ago that Waite got trace of "Bromley," working in Norwalk under the name of Samuel Reddy. After taking him into custody, Waite examined him for scars which Bromley said his son had on his body. There were three, and the prisoner had them all.

"Reddy" told the investigator that he fought at the Argonne, changed identification tags with a dead soldier, suffered from shell shock, and deserted. He said a man he met on a train gave him a draft board identification card made out for Reddy. John Reddy of New Canaan says that his son was not in the army. Photographs of Reddy and Private Bromley show a remarkable resemblance.

Members of both families have identified the prisoner as their kin and said that there were family topics on both sides with which he was familiar.

Waite said he did not know how he could prove that the man is Reddy, but would report his belief to Washington.

CZERNIN'S BOOK PREDICTS MORE WAR

HAS A CHAPTER ON WILSON

Says That Austria's Suspicion of the Fourteen Points Was Justified at Versailles.

VIENNA, Nov. 9, (Associated Press.)—The book of revelations regarding the war, written by Count Czernin, former Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, is complete, and has come into the possession of a Vienna political personality, who briefly and pithily summarizes the Count's book. It presents in detail one section of the war, says this writer, and throws light on dark episodes by citing official documents, archives, and letters. Czernin publishes astonishing writings of the one-time German Chancellor, confidential messages from Ambassadors and Ministers, protocols about Government meetings—in short, facts and proofs.

The Count, however, says the writer, tries above all to prove that he never was blameworthy and that he was always right and saw what was coming. In two important points Czernin is able to prove that he was a good prophet, for in 1916 he was the only Austrian diplomat who predicted the Rumanian war, and, in 1917, the breakdown and the revolution. The writer continues:

"The submarine warfare and President Wilson form two separate chapters. The struggles of Czernin against the U-boat warfare are shown from the reports and protocols which are reproduced. Germany, however, would not take counsel, and insisted upon using this method. Czernin discusses the idea of separating Austria from Germany, but is convinced this would have brought no advantage.

"'Should America come into the war against Germany, Austria-Hungary would automatically be drawn in,' for Austro-Hungarian artillery was already at the west front, Czernin says.

"Full of gripping interest is the chapter about Wilson. Czernin considers Wilson unquestionably honorable, but he questioned from the first whether Wilson's theories would prevent the carrying out of London's ideas. Czernin says he made efforts to determine whether Wilson's program of the Italian conquests would be the deciding factor in the peace discussion, but right in the middle of his negotiations he was relieved from office. He says his suspicion of the Fourteen Points was justified. At Versailles, he declares, the terms of the London Conference triumphed, not the theories of Wilson.

"Count Czernin says of the future:

"'Versailles is not the end of the war; it is only a phase of it. The war will continue, even if in altered form. I believe that coming generations will not call the great drama that ruled the world for five years the world war, but the world revolution, and will know that the world revolution only began with the war.

"'Neither Versailles nor St. Germain will create any lasting work. In this peace there lie the germs of death. The cramps that twist Europe are not decreasing. Like the great earthquake, the underground rumble continues. But other generations will arise and will reconstruct what war and revolution have destroyed. Each Winter is followed by Spring, and the eternal law will prevail that resurrection follows death.'"

ALLIED MILITARY PLAN LACKS OUR SANCTION

American Delegates Fear That it May Call for an International General Staff.

PARIS, Nov. 9, (Associated Press.)—The American delegation to the Peace Conference has not yet approved the plan for a military commission to succeed the Supreme Council in carrying out the German Peace Treaty and executing its military provisions. Failure to approve the plan promptly has resulted in newspaper comment to the effect that the Americans are opposed to Marshal Foch as head of the commission.

This is said to be erroneous, the assertion being made that there is no disposition to oppose Marshal Foch, who is considered clearly the best fitted for the task. But the American delegation is undecided whether the United States can enter into the arrangement until it is clear that the commission will not partake of the character of an international General Staff, to which the United States is said to be opposed.

The American delegates, however, are of the opinion that this would not hinder the other powers from creating such a commission.

The commission was originally planned to be under the Ambassadorial Co-ordination Committee, which will continue in Paris after the Supreme Council's departure.

The deadlock in the settlement of the Belgian-Dutch treaty revision also is complicated by attempts to devise some sort of an international military arrangement guaranteeing Belgian security, to replace the neutrality treaty which Germany violated. There is apparently little hope of effecting such an arrangement with the United States participating in it, as Holland was not a belligerent, and when the United States initiated the movement to adjust the Belgian-Dutch differences it was not with the idea that Belgium would claim territory from Holland, and that the Allies would support her claim.

The commission which is attempting to adjust the controversy has not met for nearly a month, and it seems unlikely that a settlement will be reached before the Supreme Council breaks up, which probably will be before Dec. 1, as Frank L. Polk and the other American peace delegates are apparently confident that they will reach the United States by Christmas.

YUDENITCH'S ARMY STILL FALLING BACK

BALTIC STATES TO CONFER

Will Discuss the Possibility of Coming to an Agreement with the Moscow Soviet.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The Russian Bolshevist communication of Saturday, received here today, says that the Bolsheviki have occupied a series of villages thirty versts southwest of Krasnaia Gorka. They also have taken Kastovo and a number of villages thirty-three versts west of Gatchina.

"The pursuit of General Yudenitch's retreating forces continues along the whole of the front," the statement adds.

"Fighting is proceeding twenty-five versts southeast of Yamburg. After taking Gdov the Bolsheviki advanced twenty versts north of the town. They occupied Sovek, and the enemy is retiring in disorder in a northwesterly direction.

"The Bolsheviki also have occupied Malo Arkangelsk, (eighty miles southeast of Orel, on Denikin's front,) and a series of villages in the southeast."

A dispatch from Helsingfors says the forces of General Yudenitch have retreated to Weimarn Station, according to a communication issued Saturday morning by the Russian Northwest Army.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—After a short lull, the battle between the Ukrainian People's Army and the troops of General Denikin has been renewed with great vigor, said a cable dispatch from Ukrainian headquarters received, today by the Ukrainian mission.

General Denikin's troops were attacked on the line Warniark-Tulchin-Bratslav on Nov. 4, and were compelled to withdraw across the Bug River, leaving behind much booty, war material, and ammunition, which fell into the hands of the Ukrainians, the dispatch said.

Many prisoners were taken by the Ukrainians, who, according to the dispatch, now are marching toward Christianivka and Uman.

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 8, (Associated Press.)—Seven representatives of Esthonia, headed by Foreign Minister Pilp, left today for Dorpat to begin tomorrow the preliminary discussion of a league of border states and the possibility of reaching an agreement with the Bolsheviki.

The Lett and Lithuanian Governments also will be officially represented, and Poland, the Ukraine and Finland unofficially. The conference is expected to occupy two days.

The Associated Press is informed that if an agreement is reached between the conferees the Bolsheviki will be invited to send representatives to Dorpat.

"Your radio message is not exactly correct regarding the statement that we alone are ready to negotiate a peace with Soviet Russia. As a matter of fact representatives of the Baltic States will meet again at Dorpat tomorrow definitely to clear up questions of peace with Russia and together to arrange a day for preliminary peace pourparlers.

"For our part we wish to confer with your delegates on the question of the liberation of our hostages and will meet your delegation at Dorpat Nov. 7.

"Again we disavow any intention of aggressive action toward Soviet Russia, and explain that the recent military operations were only the direct and ordinary development of the offensive begun by Soviet Russia just as our peace delegation left Pskov without any results achieved. The attack having been commenced by Russia, our military operations continued, and meantime the initiative passed to us."

"For Esthonia it is not a question of peace with the Bolsheviki, but of a cessation of hostilities in order to save our existence," said M. Strandmann, the Esthonian Premier, to The Associated Press today.

"We cannot fight indefinitely," M. Strandmann continued. "Our financial and economic condition will not permit this. Our military supplies are exhausted, those from England having ceased, and Esthonia and the other border States have no reason to fight longer."

Asked under what conditions Esthonia would be willing to enter into an agreement with the Bolsheviki, M. Strandmann replied:

"It is too early to speak about terms. I think, however, it would be possible to bring about an armed truce, somewhat like the state of things existing between the Bolsheviki and Finland at the frontier, on which hostilities have ceased. A neutral zone might be established and controlled, perhaps by an allied commission, which would supervise any economic communication with the Bolsheviki."

Regarding the possibility of Esthonia acting independently if the preliminary discussion now in progress at Dorpat proves without result, M. Strandmann said:

"Until now the opinion of the Esthonian Government has been that it cannot make a separate peace with Soviet Russia, but if nothing comes of the present discussion with the other border States, I cannot forecast the developments."

The Premier added that the Baltic States still were in the dark as to the attitude of the Allies toward the Border States League and the suggested conditions of peace with the Bolsheviki. He said that thus far the Allies had not voiced any specific objection.

Reviewing the effects of the warfare, M. Strandmann said that when Russia mobilized, Esthonia was called upon to furnish large numbers of troops, among whom the losses had been severe.

"The occupation by the Germans stripped the country of foodstuffs, horses, machinery, and other necessaries," the Premier added. "In November, 1918, came the Bolshevist invasion, which we have documents to prove was instigated by the Germans. The Bolsheviki overran three-quarters of Esthonia, committing wholesale murders and atrocities. Last June the offensive by the German General von Der Goltz began. As a result of the wastage in the years of fighting, the country is worn out."

STAND BY GEN. ROZANOFF.

Siberian Cossacks Oppose His Recall to Omsk.

VLADIVOSTOK, Nov. 2, (Associated Press.)—General Romanovsky, recently leader of the Russian troops in the Udinsk region, announced in the newspapers last Friday that Admiral Kolchak had ordered General Rozanoff, commander of the Russian troops at Vladivostok, to come to Omsk and report on conditions in the Far East and that Romanovsky would temporarily fill the duties of Governor General.

The same day the newspapers announced that a Cossack conference at Omsk had recommended to Admiral Kolchak that General Rozanoff's presence in the Far East was [illegible].

It is believed here that pressure by the Cossack troops will result in Rozanoff's departure being delayed indefinitely.

A dispatch from Vladivostok Oct. 28 said General Rozanoff, whose activities had occasioned great friction with the interallied commanders and a demand for the withdrawal of his troops from Vladivostok, had been recalled to Omsk and that Romanovsky would act as Governor and commander of the Russian troops in the Far Eastern provinces.

Union Holds Italian Liners So Seamen Can Vote at Polls

ROME, Nov. 7.—Captain Giulietti, Secretary of the Seamen's Federation, who is a candidate for office in the general elections, has ordered steamers of several lines not to leave until after the elections in order to permit the crews to vote. The elections will be held Nov. 16.

The order has caused a partial paralysis of commerce, which is especially serious in view of the fact that Italy needs to continue all possible activities in order to solve the many difficult economic problems resulting from the war.

The steamers America and Pesaro are among those which have been held up, greatly to the inconvenience of several hundred passengers, among whom were several prominent Americans who were eager to return home for business reasons at the earliest possible moment.

CALLS KEMAL PASHA A PATRIOTIC TURK

APPLYING WILSON FORMULA

By EDWIN L. JAMES.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—The Matin publishes today a long interview with Narhoum Effendi, Grand Rabbi of Turkey, who, having just arrived from Constantinople, declares that the nationalist movement in Turkey is not directed against the Allies. While his statement does not coincide with other reports from Turkey, nevertheless, as the Matin remarks, his opinion should be received with respect. It pays tribute to the ability of the man who throughout the war kept going seventy-five schools of the Israelite Alliance in Turkey, with more than 30,000 students.

"The nationalist movement of Mustapha Kemal is a reality," said the Grand Rabbi. "All the Turkish population of Anatolia is with him. He has an army—not so strong as supposed—composed of the débris of the old regular army and of volunteers. He has few munitions and no means of getting more.

"You ask me if this movement is dangerous for the Allies, and in particular for France, which has a mandate over a great part of Syria, Cilicia and several Turkish provinces. Frankly I believe not. Here are my reasons:

"The movement of the Nationalists has succeeded in becoming semi-official. Under the Cabinet of Damad Firid Mustapha Kemal was a rebel. He is today a collaborator of the Government over which Marshal Riza Pacha presides. Mustapha is neither an adventurer nor a fanatic. Knowing how precarious is the international situation of Turkey, he would do nothing to make it worse. He is faithful to his sovereign and does not disobey his orders. His program is an application of the Wilson formula, that is to say, that the Ottoman regions should remain Ottoman—nothing more.

"If certain Arab Malcontents say that they have found help in Mustrapha Kemal for a campaign against France and England, do not believe them. Either they seek to lure you or they seek to mislead you. There is no danger from Turkish Nationalists if there can be found a modus vivendi for the regions that are purely Turkish. And I believe without wishing to anticipate the work of the diplomats, that satisfactory arrangements are possible in the interest of all concerned; for where is the country today which wishes to put into Turkey large and costly armies of occupation?

"Most of Turkey's troubles today come from uncertainty. Arrange quickly and well the fate of Turkey; she will submit to your conditions, and calm will be restored. Food conditions in Constantinople are improving. One can buy white bread at 18 piastres per loaf, which is a little less than 2 francs. Vegetables abound, and Turkey doesn't suffer greatly for food. The worst crisis is that of housing. As the result of many fires in Stamboul 40,000 people are without shelter. The State has to support an army of functionaires, whose appointments are often triplicated. The national budget has increased 30,000,000 to 70,000,000 pounds (Turkish), and revenues have greatly decreased.

"But there is in this situation nothing desperate, and with the coming of peace and the aid of the Allies Turkey can become again prosperous, execute her obligations, and be a factor of order in the Orient under a Sultan of high intelligence."

TIRPITZ INTERVIEW ESCAPED THE CENSOR

Passed Through Berlin Foreign Office Without Highest Officials Seeing It.

BERLIN, Nov. 9, (Associated Press.)—Since Admiral von Koch testified last week before the National Assembly committee inquiring into the war, regarding an interview had by an American newspaper correspondent in December, 1914, with Admiral von Tirpitz, Minister of Marine, there has been considerable dispute in the German newspapers concerning who authorised the interview. In this interview Germany's submarine war was predicted.

The Vorwärts yesterday said the interview had slipped out without the knowledge of the Imperial Chancellor or the Admiralty Chief. Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, the Chancellor, was derelict in his duty, according to the Vorwärts, in not going to the Emperor and demanding the resignation of von Tirpitz or the acceptance of his own withdrawal from office.

The Vossische Zeitung says that it established today that von Tirpitz properly submitted the interview to the Foreign Office, but that by some chance neither Gottlieb von Jagow, the Foreign Minister, nor the Imperial Chancellor saw it. The responsibility for the interview, it declares, therefore, is unknown.

The Vossische Zeitung compares the affair to the famous letter of Emperor William printed in The London Daily Telegraph in 1908, which passed the Foreign Office and the Chancellor's office unchallenged.

The letter of Emperor William referred to in the above dispatch, probably is the one written in 1908 to Lord Tweedmouth then First Lord of the British Admiralty. In the letter it was asserted at the time that Emperor William had attempted to influence the naval policy of Great Britain. Lord Tweedmouth contended that the letter was purely a personal communication, and notwithstanding demands by the English newspapers the letter was withheld from publication.

GRAND JURY ACTION ANGERS THE MAYOR

SEES AIM TO DISCREDIT HIM

NOT AVERSE TO PUBLICITY

Willing That All His Letters Be Published if Jury Will Certify to the Need.

Mayor John F. Hylan issued a personal criticism yesterday concerning the action of the Extraordinary Grand Jury in taking possession of a cabinet of papers and letters from his office at the City Hall, which were delivered to the jury after the District Attorney had issued a subpoena for the removal of the cabinet to the Criminal Courts Building.

The Mayor asserts that this correspondence was "seized by a shameful prostitution of the great power of the Grand Jury," and that "some mysterious agency seems to foster the impression that something semi-criminal was disclosed by the inspection of my personal correspondence in the Grand Jury room." He is willing to have all correspondence advertised if members of the Grand Jury will certify it to be a public necessity. The Mayor's statement reads:

Some mysterious agency that seems to be a sort of underground wire between the Grand Jury room and the newspaper offices is working overtime to foster the impression that something semi-criminal was disclosed by the inspection of my personal correspondence in the Grand Jury room. As Mayor and as a citizen I object to the Grand Jury room being turned into an anonymous rumor factory at the expense of my good name and the public funds. It is grossly unfair to me, but I am used to that sort of thing.

The wrong done to New York is in the attempt to befoul the Mayor's office before all the world without candor, without justice, and without civic pride. "It is a dirty bird that fouls its own nest."

Alleges Personal Prejudice.

There is also another and a more serious side to this miserable affair, and some time in the future when my own humble personality may be regarded as quite immaterial, I hope for an awakening of the dormant public spirit of those who now see no wrong possible in any effort to maliciously discredit John F. Hylan. The spectacle of certain grand jurymen of undenied personal prejudices and animosities pawing over the private papers of the Mayor of New York seeking eagerly to unearth some grisly morsel of public or private scandal out of the correspondence seized by a shameful prostitution of the great power of the Grand Jury, suggests to my mind a greater contempt for the rights of the community and a greater menace to society than any crime of any individual could possibly contain. The thing was unmanly, un-American, and unlawful.

Even in the face of the invasion of my private rights I do not wish to be understood as claiming protection for them. Having called public attention to this dangerous assault on one of the most sacred rights of citizenship, I declare that I am quite willing that any correspondence of mine, public or private, may be advertised to the whole world, provided only, that those members of the Grand Jury who advocate it shall personally and with equal publicity certify it to be a public necessity. Then the public can judge of their good faith.

No reply to the Mayor's criticism of the Grand Jury could be obtained from the foreman, Raymond F. Almirall. At his city home it was said he had not been in during the evening. A telephone inquiry to his country home at Hempstead brought the reply that he had not been there during the day. Attempts to reach several other members of the jury were unsuccessful.

The Mayor's cabinet of papers was taken from his office on Nov. 3, and on the same day the Mayor's executive secretary, Augustine Kelly, and the assistant secretary, Miss Frances W. Rokus, and three clerks from the City Hall went to the Grand Jury room. On Nov. 5 five more clerks, two stenographers, and an accountant in the Mayor's office were in the Grand Jury room.

What the jury sought for among the papers in the Mayor's cabinet has not been hinted, nor has the jury given any intimation of the contents of the cabinet. From another source it was learned that the cabinet held some of the Mayor's private correspondence, including letters to and from members of his family. It was said that the Mayor did not remove anything from the cabinet when demand was made for it, but allowed it and its entire contents to go without protest.

District Attorney Swann was asked who was responsible for the safety of the contents of the Mayor's letter file when it was not in actual custody of the Grand Jury. He said the cabinet was kept under lock in a room in his office and the contents sealed. When the jury wants any particular paper or document it is taken to its room, and when finished with is returned to the cabinet, so that no one outside of the Grand Jury members can have access to anything in the file.

The Grand Jury of which the Mayor complains was convened to inquire into radical propaganda and criminal anarchy. At the request of District Attorney Swann Justice Weeks permitted the jury to include in its work investigations of the high cost of milk and the question of alleged collusion between employes and officials of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company in connection with the subway strike. This was based on statements in a letter sent by Mayor Hylan to the Prosecutor, asserting that information he had received tended to show that the strike was brought about to get favorable action on increased transit fares.

Mayor Hylan, Public Service Commissioner Nixon, and the city editor of The New York American were among the first witnesses before the jury. Then came a controversy between the jury and Mr. Swann, and the latter withdrew his initiative in the inquiry, because the jury sought first of the court and then of the Governor to have Mr. Swann replaced by special counsel, declaring that "a crime overshadowing the charge made by the Mayor may escape detection."

Although the request of the jury for special counsel was refused, and Mr. Swann contended that the jury had no legal power to widen the scope of the transit inquiry, the jury has proceeded without Mr. Swann, but has had one of his assistants as legal adviser. A few days ago Mr. Swann was called before the jury and asked if he would be willing to appear as a witness and waive immunity. Outside the jury room later he said he had not refused to appear, but so far as known he has not yet testified. Recently the jury has been investigating some feature of police matters, it has been said.

THE SCREEN

D. W. Griffith, even when he is dealing with the California of 1849 under the descriptive title of "Scarlet Days," would have his work accepted as a slice of real life, and takes pains to refer to the authorities on whose word it bases his claim that the story his pictures tell is truth stranger than fiction. But when a scarlet melodrama of another day, such as that presented at the Rivoli this week, comes along, spectators will hardly care whether it originates in life or in someone's imagination. They will enjoy it—at least as many as like scarlet melodrama—and accept its picturesque characters as real for the time being, and that is all that any moving picture story of such a time and place should ask or desire.

In "Scarlet Days" Mr. Griffith shows the Forty-niners and their life as many have been led to believe by the authors to imagine them. The characters come to life from stories once read and dimly remembered. They ride and shoot, laugh and fight, as they must do to preserve the glow of the year 1849 in American history. Sometimes they come rather harshly to life in Mr. Griffith's work and are not pretty and pleasant—as though they felt it a duty to remind the people of 1919 that they were not Sunday school children on a picnic. But for the most part the bold lines and strong colors with which they are stamped bring out the elemental virtues and vices popularly attributed to primitive people. The hand of Mr. Griffith is clearly seen throughout their adventurous lives. They seem to live largely by his animation and the scenes and surroundings in which they fit so naturally are of his building. There are many eloquent moving pictures in "Scarlet Days," and several novel "out-of-focus" effects. But why does Mr. Griffith, who can make moving pictures so lucid, label them with words that are needless, and to some at least, irritating?

Clearest and most compelling among the characters is Alvarez a Spanish bandit and adventurer, impersonated by Richard Barthelmess. Mr. Barthelmess is rising rapidly. As the Chinese hero of "Broken Blossoms" he set a new standard for himself, and in "Scarlet Days" he shows that he did not just once go beyond his reach. He makes Alvarez the bright centre of the story. At all times he is the romantic Spaniard, and never more exactly and completely than when, defending himself against attack, he dodges and darts about, shoots this way and that, in an evident ecstacy of joy a throbbing delight that comes from pure love of excitement. It is not climatic when he recovers from his wound and goes away with the girl who loves him. Alvarez could never settle down as a married man, even in the wild west. He ought to have died dramatically with his ornate boots on.

All of this about Barthelmess is not to detract from the others in the cast. Eugenie Besserer, last seen in the thin rôle of the hero's mother in "Turning the Tables," does forceful work as a dance hall woman glorified by love of her daughter; Carol Dempster as the daughter is appealing, and Clarine Seymour, the transformed Cutie Beautiful of "The Girl Who Stayed at Home" is diverting as a mining camp oddity who lovers indifferent Alvarez. Walter Long, the Musketeer of the Slums in "The Mother and the Law," is a musketeer of the same sort in "Scarlet Days"; George Fawcett is a delightful sheriff, and Ralph Graves is properly heroic as a sturdy miner. Adolph Lestina, Kate Bruce, Rhea Haines, Herbert Sutch and J. Wesley Warner are also in the cast, and by their playing complete it.

"The Girl From Outside" is at the Capitol this week. It is a Rex Beach melodrama. That describes it. Mr. Beach's pictured stories by now are of a distinct type—full of action that is interesting, if not probable, and of characters varied and vivid, if not humanly convincing. Like other stories by Mr. Beach, "The Girl From Outside" has its setting in Alaska, and the girl is a lone tenderfoot among a company of crooks in Nome who take a fancy to her, protect her, adore her and, in the end, are reformed by her. Cullen Landis, who had a minor part as Jerry Wilson in "Almost a Husband," has made himself the star of the picture. He is the Curly Kid, one of the crooks, who loves the girl the most and finally dies for her. His performance puts more vitality into the melodrama than does that of anyone else. Sydney Ainsworth, as the head of the band, and Wilton Taylor, as the real villain of the story, help him materially. The others in the cast do not fail. Chief among them are Clara Horton as the girl, and Hallam Cooley as the nominal hero.

Pictorially "The Girl from Outside" is well made. In particular there is an incident in which a Chinese cook kills Jim Denton because Denton has killed his friend, the Curly Kid. Denton is alone in a room, the Chinese enters, hi deliberate and deadly purpose unmasked by the fixed expression of his face and the relentless calm of his manner. Denton backs to the wall, terrified. The Chinese, advancing slowly, draws a long knife from his sleeve—and is next seen outside the house, leaving it, as unreadable as the sphinx. A moment later the Curly Kid's alarmed pals, with weapons ready, rush up to the house to avenge their friend. They open the door—and recoil, shocked. No gruesome picture is shown: the murder itself is entirely off screen, but it could not have been more effectively staged.

"The Thunderbolt," with Katherine MacDonald, is at the Strand this week, and "It Pays to Advertise," with Bryant Washburn, is at the Rialto. "Regular Girl," with Elsie Janis, will come to B. S. Moss's Broadway this evening.

WOMEN AID ACTORS' FUND.

Mrs. Harriman and Mrs. Harkness Give in Advance of Drive.

The Actors' Fund reported yesterday contributions of $1,000 each from Mrs. J. H. Harriman and Mrs. Edward S. Harkness, in addition to what the two had already collected as members of the Women's Committee, and will collect during their committee's special week, beginning Nov. 13. Chairman and patronesses of the Women's Committee will meet next Friday at 4 P. M. at the Twelfth Night Club to make reports and announcements.

The plans of the fund managers to make an unprecedented success of Dec. 5 as the Actors' National Memorial Day are nearly completed, it is said. On that day practically every theatre and motion picture house throughout the country will give a special matinée, the gross proceeds going to the fund. In New York city alone there will be matinées in fifty-three theatres, including the Metropolitan Opera House.

Why you should care for your Throat daily

YOU can now give the same daily attention to your throat as to your teeth; and throat care is even more important than tooth care. The throat is the great breeding place for infectious germs, which lodge there when inhaled from the dusty air, and often invade the body to cause influenza or other infectious fevers. Sometimes they attack their breeding ground itself and give rise to sore throat or tonsillitis. Throat specialists, physicians and dentists recommend on account of its simplicity and efficiency.

WRITE TODAY FOR FREE SAMPLE
It will prove to you that Formamint is wonderfully effective as well as pleasant in mouth and throat troubles. Send a 2-cent stamp to pay postage and we will gladly send you this free trial tube.

Formamint is a delicately flavored tablet, which is sucked like candy, setting free a powerful, yet harmless, germicide, turning the saliva into an antiseptic liquid which bathes the entire living membrane of mouth and throat.

To overcome sore throat, and so forestall worse evils—or to prevent it altogether—you should use Formamint regularly. Its use is a pleasure, and the cleanliness produced is a safeguard and a source of personal satisfaction.

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Tightened Credit an Offset in Speculative Plans to Better Industrial Outlook.

The last week brought a number of events and developments of a constructive character for the country's business. In the foreground stood the evidence supplied by the Massachusetts election that the sentiment of an important body of voters was emphatically opposed to radical movements in the labor field. Years ago the selection of a Republican Governor in that State would have been looked upon as the conventional decision of New England citizens. This year it was something quite different. The population of Massachusetts contains many more foreign-born voters than a decade ago, and thousands of voters who have flowed in from other States to work in mills and factories. As every one knew beforehand, the labor issue was pronounced in the election, and the people rose to the support of a candidate who had thrust aside labor measures flavored of qualities quite different from American methods. Whether, or not the decision in Massachusetts proves later to have been the turning point of untoward occurrences in the labor field, the fact was evident after Election Day that business men and bankers, and conservative wage earners as well, had taken heart from the vote. Sentiment was more cheerful in business circles than for many months. Locally, the fading away of the longshoremen's strike, after a demonstration which brought no profit to anybody and a deal of loss, helped the impression along of better times ahead. And then the steps aimed at a settlement of the soft-coal strike, emphasized particularly in conferences between Attorney General Palmer and Samuel Gompers, came at the end of the week as a fuller forecast than others of a clearing of the labor outlook. There were signs during the week that labor leaders, as well as employers, were growing tired of the many complications which have arisen since midsummer. Quite possibly the significance of a suggestion by a clear-thinking railroad brotherhood for a Government organization to deal with employer-employe problems generally was minimized amid the many events of the week. The responsible heads of labor unions are showing concern over the drift of workers' demands, which is not surprising in view of the Government's effort in the coal strike to differentiate between reasonable and unreasonable processes toward higher wages and shorter working hours, between legitimate demands and others which strike heavily at the nation's well-being. Altogether the last few days have brought a favorable change of sentiment, which is likely to be expressed shortly in more confident plans of manufacturers. Indications of this have already been recorded in mercantile surveys, which speak of a lessening of pessimism in lines where labor uncertainties had been holding production in check.

The security market had slight opportunity for discounting the better prospect of industry because of the counter-influence or credit restrictions. Having risen with considerable force during the weeks when strikes and more strikes were handicapping output, a sharp rise might have been looked for after Election Day. The Federal Reserve Bank's action in increasing discount rates aided in checkmating such a movement, however, and what the admonitory procedure by the Reserve Bank failed to do, unusually high call money rates did in slowing down speculation. Call money may fluctuate between 5 and 15 or 20 per cent., but as long as it is possible for brokers to get a fair average in the cost of their borrowings, traders in stocks are not usually greatly disturbed. When loans are renewed day after day at 10 and 12 per cent., however, speculators on margin find that the funds supplied by their brokers entail a really substantial levy upon profits. That is particularly the case when stocks appraised at high prices in the market are being carried, for margins may be heavy, yet the balance above the margin level runs into such large totals that the interest charge soon mounts into real money. The Reserve Bank's advance of one-quarter to three-quarters per cent. in rates of discount was by no means drastic; other things being equal, with the stock market rising, member banks would doubtless offer paper for rediscount at the higher figures as liberally as before to fill an active demand for credit from brokers. Accompanying the rise of rates, it happens, is the impression that the Reserve Bank, and perhaps the Federal Reserve Board, too, has additional measures in mind for carrying out a campaign against the undue use of credit for speculation. That possibility lies back of the trading mind. A moral force as well as the actual high credit charges apparently united in throwing stocks into a great deal of irregularity near the end of the week, with the trend toward lower levels.

In some speculative quarters the argument is frequently heard that inasmuch as a function of the Federal Reserve Banks is to make credit adequate in quantity and low in cost there is no reason why the normal law of supply and demand should not be allowed to work in the credit market. Support for this plea is found, presumably, in the theory that on the basis of current surplus gold holdings in excess of $456,000,000 the Reserve Banks could expand their credit to borrowing banks much further than the present total. There are material offsets to this idea, however. In considering one of them—the matter of continued credit diversion to speculation which the local Reserve Bank recently referred to—it might be well to refer to the coincidence last week of an increase of the Bank of England's discount rate from 5 to 6 per cent. immediately after the Reserve Bank's rates were advanced. It might be called a coincidence, but more than likely the two institutions acted jointly. The Reserve Bank might be described as young in years and in the experience of its management, but the Bank of England is old and experienced and wise in ways of the credit market and uses of credit. Dispatches from London since the rate was raised have stated that the direct purpose was to curb speculation. Both here and in Great Britain the financial leaders are searching for ways to deflate the war-brought credit structure and to conserve resources for the weighty labors of financing reconstruction undertakings. The community of interest in post-war operations has been emphasized by the alteration of discount rates at the same time.

The Interstate Commerce Committee of the House would have the Government guarantee continue in behalf of the railroads for six months after the stockholders get their properties back. The purpose is twofold—to allow time for the completion of permanent legislation and to insure the roads a chance to turn around in a new environment, to take steps for increased freight rates, and to renew the relations with one another which existed before the Government took over the management. The point of chief interest in the situation at the moment is that Congress believes the carriers will be returned to the owners on Jan. 1 and that the time before that date is too short to permit of more than temporary legislation.

NATIONAL BANKS SET RECORD FOR ASSETS

Exceed Total of All Banks and Trust Companies in 1909 by $52,000,000.

RESOURCES STILL GROWING

They Amounted to $21,615,000,000 on Sept. 12, a Gain of $515,000,000 Since Last June.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTONN, Nov. 9.—Assets of the national banks of the country are now greater by $52,000,000 than were the combined resources of all banks and trust companies in the United States as late as April 28, 1909, according to an announcement authorized tonight by John Skelton Williams, Controller of the Currency.

Returns just compiled show that on Sept. 12, 1919, the resources of the national banks amounted to $21,615,000,000, an increase of $515,000,000 over the call of June 30, 1919, and an increase of $3,571,000,000 as compared with Aug. 31, 1918. This increase is the greatest ever shown in any one year since the inauguration of the national banking system. Mr. Williams stated that the resources of the national banks had shown a greater growth in the last six years—since August, 1913—than was shown in the entire forty-nine preceding years since the civil war.

Total deposits in national banks on Sept. 12, 1919, were $13,781,000,000. This was an increase of $736,000,000 over June 30, 1919, and an increase of $2,793,000,000 over Aug. 31, 1918. Loans and discounts, exclusive of rediscounts, on Sept. 12, 1919, were reported at $11,085,000,000, an increase over June 30, 1919, of $510,000,000, and an increase of $1,301,000,000 over Aug. 31, 1918. The increase for the year in deposits exceeded by more than $1,200,000,000 the increase in loans.

The proportion of cash to deposits on Sept. 12, 1919, was 66 45 per cent., as compared with 68.37 per cent. on Aug. 31, 1918.

The national banks held United States Government securities on Sept. 12, 1919, amounting to $3,298,000,000, an increase of $124,000,000 over June 30, 1919, and an increase of $841,000,000 as compared with Aug. 31 last year. Cash on hand and due from Federal Reserve banks, including lawful reserve and items in process of collection, on Sept. 12, 1919, amounted to $2,044,413,000. This was the largest sum ever reported for this item. It exceeded by $123,574,000 the figures of June 30, 1919, and by $372,000,000 the amount of cash on hand and due from Federal Reserve banks on Aug. 31, 1918.

The banks also held on Sept. 12 other bonds and securities amounting to $1,501,000,000, representing an increase of $39,000,000 over June 30, 1919, and an increase of $111,000,000 over Aug. 31, 1918. The circulation of national banks outstanding on Sept. 12 was 3,081,580,000, while bills payable amounted to $1,054,107,000, of which $1,013,907,000 were with Federal Reserve banks, being practically loans on Government securities.

The increase in deposits, compared with the June 30, 1919, call, has been very general throughout the country. The States whose country banks have shown an increase in deposits of $10,000,000 or more were New York, $36,000,000; Texas, $32,000,000; California, $61,000,000; Illinois, $29,000,000; Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, $25,000,000 each; New Jersey, $24,000,000; Ohio, $22,000,000; Oklahoma, $18,000,000; North Carolina, $15,000,000; Indiana, $14,000,000; Colorado and Idaho, $10,000,000 each. The only States showing a decrease were Connecticut, Florida, Mississippi, Nevada, and Arizona, the aggregate reduction in the five States being less than $2,000,000.

The New Industrialism

MODERN Industry is today organized on a national basis. Its management represents the collective brain power of the country. Its financial strength is that of the nation. Its supply of raw materials is assured. It has learned to insure the permanence of its markets by earning, through service, the good will of its customers.

The New Industrialism offers an opportunity to re-invest savings on a plan which yields relatively large returns and which is safeguarded by every means known to finance.

This plan is based upon Preferred Stock Issues of several of the most powerful, conservatively managed and successful Industrial Institutions in the world.

These Preferred Stocks pay fixed dividends; in many cases they represent a first claim on actual physical assets several times greater than the stock issue; they are exempt from normal Federal income tax; and they possess a stable market value.

Dominick & Dominick will be glad to confer with investors, and will mail to those interested detailed facts about Industrial Preferred Stocks.

Some Advantages of Fuel Oil

Oil fuel may be stored so as to provide a safe reserve supply without danger from spontaneous combustion. This, in itself, is an important advantage, particularly in these times of unsettled transportation conditions.

Furthermore, the boiler-room temperature when burning oil is considerably lower than when burning coal oil, eliminating one of the chief causes for a hot boiler-room the frequent opening of the firing doors when shoveling in coal.

Again, the heat from oil is easier on metallic surfaces, due largely to evener distribution of the heat and to freedom from blasts of cold air caused by opening the furnace doors.

Then, too, the saving in labor costs is clearly proven.

City of Lyons City of Marseilles City of Bordeaux

Fifteen-Year Six Per Cent. Gold Bonds

Due November 1, 1934

INTEREST PAYABLE MAY 1 AND NOVEMBER 1

Maurice Caserate, Esq., Director-General of the French Mission in the United States, in a letter dated November 1, 1919, writes in part as follows:

"These bonds are being issued to replace the funds used to repay on November 1, 1919, the Bonds of these Cities remaining outstanding of the $56,000,000 bonds originally issued, and for other purposes. Each issue will be the direct obligation of the City issuing the same, and they will be the only external loans of these Cities presently outstanding.

The Bonds will be issued in bearer coupon form in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100, and will bear interest from November 1, 1919, at the rate of Six Per Cent. per annum, payable semi-annually on May 1 and November 1. Principal and interest of the bonds will be payable in United States gold coin of the standard of weight and fineness existing on November 1, 1919, without deduction for any present or future French Governmental, Municipal or other French taxes. The Government of the French Republic has agreed to undertake, in order to permit the Cities of Lyons, Marseilles and Bordeaux, or any of them, to pay the interest or principal amount of the loan in gold in the City of New York, to furnish them and each of them, if necessary (in exchange for bank notes or other currency), with gold in the amount needed, and authorize its exportation for said purpose.

As established by the laws of France governing municipalities, the finances of these Cities, and the authority to borrow money, levy taxes and execute the annual budgets, are under the control and supervision of the French National Government. Under this supervision the municipal authorities of Lyons, Marseilles and Bordeaux have followed a conservative fiscal policy, establishing the credit of the Cities upon a sound basis. The internal loans now outstanding bear low interest rates.

The three Cities are, next to Paris, among the largest and most important trade centers of France. Originally established in ancient times on main trade routes, they have grown steadily to their present importance, because of natural economic advantages. Situated far from the zone of hostilities, their industrial condition, already sound prior to the war, has been strengthened substantially since 1914 by additional facilities provided for the extra war traffic they were called upon to handle, by their increase in population and the expansion of business.

Considered separately:

LYONS ranks next to Paris as a centre of finance, trade and manufacturing. Her chief manufactures are of silk, and in the production of these articles she leads the world. Over 90,000 looms, employing more than 200,000 hands, are engaged in these enterprises. Lyons is the capital of the Department of Rhone, and is situated at the confluence of the Rhone and Saone, both of which are navigable and flanked by several miles of quays. Ample railway facilities provide her with outlets to the interior. Local industries comprise metal works, chemical and soap factories, dye works, tanneries and glassworks. The population of the City has kept pace with her industries, showing an increase from 323,796 in 1912 to over 600,000 (estimated) in 1918. The total internal debt amounted in 1918 (the latest figures available) to about Fcs. 93,500,000 (at Fcs. 5.18, the approximate normal value of Francs equals $18,050,000). To this should be added the present issue of $15,000,000, making a total of about $33,050,000.

MARSEILLES, the leading maritime city of the Mediterranean, is one of the greatest natural sea ports of the world, and is the southern terminus of the largest railway system in France. Situated on the northeast shore of the Gulf of Lyons, it controls all Mediterranean commerce and sends and receives cargoes through the Suez to and from India. On a normal basis, 21,000,000 gross tons of shipping annually enter and clear from her harbor. Seven wet docks, six dry docks, and thirteen miles of quayage afford accommodation for 2,000 vessels at one time. The traffic in merchandise has increased from 4,372,000 tons in 1870 to more than 21,590,000 tons at the present time. Her industries are many and well diversified, among which are metal foundries and plants for the manufacture of vegetable oils and soaps. The population has grown from 550,619 in 1912 to about 750,000 (estimated) in 1918. The total internal debt in 1918 amounted to Fcs. 157,074,097 (at 5.18 equals $30,523,184). To this should be added the present issue of $15,000,000, making a total of about $45,323,184.

BORDEAUX is the principal Atlantic port, and has one of the three finest harbors in France. It is the European terminus of many lines trading with the Americas, Africa and the British Isles. Shipbuilding is the chief industry besides which there are considerable other manufacturing enterprises. Wine production in the surrounding country contributes to a great extent to the City trade; refined sugar, rope, woolen goods, carpets, paper and earthenware are produced on a large scale. Her chief imports comprise metals, English coal, timber, grain and manufactured articles. She exports chiefly cloth, chemicals and the products of local industry and large quantities of wine. The pre-war record exhibits an annual entrance and clearance from her harbor of vessels aggregating 5,228,000 tons. The extensive additions made to her quayage and warehouse capacity to enable the handling of the large traffic during the war have greatly enhanced her opportunities for accommodating even more business in the future. The population of the City has grown from 261,678 in 1912 to about 305,000 (estimated) in 1918. The total internal debt in 1918 amounted to Fcs. 43,442,650 (at 5.18 equals $8,386,612). To this should be added the present issue of $15,000,000, making a total of about $23,386,612.

Application will be made in due course to list these bonds on the New York Stock Exchange."

The undersigned offer the above Bonds, subject to previous sale, at 92½ per cent. and accrued interest to date of delivery, temporary bonds deliverable if, when and as issued. At this price the Bonds will yield 6.80 per cent. if held to maturity.

SAY EXPORT BALANCE MUST BE REDUCED

Manufacturers' Export Association Wants $3,000,000,000 Difference Adjusted.

In a statement made public yesterday, the American Manufacturers' Export Association declared that for the best interests of America's future foreign trade, our export balance of more than $3,000,000,000 for the past year would have to be reduced. The association states very frankly that the time has now come for us to supply Europe only with necessities, and with those necessities which she is able to pay for, or for which credits can be obtained. To obtain the necessary credits, the association pins its faith on the American business man. The statement goes on to declare that the lesson of enforced saving learned from Liberty Loan campaigns will stand us in good stead now and make it possible for America to extend even so large a credit as is necessary.

The statement in part follows:

"Since the United States produces more than it consumes, it cannot reach the full measure of prosperity except as part of a prosperous world; and since a prosperous world cannot be had until Europe is encouraged to increase its production so that its consumption will at least be equalized, the business man of this country realizes he is faced with a situation where he should co-operate in restoring European industry and, in a sense, in building up his competitor's trade for the sake of the welfare of this country and for his own individual business future.

"In the year ending June 30, 1910, the merchandise exports from the United States to all countries were $1,744,984,720. In the present year ending June 30, 1919, the value, while increased in some measure by the rise in prices, had reached the enormous figure of $7,235,084,207. However, we are interested not in gross amounts, but the excess of export over import. For the year ending June 30, 1910, the figure was $185,857,290. For the year ending June 30, 1919, we exported over four billion dollars more than we bought abroad, the figure being $4,129,207,675.

"We still have an export balance of over $3,000,000,000 to be paid. There are three ways only of paying—in goods, in gold, or by the extension of credit. The payment admittedly cannot be made in gold. The sheives of Europe are empty of goods and the facilities for immediate production are lacking. Credit must be extended, and for long enough terms to enable Europe to produce, and with goods decrease this astounding export balance.

"Organization and teamwork between the bankers, the manufacturers, and the investing public is needed to extend credits amounting to billions of dollars. The individual exporter must realize that under present conditions with great domestic demands on capital the banker is adequately fulfilling his function when he acts as a connecting medium, placing the man who has money to invest in touch with the people abroad to whom it is safe to lend.

"It is the opinion of the American Manufacturers Export Association that for the best interest of the future foreign trade of this country this export balance must be decreased. We are at the peak. A world endeavoring to get back on a peace basis has drawn very heavily upon America for its first demands. The turn of the wheel has come and our national safety and prosperity and our international obligations make it necessary for us to help Europe by supplying her necessities only and only those necessities for which she can pay or for which credits can be arranged. It is clear that we cannot continue to pyramid our export balance.

"If we were to depend upon ordinary avenues for this capital we would feel pessimistic about the ability of our nation to extend this huge credit. But the lesson of enforced saving learned by the war, applied during our Liberty and Victory Loan campaigns, and which to some extent has counteracted the war's economic loss and wastage, has taught our people to save. It is from our savings of this year that we must finance this credit, from our ability to produce more and to consume less, that banker, manufacturer, and toiler alike must, as Americans, co-operate to provide this great fund."

WANTS LABOR REGULATED.

William Fellowes Morgan Proposes Same Restrictions as for Capital.

William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants' Association and Chairman of the Every Name Committee of the Episcopal Diocese of New York, has written a letter to Ralph M. Easley, Chairman of the Executive Council of the National Civic Federation, suggesting, in view of the industrial crisis in the United States, that the time has come for labor unionism to submit to the same Governmental regulation which is required of capital. Mr. Morgan's letter was prompted by Mr. Easley's charge that the Episcopal Church is tolerating socialism within its ranks.

"I want to make clear my sincere belief," he writes, "in labor organization. Labor unionism has been a potent force for good throughout the world. And labor unionism may look forward to a career of equal usefulness provided it heeds the signs of the times and will, in the same measure that it demands of all other potential agencies, adapt itself to the changed conditions which have been brought about by the world war."

Mr. Morgan deplores the spread of socialism, while refuting the idea that the Episcopal Church is in any way promoting it.

Referring to the numerous strikes which have been declared recently, Mr. Morgan says that organized labor, "instead of adopting a spirit of co-operation, has gone to the other extreme, and has virtually declared war on the people of the United States.

"You will not have failed to observe," he says in conclusion, "that among thoughtful people serious consideration is being given to the question of whether it may not be a fact that the strike and the boycott have performed their functions in awakening the people to the evils to which the workingman has been subjected; and that unionism has now reached that stage where, as a force potential alike for good and evil, it ought, together with capital, to submit to a Governmental regulation which will conserve equally the rights of both."

West of the Ninth New Jersey District will conduct an examination in the Town Hall, Union Hill, next Saturday afternoon for candidates for census enumerators for the fourteenth Federal census. Territories served by Great Western Power Company of California.

THIS small operating force is all that is necessary to run the principal generating station of the Great Western Power Company of California—one of the large hydro-electric power companies of the country.

The natural flow of the Feather River is all that is required to turn the big generators.

This simplicity of operation in large part frees the Company from labor problems and the mounting cost of fuel.

Constantly increasing demand for power has made necessary the construction of a new plant to cost over $4,250,000 and a new 100,000 volt transmission line.

A first mortgage on this plant, a refunding mortgage on all other property of the Company, and the additional pledge of $5,261,000 underlying bonds secure the NAVY IS TO SELL MANY VESSELS.

GOOD USES FOR CHASERS

Can Easily Be Turned into Fireboats and Fishing Boats, Naval Experts Suggest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Secretary Daniels is advertising a considerable number of vessels for sale, and in the near future will offer for sale a great many more, consisting of yachts, motor boats, destroyers, gunboats, torpedo boats, barges, scows, submarine chasers, fish boats, and tugs.

During the war the navy built more than 455 submarine chasers. These are regarded as seaworthy boats, 110 feet long, fitted with three standard gasoline engines of 220 horse power each. These boats have been appraised at very low values in comparison with their original cost of from $75,000 to $80,000 each. Many inquiries and bids have been received for these boats, and plans have been discussed for converting them into fire boats, which can be accomplished for probably one-fifth the cost of new fire tugs.

Naval experts seem to think that the best apparent commercial use to which these vessels could be put would be in the fishing industry. Careful inquiry has been made at Boston and Gloucester, Secretary Daniels said, on the conversion work required. The suggestion has been made for the purchasers to remove two of the engines and use the space occupied by these, the officers' quarters, and the forward magazine for a midship hold, which will be approximately thirty feet long. This conversion can be made at a reasonable figure, and the purchaser would then have two spare engines for use or for sale.

These vessels now being advertised for sale are:

Motor boats: Nightingale, Bay Ocean, Sea Otter, Patrol No. 8, Tillamook, Daiquiri, Euphemia, Jeanette, Sea Gull, Rainier, Susanne, Estella, Ionita, Valeda, Me Too, Mognet, Hetman, Maggie, Coyote, Akbar, Keham, Russ, Ono.

Destroyers: Bainbridge, Paul Jones, Lawrence, Decatur, Hopkins, Stewart, Truxton, Whipple, Worden, Flusser, Lamson, Preble, Perry, Barry, Dale, Hull, Reid.

There are also tugs, scows, freight lighters, monitors, torpedo boats, barges, fish boats, mine sweepers, freight boats, and submarine chasers being advertised.

"The terms of the sale are lenient," Secretary Daniels explains, "and make it easy for any one who is desirous of obtaining a vessel. On vessels taken over during the war a 10 per cent. deposit is required with the bid. If liberty bonds are deposited they are regarded as surety only and are not acceptable in part payment of the vessel."

FORM MARACAIBO OIL CO.

The formation of the Maracaibo Oil Exploration Corporation, under the laws of Delaware, with a capitalization of 250,000 shares, without nominal or par value, has been formally announced. The company has absorbed a number of Venezuelan oil concerns and thereby has secured 750,000 acres of oil-bearing lands in Venezuela.

While no official announcement has been made as to the personnel of the Board of Directors and officers of the new company, it has been learned that among them will be Percy A. Rockefeller, E. C. Converse, Ambrose Monell, W. W. Mein, Charles H. Sabin, William E. Corey, and Henry Lockhart, Jr.

It is expected that new financing will be done by the Maracaibo Corporation of sufficient proportions to provide the company with $2,000,000 in cash for development work and further extension. It is reported that the new concern is endowed with ample and inexpensive transportation for its products. All of the properties are near water transportation.

The Lake Maracaibo district, where the properties lie, is located in the northwestern part of Venezuela and covers approximately 30,000 square miles. Lake Maracaibo is 200 miles long and is navigable for small ocean-going steamships.

OFFER BIG ITALIAN MARINE.

Shipbuilders Make a Condition That Laws Will Not Be Changed.

ROME, Nov. 8.—Italian shipbuilding companies have pledged themselves to supply 7,000,000 tons of new ships during the next two years and 1,000,000 tons the third year, on condition that the Government promises not to change the maritime laws for at least fifteen years. These laws have been amended three times in the last four years.

The companies announce that under their conditions Italy would be entirely independent in three years of foreign tonnage. They ask that ships requisitioned during the war be permitted to operate free on their outward journey, asserting that on the homeward journey parts of their cargo space will be reserved for the Government at fixed tariff rates.

It is declared by the companies that their lines represent an important political factor, this having been proved by the effect obtained as a result of the new lines touching at Brazilian and Chilean ports.

Make Spots Bone Dry by Dead.

TUXEDO, Nov. 9.—Mrs. Kate Wallace yesterday sold a piece of property in Charles Street, Maybrook, to Floyd Corwin, subject to a restriction "that the manufacture, preparation, storage and sale of any intoxicating, strong or spirituous liquors shall never be carried on or permitted upon said premises or any portion thereof." Margaret Marra has conveyed to George Johnson property on Walden Road, Marlboro, with a similar restriction. For a long time Maybrook has been a "bone dry" town.

WRECK LOOT-LADEN TRUCK.

Freight Train Robbers Flee, Leaving $8,000 Goods in Ditch.

CROTON, Nov. 9.—Fred Capasele, a chauffeur, was arrested today after, it is alleged, he wrecked an automobile truck while trying to elude a State police in Harmon, Westchester County, while escaping with $8,000 worth of loot.

Troopers Armstrong and Kruse were called from the Croton substation by railroad employes, who reported robbers had broken into a New York Central train in the Harmon yards and were loitering about with a truck laden with merchandise. The troopers heard the truck off, and the driver ditched the vehicle. Two men who rode on the front seat fled. An overcoat left in the machine led to Capasele's arrest.

Three Investments for Business Men

1. THE 3-YEAR NOTES and 10-YEAR BONDS of a foreign government which has always enjoyed very high credit, and whose external indebtedness is comparatively small. Over 50% of the proceeds of this issue will be used to retire maturing obligations in this country, and the balance to establish credits for the purchase of commodities here.

Holders of these securities have the privilege of converting them at any time into an Internal Bond at a fixed rate of exchange, which gives an opportunity for benefiting by any improvement in exchange rates. It is seldom that securities are brought out that have all the qualities of a prime investment, as well as the attractive speculative possibilities that are incorporated in this issue.

Prices to yield about 6.25% and 6.00%

2. THE 30-YEAR BONDS of an established, prosperous and well managed company manufacturing a wide variety of rubber goods. This issue is secured on the properties owned or controlled by the Company, subject to only $2,600,000 prior liens; it takes precedence over $63,000,000 preferred stock on which dividends at the rate of 8% per annum have been paid for some years past. During the nine years to December 31, 1918, earnings averaged annually more than 4½ times interest requirements.

Price to yield about 5.85%

3. THE 50-YEAR BONDS of one of the most important trunk line railroads in the country. These bonds are secured by a general mortgage on practically all of the main and branch line mileage owned by the company; including underlying liens they are outstanding at the rate of less than $23,400 per mile of road. The income available for fixed charges averaged more than twice such charges during the 10-year period preceding government operation. The "Standard Return" and other income for 1918 was sufficient to enable the company to pay its fixed charges, taxes and corporate expenses, dividends of 5% on $196,700 preferred stock and 7% on $67,559,400 common stock, and leave a balance of nearly $2,500,000 for other corporate requirements.

Price to yield about 5.45%

We shall be glad to give you full details regarding these securities as well as others described in the November issue of our booklet, INVESTMENT RECOMMENDATIONS, which we will mail on request.

Many Good Investments

During the past five months there have been a large number of exceptionally strong securities offered to the public. The difficulty has been not to select good investments, but to choose those that are the best from every point of view. Preferred stocks have been particularly popular and we would like to suggest consideration of two which yield an unusually liberal return, are amply protected, and have excellent markets.

BRITISH COMMERCE SHOWS A REVIVAL

Heavy Imports Still Keep the Balance of Trade on the Wrong Side.

JUMP IN MANUFACTURING

Demand for Automobiles Is Such That Deliveries Are Being Promised Months and Years Hence.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—British exports for October give striking evidence of the revival of trade. They show a record figure of over £79,000,000 sterling, despite the fact that the railway strike had an adverse effect in the opening days of the month. Compared with October, 1918, the month's reports for 1919 are nearly £26,000,000 higher.

On the other hand, the imports during the same period show a record of nearly £153,500,000, being nearly £36,000,000 higher than in October, 1918. It is regarded as an encouraging feature, however, that the imports of raw materials increased by over £20,000,000.

That there still remains considerable margin for improvement is shown by the fact that for the ten months ended Oct. 31 the imports amounted to £1,319,500,000, and the exports, including the important item of re-exports, to £738,250,000, showing a disclosed balance of trade against this country for the year to date of £581,250,000. This would be materially reduced if allowance were made for freight changes payable in respect to heavy shipping, trade income on large foreign investments, and other items coming under the head of invisible exports.

Optimistic views in regard to the industrial revival continue to gain ground. In the manufacturing north there is a noticeable quickening of business energy, which, though it cannot yet be termed a boom, may become so in a month or two if it continues to gather force at its present remarkable rate. One of the busiest centres is Leeds, and close followers are Bradford, Huddersfield, Colne Valley, Dewsbury, Batley, and Halifax.

Farther north reports of expansion come from Middlesbrough, Stockton, Newcastle, and other manufacturing headquarters. The Register of the Leeds Bankruptcy Court remarked the other day:

London, just at the moment, presents at least a superficial aspect of extraordinary prosperity. The newly-rich are here in thousands. Hotels are getting fabulous prices for rooms and entertainment. Their food charges do not come within the scope of the profiteering act under the ruling that service, music, artistic decorations, &c., can all be embodied in bills presented to customers.

The motor show opened at Olympia yesterday and was crowded by people anxious to buy, although delivery could not be promised to new clients for months, and in some cases years, to come. In view of the extraordinary demand some of the exhibiting firms put up their prices by a third within twenty-four hours of the opening. The show is a great success from every point of view except that one cannot actually buy a car there.

The mass production planned by several firms has not yet begun and, in fact, many models of the cheaper variety are hand-made. In some quarters one hears that American manufacturers have an excellent opportunity in the British market, despite the 33⅓ per cent. duty and the freight and other incidental charges. In others it is argued that the British manufacturer holds an extremely favorable position in respect to American competition. The crucial fact of the situation, however, seems to be that British production is necessarily slow and seems likely to remain so for a considerable time, while there is an insistent and increasing demand for cars for immediate or early delivery.

He never filed the will. He died several years ago. Recently, the present owners of the Merritt property, wishing to clear the title, recorded the old will. It was drawn more than fifty years ago.

Tobacco Products Export Corporation

We have specialized in Tobacco Stocks for nearly twenty years, and have never changed our conviction that they are the most satisfactory investments to have in your box. Compare Tobaccos such as United Cigar Stores, American Tobacco, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco, Tobacco Products, British-American Tobacco, Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain with investments in any other line of business, and the result is overwhelmingly in favor of tobaccos. Peace or war, prosperity or depression, bull markets or bear markets, if you own tobacco stocks you know from experience that your investment is safe, your dividends are assured and your income in nearly all cases shows an increase.

Tobacco Products Export Corporation manufactures and sells tobacco. It has factories in Richmond, Va., Montreal, Cairo, London and China, all of which with the exception of the one in China, which is in process of construction, are working to 100% capacity.

Some time ago, we said it was one of the coming companies. We can now say it has arrived. It is a tremendously successful company. It transacts business in every country in every part of the world, in Australia, China, all of Africa, Asia, all of Europe with the exception of Russia and Roumania. It is intrenching itself in those countres so securely that every brand it sells is becoming a powerful, steadily growing and permanent asset.

We recommend Tobacco Products Export Corporation as one of the most promising investments in the United States from the standpoint of security, enhancement of value and future disbursement of dividends.

The following is summarized from a letter of Mr. G. C. Bohn, President of the Bohn Refrigerator Company:

This business, which was established in 1900, has been engaged in the manufacture of refrigerators for household use, hotels and apartment houses, refrigerator-car and dining-car equipment and has recently been manufacturing kitchen tables. Its refrigerators are used exclusively by the railroad companies in the United States, Canada and Mexico for dining-car service. Over 100,000 freight cars have been equipped with the "Bohn" system.

The valuation of the properties of this company, according to appraisal, is $1,172,575. Plants are located in the midway industrial section of St. Paul and have shipping facilities by eleven railroads.

Exclusive of trade marks, good will, etc., the balance sheet as of August 30, 1919, showed net tangible assets of $1,699,330, or, after making allowance for first mortgage bonds, assets equal to 314% of this issue of preferred stock.

The net earnings, after all allowances and Federal and other taxes, for the last ten years have averaged $122,191. After deducting bond interest this is equal to about three times the dividend requirements on this issue; for the fiscal year, on the basis of sales already made, would be sufficient to pay the dividend requirements of this issue five times over. Orders now on hand amount to over $700,000.

15% of the net earnings of the company shall be set aside each year beginning 1922 and 20% beginning 1925 for the retirement of this issue.

No increase in the bonded debt can be made or liens created without the consent of 75% of the outstanding preferred stock. Net quick assets must equal at least 125% of preferred stock outstanding before any dividend shall be paid upon the common stock. In the event of liquidation this stock is entitled to $105 and accrued dividend.

All legal details in connection with this issue have been passed upon by Pam & Hurd, Chicago, for the bankers and Davis, Kellogg & Severance, St. Paul, Minn., for the company. Arthur Andersen & Company, Chicago, are auditors for the bankers and Marwick, Mitchell, Peat & Co. for the company.

We recommend this preferred stock for investment and offer it subject to prior sale and change in price when, as and if issued and received by us.

Property Exempt from Taxation Has a Valuation of $2,500,000,000.

VARIOUS LAWS PROTECT

Real estate in the city, valued at $2,250,000,000, including real estate of corporations, is exempt from taxation under various laws, the annual report of the Department of Taxes and Assessments, made public recently, shows. The exemptions include not only United States, State, and city lands and buildings, but also churches, charitable institutions, religious, social, and benevolent associations, colleges, schools, cemeteries, and libraries. By boroughs the value of the exempt real estate is as follows:

Brooklyn	378,118,209
Queens	81,591,000
Richmond	33,528,755

The subway, which is exempt by contract, was valued in the 1919 tax figures at $256,124,210. This is the largest item in the list of exempt city property, except the parks, which are valued at $684,552,235. Property of the Department of Docks and Ferries is valued at $166,035,045. The total exemption for city property is $1,747,381,360.

Government property valued at $74,-352,100 is not taxable. The largest single item is post offices, which are valued at $17,788,500. Navy yards and forts are the next two items in order of value.

Church property alone in this city is equal to almost three times the value of Government property. Under the heading "Churches, Synagogues, Monasteries, Convents, Mission and Parish Houses," including parochial schools, theological seminaries, and cemeteries, the total for 1919 is $203,420,800.

Colleges, schools, academies, and training schools are valued at $47,966,530; hospitals, infirmaries, and dispensaries at $42,190,275; religious, social, moral and benevolent societies, $43,-472,[illegible], and cemeteries, $36,536,730.

TO TRAIN GIRL SCOUTS.

Courses to Equip Candidates to be Captains Start Next Week.

It was announced yesterday that immediately following the close of the Girl Scouts' campaign for associate members and funds the Manhattan Council's training courses for captains will be opened at the home of the Girl Scouts, 189 Lexington Avenue. Three courses will be offered, any one of which will equip a girl to become a captain of a troop.

The first course will open Wednesday evening, Nov. 19, at 189 Lexington Avenue, and continue every Wednesday for nine weeks. The second course will begin Monday evening, Nov. 24, at 671 Lexington Avenue, continuing for five weeks, on Monday and Friday evenings. The third course will commence on Thursday morning, Dec. 4, at 189 Lexington Avenue, and continue for nine weeks.

The outline of study provides for two sorts of instruction, first, lectures on the cultural background of scouting, and second, lessons in the organization and practice of scouting. Miss Bishop will have charge of the courses.

FINDS PERPETUAL CALENDAR

Italian Clergyman Claims to Have Disproved Herschel's Prediction.

ROME, Nov. 8.—The Rev. Francesco Scatigna of Locorotondo, in the province of Bari, declares he has discovered the "perpetual calendar" which has baffled scientists for centuries. His calendar consists of two discs, one superimposed upon the other, by the turning of which the correct day, week and month may be obtained.

If his statement proves correct, it will disprove the prediction of the great astronomer, Herschel, that a perpetual calendar never could be devised.

American-La France Fire Engine Co., Inc.
Common Stock

For the first time since the motor fire apparatus business became so large there is presented an opportunity for public participation in the ownership of this company, the leader in its line. The outstanding Common stock of the company is only $1,450,000, but provision is made for $1,500,000 additional Common to be exchanged for an equal amount of Convertible Debenture notes (due 1926), the ownership of which provides the shares now offered.

The company is offering no new stock. It has no bills payable and is at present carrying, with production at the peak, cash and call loans in excess of 40% of outstanding Common stock. The volume of business and earnings show a consistent increase year by year, and an earned surplus of more than 70% of present outstanding Common has been accumulated over the past seven years after payment of dividends now at the rate of 8% per annum on the Common issue.

The business of the company is largely with municipalities in this and foreign countries. Reference is made to a circular giving detailed information and balance sheet, with yearly record of earnings and dividends, copy of which will be sent on request.

The company's Common stock has been of $100 par, but in November the stockholders are expected to authorize the reduction to $10, as recommended by the Board of Directors.

Application to list the stock of $10 par on the New York Stock Exchange will be made.

Delivery will be made in the form of temporary certificates as soon as possible after ratification by the stockholders of the reduction in par value.

The right is reserved to reject any and all applications, and also to award a smaller amount than applied for.

Protective Committee of Holders of
4% First Refunding Gold Mortgage Bonds
Due July 1st, 2002

OF THE

Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company

The company has defaulted in the payment of interest on the above mentioned bonds, and an action to foreclose the mortgage is pending.

At the request of the holders of a large number of these bonds, the undersigned have consented to act as a Committee for the protection of the interests of all of the holders of the above mentioned bonds who shall become parties to a deposit agreement which the Committee has executed and lodged with the Franklin Trust Company, No. 46 Wall Street, New York City, and No. 166 Montague Street, Brooklyn, New York, the depositary therein named, from whom may be obtained, at either of its offices, copies of said agreement.

The mortgage which secures your bonds constitutes a preferential lien upon much of the most valuable assets of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company.

An attempt has already been made to subordinate the lien of your Mortgage to nearly Twenty Million Dollars of Receivers' Certificates authorized to be issued for the benefit of portions of the Rapid Transit System.

Through the efforts of the Trustee of your mortgage and certain bond-holders this attempt has been defeated, but the fact that it was seriously made and earnestly pressed suggests that other like attempts may hereafter be expected.

As the foreclosure action proceeds, many questions will arise seriously involving your interests, which can be adequately protected only by your united action.

The Committee therefore invites all holders of the 4% First Refunding Gold Bonds of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to deposit their bonds with coupons due July 1, 1919, and all subsequent coupons attached, with the above-named Depositary, thereby signifying their acquiescence to the agreement already executed by the Committee. Such deposit should be made as promptly as possible.

Transferable certificates of deposit will be issued for all deposited bonds. Application will be made at once to list the certificates of deposit on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Committee or its counsel will be glad at any time to answer inquiries from bond-holders, and to obtain for them such information as is procurable.

THE PRESENT BUILDING of the Merchants' National Bank at 42 Wall Street was erected in 1883, and in 1903 (just one hundred years from the founding of the Bank) this building was enlarged by the addition of the three upper stories. During this century of active identification with the mercantile life of New York, it had seen the city grow from 75,000 population to nearly 5,000,000. In its Presidency and Directorate it had enlisted the services of the outstanding mercantile men of New York for a hundred years. Its resources on June 30th, 1919, totalled $55,390,916.53.

Advertising is an Investment

The Feminine Touch In Advertising

The public hears much about "Advertising Men" but very little about the women of advertising. And yet, for years, women have been a contributing power in advertising success.

Long ago Federal realized that there were some things that the "Men Who Know Your Market" could not be expected to know about fashions, food, children and the needs of a home, and so we secured the services of women whose experience, knowledge and ability equipped them to interpret feminine needs.

No small part of the efficiency of the Federal organization is due to the work of these able women, and so, for once, we say

"PUT IT UP TO 'WOMEN' WHO KNOW YOUR MARKET."

BARS ADVANCE $5 A TON

Without common brick the contractor and architect has recourse to concrete in some types of construction enterprises. But there the inquirer for material is confronted by conditions created by the steel and coal strikes, railroad embargoes, harbor congestion, and other factors that do not offer him much encouragement.

Concrete means reinforcement material and bars advanced $5 a ton, or ¼ cents, base, Pittsburgh, while cement prices are generally reported to be in upward tendency, probably effective in this market around the first of the year. As a matter of fact, conditions in that department warrant a price advance even now.

The alternative of using concrete involves the use of lumber for forms, and there is a new price schedule showing higher levels than even those now ruling that is promised for this month. Price advances in lumber affects window sash, doors, rafters, flooring, roofing, &c.

Alternatives of these commodities rest in the metal market, which already shows signs of stiffening for a period sufficient to cover clearance of back log orders and the rapidly increasing demand for building purposes.

The only commodity upon which an active construction market for this city rests, therefore, is brick, common brick that only a few years ago sold in this market at $6 a thousand, wholesale, dock, New York, or about $23 a thousand, laid in a wall. Even at $18 a thousand, dock, and $45 a thousand laid in a wall, the market is so famished today that a scale was reported in Staten Island and at $20 a thousand, wholesale, with only one cargo available here on Saturday.

One fact stood out prominently: that no more brick arrived at the West Fifty-second Street wholesale docks with the market at $18 than arrived when the market was at $14, $15 or $16, according to the Dow Service Daily Building Reports today. Leading brick manufacturers met up the river on Friday to discuss the problem as it was beginning to present itself to them.

It was shown that the majority of the manufacturers who can do so believed that they were best conserving the interests of the New York consumers by utilizing all the premium-paid men they can still retain at the yards in the manufacture of brick rather than in loading what brick they have for shipment into this market.

Brick can even be shipped by rail in Winter, it was argued, but they cannot be made on the open yard after Winter sets in. The consensus of the meeting seemed to be that the right thing to do was to produce all the brick possible while there was a chance to do so. Any day might see the end of the Hudson brick-making season, already protracted long beyond the furthest brick-making day the Hudson annals have yet shown, according to manufacturers.

Under this plan, it was pointed out, if weather conditions favored, it would be possible to make brick for some time yet, and then, just before navigation closed, large flotillas of brick barges could be rushed down the river to be "covered" at local docks, pending purchase, and thus, perhaps, to break the high prices fostered by present dearth of this important building commodity.

There are some purchasers in New York who have been conspicuously out of the market for the last month, in anticipation of just this contingency, so as to offset the advantage that Haverstraw manufacturers might have by reason of their plants being unusually accessible to New York all Winter, if demand proved sufficiently great to require the extra exertion.

The Hudson River district, according to the most authentic count, will close the year with barely 300,000,000 common brick left from a season that produced only a little more than half the 1,200,000,000 of a normal year. This may be further curtailed if the coal strike is long continued, as soft coal is solely depended upon nowadays for tempering and burning.

The result of this low quantity production is that the entire New York building for this Winter is likely to rest in the hands of a few Haverstraw district brick manufacturers, who will have the responsibility of meeting the biggest Winter demand for common brick the district has known in recent years with the smallest quantity of basic building materials the Hudson River brick industry has ever recorded.

It is unlikely that anything like the supply needed will be brought here by rail. Such added expense would put the price of this commodity under existing conditions around $50 a thousand laid in a wall. Such a price would be prohibitive even for the biggest building interest.

There is some relief in sight, however. While the Hudson River brick interests have been laboring to meet an unprecedented condition, science and a nationally known engineering company have erected in Brooklyn a factory for the production of a substitute building commodity that its originators say can be produced in tremendous volume, and meets all the tests of an ordinary common brick. There soon will be sufficient on hand to help to meet present market conditions, the manufacturers say.

In the mean time the building construction movement is gaining momentum. Glass interests here are figuring an increasing volume of big building work, although they are frank in saying they do not know what is going to happen when the building demand begins to compete with the present automobile demand for plate glass. The mills cannot produce more, the jobbers' stocks are depleted as soon as they are restocked—when they can be restocked at all—and discounts have already begun to shrink in this commodity.

There is a fair quantity of cost-plus construction work being awarded, nearly all for work to proceed at once, but sub-contractors are "picky."

ESCH RAILROAD BILL UP TUESDAY

CURB ON ROADS AND UNIONS

It Holds Both Financially Responsible for Losses Through Breaking of Contracts.

COMPENSATION FOR ROADS

Guaranteed for Six Months After Return to Private Control—$250,000,000 for Loans.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—The Esch bill to regulate railroads after their return to their owners, which is regarded by many as being as strong a measure as can be forced through Congress, was completed late last night. The text of the bill, which will be considered in the House on Tuesday and probably passed by that body before adjournment, was given out tonight.

While the anti-strike feature of the Senate bill is omitted as unenforceable, the House bill sets up an elaborate system to adjust labor disputes. It provides for a cooling-off period, intended to prevent hasty action by labor organizations when disputes arise between themselves and the carriers. The bill attempts to enact the measures that proved most effective under Government operation, such as the pooling of equipment and the use of common terminal facilities.

As to the termination of Federal control, the bill provides that:

"(A) Federal control shall terminate, (1) at the end of the last day of the month in which this act is passed, if this act is passed on or before the fifteenth day of the month; or (2) at the end of the last day of the month following the month in which this act is passed, if this act is passed after the fifteenth day of the month; and the President shall then relinquish possession and control of all railroads and systems of transportation then under Federal control and cease the use and operation thereof."

The text of some of the essential features of the bill follows:

"The indebtedness of any carrier corporation to the United States existing at the termination of Federal control, incurred for additional or betterments made during Federal control, or for advances made by the United States or incurred for additions or betterments hese, and property chargeable to capital account, shall, at the request of the carrier, be extended for a period of ten years, or a shorter period, at the carrier's option, with interest at the same rate per annum as that fixed by the President as reasonable under Section 4 of the Federal Control act, or under paragraph D of Section 7 of the Standard Contract on the cost of additions and betterments, less retirements, and upon the cost of road extensions to the property of such carriers made by such carrier with the approval or by order of the President while such property was under Federal control, which interest shall be payable semi-annually on the first days of January and July of each year. Such indebtedness shall be evidenced, if practicable, by the first mortgage bonds of the carrier, but, if this is impracticable, then in such practicable form as shall be prescribed by the President.

"Any other indebtedness of any carrier to the United States which may exist after settlement of accounts between the United States and the carrier shall be evidenced by notes payable on demand, with interest at the rate of 6 per centum per annum, and secured by such practicable security as shall be prescribed by the President.

Set-offs to Indebtedness.

"The President may, in his discretion, set against any indebtedness of such carrier to the United States any sum due to the carrier from the United States to such extent as set-off is permitted currently under any contract now or hereafter made between such carrier and the United States, or, where no such contract exists, to such extent as such set-off would be permitted by the terms of paragraph B of Section 7 of the standard contract between the United States and the carriers relative to deductions from compensation. Such set-off shall be made first upon the class of indebtedness fundable hereunder in notes payable on demand, any remainder to be applied on the class of indebtedness fundable hereunder for ten years.

"No such set-off shall be made of any sum so due to the carrier unless there shall have been paid to the carrier such sums due it as shall have been necessary to enable such carrier to pay the charges as defined in Paragraph B of Section 7 of the Standard Contract, and dividends at the regular rate of dividends paid during Federal control, (such fixed charges having accrued and such dividends having been declared during the period of Federal control,) and such sums as may be necessary to provide the carrier with working capital in amount not less than one month's operating expenses, or due on account of material and supplies not returned in kind. If the President and the various carriers, or any of them, have entered or shall enter into an agreement for funding, through the medium of car trust certificates, or otherwise, the indebtedness of any such carrier to the United States incurred for equipment ordered for the benefit of such carrier, such indebtedness so funded shall not be refundable under the foregoing provisions.

"With respect to any bonds, notes, or other securities acquired under the provisions of this section or under the provisions of the Federal Control act, the President shall have the right to make such arrangements for extension of the time of payment or for the exchange of any of them for other securities, or partly for cash and partly for securities, as may be provided for in any agreement entered into by him or as may in his judgment seem desirable.

"All rates, fares, and charges, all divisions of joint rates and all classifications, regulations and practices in anywise changing, affecting, or determining any part or the aggregate of rates, fares or charges, or the value of the service rendered, which immediately preceding the termination of Federal control are in effect in the lines of carriers subject to the Commerce act, shall continue in force and effect until thereafter changed by or pursuant to authority of law; but this shall not be construed as affecting the rights of any party to a proceeding involving rates, fares, charges, classifications, regulations, or practices which has been or may be instituted under the Commerce act or other law."

New Loans to Railroads.

"(A) For the purpose of enabling carriers by railroads subject to the commerce act properly to serve the public during the transition period immediately following the termination of Federal control, any such carrier may, at any time after the passage of this act and before the expiration of two years after the termination of Federal control, make application to the Interstate Commerce Commission for a loan from the United States, setting forth the amount of the loan and the term for which it is desired, the purpose of the loan, and the uses to which it will be applied, the present and prospective ability of the applicant to repay the loan and meet the requirements of its obligations in that regard, the character and value of the security offered, and the extent to which the public convenience and necessity will be served. The application shall be accompanied by statements showing such facts and details as the commission may require with respect to the physical situation, ownership, capitalization, indebtedness, contract obligations, operation, and earning power of the applicant, together with such other facts relating to the propriety and expediency of granting the loan applied for and the ability of the applicant to make good the obligation, as the commission may deem pertinent to the inquiry.

"(B) If the commission, after such hearing and investigation, with or without notice, as it may direct, finds that the making, in whole or in part, of the proposed loan by the United States is necessary to enable the applicant properly to meet the transportation needs of the people, and that the prospective earning power of the applicant and the character and value of the security offered are such as to furnish reasonable assurance of the applicant's ability to repay the loan within the time fixed therefore, the commission may certify to the Secretary of the Treasury its findings of fact and its recommendations as to the amount of the loan which is to be made; the time, not exceeding five years from the making thereof, within which it is to be repaid; the character of the security which is to be offered therefor; and the terms and conditions of the loan.

"(c) Upon receipt of such certificate from the commission the Secretary of the Treasury, at any time before the expiration of twenty-six months after the termination of Federal control, is authorized to make a loan, not exceeding the maximum amount recommended in such certificate, out of any moneys in the revolving fund provided for in this section. All such loans shall bear interest at the rate of 6 per centum per annum, payable semi-annually to the Secretary of the Treasury and to be placed to the credit of the revolving fund provided for in this section. The time, not exceeding five years from the making thereof, within which such loan is to be repaid, the security which is to be taken therefor, which shall be adequate to secure the loan, the terms and conditions of the loans, and the form of obligation to be entered into, shall be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

"(d) Loans so made shall be preferred liens upon the income and property of the applicant in the same manner and to the same extent that certificates issued by receivers appointed by United States courts are preferred liens upon the income and property that is being administered by the receiver.

"(e) The commission or the Secretary of the Treasury may call upon the Federal Reserve Board for advice and assistance with respect to any such application for loan.

"(f) There is hereby appointed out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of $250,000,000, which shall be used as a revolving fund for the purpose of making the loans provided for in this section.

"Any carrier securing a loan under the provisions of Section 308, or funding under Section 306 its indebtedness to the United States, shall not be subject, as regards the evidences of indebtedness given to the United States under either of such sections, to the provisions of Section 20a of the Commerce Act added to such act by Section 437 of this act."

Eligibility to Adjustment Board.

In the section providing for the settlement of disputes between carriers and their employes occur these provisions:

"Previous to the organization of the Railway Board of Labor Appeals, hereinafter provided for, the Secretary of Labor shall decide any difference as to the eligibility of any union to representation upon the Adjustment Board and any contest over the appointment of any member to the Adjustment Board; but thereafter the Board of Labor Appeals shall make all such decisions.

"Section 306. The Adjustment Board shall receive for hearing and decision any dispute between a carrier and a union or member thereof upon the application of the chief executive of such carrier or union, or upon the written request of any three members of the Adjustment Board, or upon the request of the President of the United States. The Adjustment Board shall refer any dispute so received to a conference committee composed as provided in Section 305, which shall hear and as soon as practicable and with due diligence decide the dispute. A decision by a conference committee shall require the concurrence therein of at least two-thirds of its members. Any such decision or any failure so to reach a decision shall be entered upon the records of the Adjustment Board, and copies of any decision shall be immediately communicated to the parties to the dispute, to the Board of Labor Appeals, and to the President, and shall be made public in such manner as the Adjustment Board may determine. The Adjustment Board shall neither hear nor decide any such dispute nor review the decision of the Conference Committee thereon, but the decision of the Conference Committee shall be made in the name and shall constitute the decision of the Adjustment Board.

"Section 307. Whenever any Conference Committee certifies to the Board of Labor Appeals that, in its opinion, the committee will fail to reach a decision within a reasonable time with respect to any dispute under its consideration, or whenever the President of the United States determines that any committee has so failed, or is not using due diligence in its consideration of any dispute and certifies such determination to the Board of Labor Appeals, such board shall thereupon hear and as soon as practicable and with due diligence decide the dispute.

"Section 308. There is hereby established what is known as the Railway Board of Labor Appeals (in this title called 'Board of Labor Appeals') and to be composed of three divisions, as follows:

"(a) Three members representing the unions, one to be appointed by the President of the United States from each of three sets of six nominees offered by the group of employe members of the Adjustment Board.

"(b) Three members representing the carriers, one to be appointed by the President of the United States from each of three sets of six nominees offered by the group of employer members of the Adjustment Board; and

"(c) Three members representing the public, to be appointed directly by the President of the United States. The appointments of the public representatives shall be so made that each of the following elements of the public shall be represented by one such appointee—agricultural interests, commercial interests, and unorganized labor.

"Any vacancy on the Board of Labor Appeals shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment.

"Section 310. No nominee for member of the Board of Labor Appeals shall be a member of the Adjustment Board. No member of the Board of Labor Appeals shall, during his term of office, be a member or in the employ of, or hold any official relationship to, any union or carrier, or own any stock, bonds, or other securities thereof, or be pecuniarily interested therein, but no member is required to relinquish his rights in any insurance or pension or other benefit fund maintained by a union or carrier. Of the original members of each division of the Board of Labor Appeals one shall be appointed for a term of two years, one for four years, and one for six years. Their successors shall hold office for terms of six years, except that any member appointed to fill a vacancy shall be appointed only for the unexpired term of the member whom he succeeds. Each member shall receive from the United States a salary of 10,000 a year, payable monthly. A member may be removed by the President for inefficiency, neglect of duty, or malfeasance in office, but for no other reason.

"Section 311. All members of the Board of Labor Appeals shall participate in the hearing and consideration of any dispute certified to it by a conference committee of the Adjustment Board, or by the President, as provided in Section 307, but only the members of the divisions representing the unions and carriers shall decide any such dispute or vote in respect thereto. The decision by the Board of Labor Appeals in respect to any such dispute shall require the concurrence therein of at least five of the six members of the divisions representing the unions and carriers. All decisions of the Board of Labor Appeals shall be entered upon the records of such board, and copies thereof shall be immediately communicated to the parties to the dispute, to the Adjustment Board, and to the President, and shall be made public in such manner as the Board of Labor Appeals may determine. The members of the public division of the Board of Labor Appeals shall have the right to vote upon all matters that are considered by such board, except disputes certified to it under Section 307.

"Section 314. (A.) For the efficient administration of the functions vested in the Board of Labor Appeals by this title, any member thereof may require, by subpoena issued and signed by himself, the attendance of any witness and the production of any book, paper, document, or other evidence from any place in the United States at any designated place of hearing, and the taking of a deposition before any designated person having power to administer oaths. In the case of a deposition the testimony shall be reduced to writing by the person taking the deposition or under his direction, and shall then be subscribed to by the deponent. Any member of the Board of Labor Appeals may administer oaths and examine any witness. Any witness summoned before such board and any witness whose deposition is taken shall be paid the same fees and mileage as are paid witnesses in the courts of the United States.

"(B.) In case of failure to comply with any subpoena, or in case of the contumacy of any witness appearing before the Board of Labor Appeals, such board may invoke the aid of any United States District Court. Such court may thereupon order the witness to comply with the requirements of such subpoena, or to give evidence touching the matter in question, as the case may be. Any failure to obey such an order may be punished by such court as a contempt thereof.

"(C.) No person shall be excused from so attending and testifying or deposing, nor from so producing any book, paper, document, or other evidence on the ground that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, required of him may tend to incriminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture; but no natural person shall be prosecuted, or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing, as to which, in obedience to a subpoena and under oath, he may so testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise. But no person shall be exempt from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying.

"Section 315 (A.) When necessary to the efficient administration of the functions vested in the Board of Labor Appeals by this title any member, officer, employe, or agent thereof, duly authorized in writing by such board, shall at all reasonable times for the purpose of examination have access to and the right to copy any book, account, record, paper, or correspondence relating to any matter which such board is authorized to consider or investigate. Any person who upon demand refuses any duly authorized member, officer, employe, or agent of the Board of Labor Appeals such right of access or copying, or hinders, obstructs, or resists him in the exercise of such right, shall be liable to a penalty of $500 for each such offense. Each day during any part of which such offense continues shall constitute a separate offense. Such penalty shall be recoverable in a civil suit brought in the name of the United States and shall be covered into the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts."

A MESSAGE FROM A TELEPHONE OPERATOR TO GIRLS SEEKING EMPLOYMENT.

"When I was ready to enter business I decided that the occupation I chose would have to have a future in it for me. The pay should be good and be increased at reasonable intervals. The organization into which I went not only must provide an opportunity for me to advance myself but must show willingness to help me get ahead. The work must be clean and interesting and devoid of unpleasant influences. It had to be done in clean, well-ventilated rooms. The working hours had to be reasonable. If I became sick during employment I felt that I should be protected against loss of pay. I wanted to be assured that my employer would look after my comfort and convenience both when at work and when off duty. And if the business I entered required preliminary training I felt that my employer should pay me for that preparation.

"Telephone operating met every one of my requirements. So I have this message for young women 16 to 35 years of age who seek steady, worth-while employment: Find out about telephone operating and do it today."

On McCall Street's Kitchen Shelf

In a million, five hundred thousand American homes McCall's Magazine is read each month.

Put these homes all on one street—a house every 25 feet—and this street would reach from Boston to San Diego.

The housewives who read McCall's in these 1,500,000 homes are the kind of housewives who keep their homes spick and span.

On their kitchen shelves, and in their kitchen cupboards, are the varied articles required for washing, scouring, sweeping, renovating, polishing, and "touching up."

To take care of its cleaning and renovating needs, McCall Street pays out $650,000 every month for soaps and washing powders; $125,000 for ammonia and cleansing fluids; $275,000 for brushes, mops, brooms, and pails; $250,000 for carpet sweepers; $200,000 for vacuum cleaners; $175,000 for washing-machines; $125,000 for oils, polishes, and floor wax; $200,000 for varnish, shellac, and ready-mixed paint.

A grand total of $2,000,000 a month, or $24,000,000 a year, which the women of McCall Street expend just for the things they need to keep their homes clean, bright, and well-ordered.

McCall Street's housewives look to the household departments of McCall's, edited by authorities on home management, for trustworthy advice as to how they may save time and conserve energy in all their household duties.

And they naturally turn to McCall's advertising pages for trustworthy information as to what are the newest, most reliable, most economical goods to be had for their use.

DEMOCRATS' OFFERS FAIL

WHAT WILSON MAY ACCEPT

Hitchcock Suggests He Assumes League Council's Decisions Are Advisory.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—At the end of a day of exhaustive debate the Senate at adjournment tonight still had before it the reservation of the Foreign Relations Committee majority on Article X. of the League of Nations, under the treaty with Germany, which President Wilson has denounced as "striking a knife thrust at the heart of the treaty." A vote on the reservation is expected tomorrow, with every indication of it being adopted by a substantial majority.

The Administration forces tried in vain to put through amendments to the reservation so as to eliminate the abrupt declination of the United States to be bound by any obligation imposed under Article X., except by the consent of Congress. Every effort of the minority was voted down.

The day's debate was signalized by various sharp clashes between minority and majority Senators, bitter feeling being evidenced by the opposing forces. The Administration Senators characterized the pending reservation as "destructive," suggesting that, if it were adopted, they would vote to reject the ratifying resolution.

The majority forces in voting down a substitute reservation offered by Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Colorado, which was identical with one put in some time ago by Senator McCumber, Republican, of North Dakota, but later withdrawn in favor of the Lodge reservation, showed that they were bent on carrying out their set program. The vote on this substitute, which softened the phrasing of the majority reservation and did not go so far in stating the refusal of the United States to be bound by a decree of the League of Nations under Article X., was 48 against and 36 in favor.

In the debate on this reservation Senator McCumber, taxed by Senator Thomas with having offered it and then withdrawn it so that the majority forces might have their way, remarked that, when he submitted it, he did so in the hope that a compromise might be effected between the two sides in the treaty fight.

"But it was not accepted by the minority," said Senator McCumber.

They declined to consider it. In the interest of coming to an agreement I withdrew it, and intend now to support the committee reservation. The opportunity for compromise was rejected by the minority. The blame is upon them."

Text of the Thomas Substitute.

The Thomas substitute, as originally offered by Senator McCumber and voted on today, after Mr. Thomas had resurrected it, was as follows:

That the suggestions of the Council of the League of Nations as to the means of carrying the obligations of Article 10 into effect are only advisory, and that any undertaking under the provisions of Article 10, the execution of which may require the use of American military or naval forces or economic measures, can under the Constitution be carried out only by the action of the Congress, and that the failure of the Congress to adopt the suggestions of the Council of the League, or to provide such military or naval forces or economic measures, shall not constitute a violation of the treaty.

The vote by which the Thomas resolution was defeated follows:

CALLS CITY HEADS IN TRACTION 'CRIME'

ALL HYLAN LETTERS SOUGHT

The heads of several city departments were subpœnaed before the Extraordinary Grand Jury yesterday, and ordered to submit all correspondence in their office files from a date early in 1918 to the present time, both private and official, for the inspection of the jury. A group of process servers were kept busy for several hours reaching the city officials and other witnesses wanted and in getting the papers and documents to the Criminal Court Building.

In response to subpœnas these city officials appeared before the jury: Grover A. Whalen, former secretary to Mayor Hylan, who is now Commissioner of Plants and Structures; Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield, Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, second Deputy Police Commissioner William J. Lahey, commander of the Detective Bureau; Grant Crabtree, Chief of the Bureau of Records at Police Headquarters, and Roger K. Walsh, chief clerk of the Police Department.

Four others who answered subpœnas are now connected with private detective agencies. They are George Barnitz, formerly a policeman connected with the bomb squad; Edward Hughes, a former acting police inspector, and A. Cohen and George Young. One other man who was subpœnaed, but who did not go into the Grand Jury room, was Patrick J. Connolly, President of the Brotherhood of Interborough Rapid Transit Employes.

Practically all of the city officials entered the jury room carrying brief cases or bundles of letters or documents, presumably the papers asked for by the jury. Some carried books, supposed to be records from the different departments. With a few exceptions all the books and papers were apparently retained by the jury. It was evident that none of these visitors to the Grand Jury room were questioned at length, as they came out after a few minutes, but it is understood that they are all to appear again.

People vs. Hedley.

According to the subpœnas the correspondence demanded consists of all letters and documents that have passed between the different heads of departments and the Mayor, beginning at some month in 1918, said to be the early part of the year. It was supposed that the city employes were called on to produce certain records and papers and to identify them as the original records of their offices. When Commissioner Enright came out of the Grand Jury room he said:

"Gentlemen, I was called down here on a subpœna headed People vs. Hedley. There is no connection in my appearance here with vice or gambling. I wish you would state that." When he was reminded that it was not known that there was an action pending entitled "The People against Hedley," the Commissioner added: "I mean the Interborough thing."

It was later learned that all of the subpœnas were worded "People vs. Hedley." When Commissioner Enright's statement was called to the attention of the foreman of the jury, Raymond F. Almiral, he said:

"Mr. Enright was authorized to say only that he was subpœnaed in the case of the People against Frank Hedley and others."

Frank Hedley, now President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, was a witness before the Grand Jury some days ago, following the request by the District Attorney that the jurymen investigate information he had received from Mayor Hylan, to the effect that it seemed that the recent strike of subway employes was brought about by collusion between employes and officials of the Interborough, to get approval for increased transit fares.

The activity by the jury yesterday indicated, however, that it was going beyond this particular phase of the inquiry, and was evidently engaged in a searching investigation into what they had termed "a crime which completely overshadows the charge by the Mayor, and which may escape detection," mentioned in their letter to Governor Smith, when he was asked to appoint special

GOMPERS EXHORTS LABOR

Declares Wilson Does Not Fully Understand Strike Situation.

ASSERTS DUTY TO PROTEST

NO FEAR OF IMPRISONMENT

Speech to International Labor Delegates, Who Pledge Support to Miners.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, at a dinner given tonight at the Hotel Willard to the delegates to the International Labor Conference, reasserted the determination of American organized labor to stand behind the coal strikers.

Support of the United Mine Workers in the strike was pledged by the delegates present at the dinner, on the proposal of Louis M. Morrones, a Mexican representative.

Mr. Gompers said that American labor stood for all the ideals of Americanism and was in accord with the Government when it followed a course of freedom and justice. The present administration, he asserted, had failed to conform to these principles and American labor had no alternative, therefore, but "to assert that the principles of justice, freedom and democracy must prevail over any temporary administration."

"Whenever and wherever an attempt is made by the employers as employers or by the Government as a Government to depart from the fundamental principles of justice and humanity," Mr. Gompers said, "it is not only the right but it is the duty of the men and women of labor to stand up and protest regardless of what the consequences must be.

"It is the duty of labor and it must be its standard to fight for justice and a better standard of life. We must do in our lives the best we can, but our lives are just a passing incident in the continuity of civilization and the progress of humanity.

"What matters it if you or I are placed in jail because we have attempted to uphold the principles of freedom and justice and democracy? It is better that we should have our self-respect and hand down to the generations yet to come the principles of freedom than to live an inglorious life. To know how to die is a big thing, but it is better to know how to live for our fellow beings."

Gompers Defends Mine Workers.

After Leon Jouhaux, a French delegate, had promised in a speech at the dinner that the workers of France would aid the workers in this country in their fight, Mr. Gompers expanded upon his attack on the policy which has been adopted by the Government in fighting the strike of the United Mine Workers of America. He said that the American workers would be found in the first place in any effort that would be made for international brotherhood and carrying out "concepts and high principles of labor."

"In addition, I may say this," continued Mr. Gompers, "that in the present disturbed conditions which prevail in the United States there is not an organization of working people which has been regarded as more conservative and constructive in its principles and its policies than the United Coal Mine Workers of America. We shall give a good account of ourselves in defense and advocacy of the principles of freedom and justice as represented in the American labor movement.

"We are in accord with the principles of Americanism and of the high ideals of America. We are in accord with our Government when we believe or know that our Government is following out a course of justice and freedom and human development as expressed by the principles of democracy.

"When our Administration fails to conform to those principles, when our Administration for the time being fails to stand for the principles of democracy and freedom and justice, then we have no alternative but to assert that freedom and justice must prevail against any temporary administration of the affairs of our country.

"We are tied to no administration; we are free men and women and propose to exercise the freedom of judgment and of conduct and to criticise or to express ourselves in dissent from the policies pursued.

Says President Doesn't Know.

"We believe that because of conditions prevailing in our country, and by reason of the fact that the President of our beloved Republic suffered from a severe stroke, the full measure of American labor's concept of freedom did not reach him. We have faith in

HOUSE REFUSES TO SEAT BERGER

BERGER SPEAKS DEFIANTLY

Says That He Retracts Nothing and Accuses Administration of Tyranny and Hypocrisy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Victor L. Berger, Socialist, elected to Congress from the Fifth Wisconsin District, after having been convicted of violation of the Espionage act, was barred from his seat in the House today by a vote of 309 to 1. Representative Voigt of Wisconsin, who spoke in favor of seating Mr. Berger, voted in the negative.

This action was taken after a violent speech by Mr. Berger in which he denounced the Government's policies, many members of the House, and declared that he would take back nothing he had said in his speeches and articles, which led to his conviction in a Federal court.

Mr. Berger made his defiant statement to the House after Representative Dallinger, Chairman of the special committee which had investigated the case, had denounced him as unworthy of a place in the House and had reviewed the utterances which led to his conviction.

"The one and only issue in this case is that of Americanism," said Mr. Dallinger. "It is whether a man who in 1911 took an oath as a member of the House to support the Constitution of the United States and who, when this country declared war against the Imperial German Government, became the head and front of an organized conspiracy to hinder, obstruct, and embarrass the Government in its fight for existence, should be admitted to membership in this House simply because a constituency in one of our States has seen fit to give him a plurality of its vote.

"This issue is far broader than the question of a conviction for a violation of a particular statute by a court in Chicago, an appeal from which may be set aside by a higher court on technical grounds, and your committee is convinced upon all the facts and upon all the precedents in this House that Victor L. Berger should be excluded from membership, and that the question should be determined by the House here and now. In our opinion the House expects it; the man who fought for their country in the great war expect it; the entire country expects it."

An hour and a half was allowed Mr. Berger for his own defense. He employed it chiefly in reaffirming his convictions on war and Socialism. He started out by saying that he knew his exclusion from the House was to be a "cut-and-dried affair," because "I am a Socialist and an opponent of war and profiteering." He insisted that his ousting would make an "extremely vicious precedent which in the near future will plague its inventors."

"I take back nothing that I said in my speeches and articles," Mr. Berger declared. "Under the same circumstances I would say and write it all over again—only I would make it a great deal stronger because I have been justified by the events since the armistice was concluded and the war practically ended.

"Even the majority report of the committee admits that I am the regularly elected representative of the Fifth Wisconsin District. But I am to be barred from my seat on account of the position of the Socialist Party in this war—and because I was indicted upon order from the Attorney General under charges of conspiracy to 'interfere with the armed forces of the United States'—and found guilty by a hand-picked Federal jury, each member of which, according to a statement in The Chicago Herald-Examiner, had the O. K. of the American Protective League (a branch of the Secret Service) before he was put on the jury."

Mr. Berger explained that he and the four men indicted with him, two of whom he knew only slightly, were not charged with having met to discuss or plan the conspiracy.

"What the prosecution did charge," he said, "was that five men holding similar opinions against the war because they belonged to the same party conspired by means of a 'meeting of minds.' This legal fiction outrages

REPLY TO THE FEDERATION

Resolutions of Labor Conventions Not Supreme, Palmer Says.

STAND BACKED BY WILSON

UNIONS' EXEMPTION DENIED

Myers Tells the Senate That the Crisis Is the Most Serious Since 1861.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The Government answered the challenge of the American Federation of Labor on the coal strike tonight when Attorney General Palmer, with the full approval of President Wilson, issued a statement in which he again asserted that the strike of the bituminous coal miners was a violation of the laws of the United States and in which he made it plain that when it came to law enforcement the Government was no respecter of persons.

Those elements in the population who may conceive that the resolutions of organizations or the orders of persons are superior to the law will find, the Attorney General declared, that they were mistaken, for the United States Government "would refuse to surrender to the dictation of a group, and it proposes to assert its power to protect itself and the people."

The statement issued last night by the Executive Council of the Federation, in which it indorsed the strike and pledged the full support of the Federation to the miners, was the subject of careful scrutiny by Government officials today. It was also the subject of discussion in the Senate, where it was placed in the record by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin. Senator Myers of Montana said that he would rather freeze to death than see the Government recede from the stand it is taking.

President Wilson, it is believed, will issue a statement to the citizens of the country in the event that the officials of the United Mine Workers decide to defy the law by refusing to recall the strike order as directed in the mandatory injunction issued against them by Judge Anderson on Saturday. Tonight the Government is waiting definite information from its representatives in Indianapolis as to the decision of Acting President Lewis and the other national and district officers of the miners' organization.

While the miners' officials were meeting in Indianapolis the Executive Council of the Federation of Labor was conferring here behind closed doors in the Federation building. It is understood that the leaders in Washington and Indianapolis were in frequent communication by telephone.

Neither President Gompers nor any of the other national officers of the Federation would make any statement as to what transpired during the conference. One report, which lacks verification, is that one of the principal subjects discussed related to securing bail for Lewis and others of the miners' leaders in certain emergencies.

Find No Promise to Unions.

"At the Department of Justice a careful investigation was made of the department's records to ascertain what basis, if any, Gompers and the other Federation leaders had for the statement they made last night that ex-Attorney General Gregory had assured the labor leaders in 1917 that the Lever act would not be enforced against labor organization in their efforts to obtain improved working conditions, and that every assurance was given by the highest authority in the Government that the law would not be so applied.

"There is absolutely," it was said at the department, "no record to be found in the Department of Justice to substantiate this claim of Mr. Gompers and his associates."

It was added that the records showed that when the law was passed Congress specifically refused to insert any provision in the law to exempt labor from its provisions.

In its statement the Executive Council of the Federation also said that "authentic records show that the miners have less than 200 days of employment during each year." The records of the United States Geological Survey show that in 1916 the miners averaged 230 days each year, in 1917 240 days, and in 1918 240 days. From the available up to Oct. 25 last the records of the Geological Survey show that the bituminous miners worked on the average 91.9 per cent. of full time.

The coal strike discussion in the Senate followed the insertion of the Federationist's statement into the record by Senator La Follette.

"I would rather freeze to death," said Senator Myers, "than see the Government recede from the position it has

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—This statement, by Attorney General Palmer, in reply to the American Federation of Labor Executive Council, was issued today:

The coal strike is a plain violation of a Federal statute. This has been the Government's position from the start. The President declared it to be unlawful and the court, after full hearing, has now declared it to be unlawful.

All I can say is that the law will be enforced. This same law has been enforced many times, and the Department of Justice has other cases now pending which were brought under it.

The merits of the controversy between the operators and the miners are not involved in the court proceedings at Indianapolis, neither is the right to strike. Nothing that the Government has done is intended or designed to have any effect upon the recognized right of labor to organize, to bargain collectively through its unions, and, under ordinary industrial conditions, to walk out by concerted action.

The proposal by the President of a peaceful settlement of the matters at issue between the operators and the miners, through negotiations or arbitration, was rejected, and the Government, therefore, faced the alternative of submitting to the demands of a single group, to the irreparable injury of the whole people, or of challenging the assertion by that group of power greater than that of the Government itself.

Confronted with such a choice, the Government's duty was perfectly clear: it refused to surrender to the dictation of a group and it proposes to assert its power to protect itself and the people, whom it is designed to serve. The Government is no respecter of persons in the enforcement of the law.

Those who conceive that the resolutions of a convention or the orders of the officers of any organization in the country, whether labor organization or any other, are superior in authority to the law of the land, will find themselves mistaken.

I assume that the order of the court will be obeyed. The President's offer for a peaceful settlement is still open and I hope that the miners and operators will now get together and settle their controversy.

LARKIN AND GITLOW HELD IN $15,000

Both Radical and Former Assemblyman Accused of Criminal Anarchy.

PRISONERS CHANGE NAMES

Examination Delayed by Contradictions of Men Caught in Raids—More Warrants Out.

"Big Jim" Larkin, Irish agitator and strike leader, and Benjamin Gitlow, a former Assemblyman of this State, the two most prominent prisoners caught in the raids by the Lusk Committee on Saturday night, were held in $15,000 bail each by Chief City Magistrate McAdoo yesterday on charges of criminal anarchy, based on their connection with "The Revolutionary Age."

The other thirty-three arrested in Saturday night's raids were held at Police Headquarters while counsel for the Lusk Committee and Assistant District Attorney Alexander I. Rorke worked on the evidence against them. Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger said that the legal machinery had been impeded because, when they started questioning prisoners yesterday, they found that some had changed their names and stories since they were questioned at Police Headquarters on Saturday night. More than a thousand persons were questioned Saturday night and Sunday morning, and the lawyers are waiting for several hundred pages of transcript to be produced by the shorthand reporters, so that they will be armed with the stories told by the prisoners.

Communists Held to Be Criminals.

Eighty men and two women arrested by Department of Justice agents on Friday night in raids in this city and in New Jersey are being examined at Ellis Island. The examination will continue for several days, when the local Immigration Board will report its recommendations to Washington.

While the statement was attributed to Department of Justice officials in Washington that all prisoners taken in the raid on Friday night would be deported, immigration officials said that the impossibility of sending men directly to Russia, together with the practice of granting freedom in ordinary cases on $1,000 bail and the long-drawn-out process of appeals, made it doubtful how many would be deported and how soon they would be deported. It was stated that the Government had consistently refrained from sending anarchists and dangerous aliens to portions of Russia controlled by anti-Bolshevist forces, because of the probability that they would be shot shortly after their arrival.

"According to the Immigration officials," Mr. Rorke said, "a lot of the Russians they are holding are not fighting the proceedings, but are begging to be returned to Russia and even offering to pay their own fare."

391 ALIEN REDS NOW UNDER ARREST

No "Letup" in Drive on Violent Radicals, Especially the Russian Union.

WILL RUSH DEPORTATION

Attorney General Begins Proceedings—$10,000 Bail Is the Least Accepted.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Deportation proceedings have been begun in a number of cities to rid the country of the violent radicals caught in the nation-wide raids which have been in progress since Friday, Attorney General Palmer announced tonight.

Instructions have gone to all Department of Justice agents, the Attorney General said, to permit no delay in beginning formal hearings, preliminary to the actual deportation. Assurances have been received from other Government departments having to do with deportations that action would be taken to expedite the cases.

In the meantime the cleanup of the country will continue, Mr. Palmer announcing tonight that there must be "no let up." The total number actually held on deportation warrants had reached 391 tonight, while from some cities in which radical leaders were picked up, reports had not reached the department.

Efforts of the department representatives, it was said, are being directed more particularly at the union of Russian workers. This organization, branded by the Attorney General as the most dangerous anarchistic group in the country, was said to have wide ramifications. Department agents are still uncovering new evidences of its activities.

The Department of Justice appears to think that the Russian union perhaps has been constituting itself a self-appointed leader of all organizations which are preaching overthrow of the Government. Literature seized is said to show that the organization has accepted support from almost any source so long as it was working to defeat authority and destroy private property rights. Officials said they had evidence showing that leaders of the union had made overtures to other and lesser groups of radicals to join their organization, holding out promises of rewards when State and society shall have been overthrown.

Where Arrests Have Been Made.

Newark	32	Philadelphia	10
Baltimore	9	Trenton	1
Akron	22	Hartford	145
Monessen	30	New York	30
Pittsburgh	5	Chicago	1
Cleveland	16	Detroit	50
Total			391

Acting under instructions from Commissioner General of Immigration Caminetti to agents of the Immigration Service, in whose custody the prisoners are held, all of the prisoners, with the exception of two, are held in $10,000 bail. The two exceptions are Adolph Schnabel and Peter Blandi, both high officials of the Russian Union. Bail in the case of these two men has been fixed at $15,000 each. To secure their freedom pending the final decision of the courts in the deportation proceedings, soon to start, the radicals now under arrest must raise a total fund of $3,920,000.

At the Department of Justice it was said today that the Government's war on these alien agitators and conspirators is just getting under way and that there will be no letup until the country has been rid of them. Other important arrests in various parts of the country are known to be pending.

MINERS INCLINED TO OBEY

Indianapolis Conference in Session All Day and Far Into the Night.

HARD FIGHT BY RADICALS

But Conservatives Are Said to Predominate and Sane Counsels May Yet Prevail.

MUST ACT BY NOON TODAY

Lewis Says Decision May Not Be Reached Before Morning—33 Served With Writs.

No Vote Taken Up to 2 A. M.; Miners' Chiefs Still Talking

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Tuesday, Nov. 11.—At 2 o'clock this morning (3 o'clock New York time) the United Mine Workers' Executives were still in conference and had not started to take a vote on their action with regard to the order of the Federal Court that they call off the strike of coal miners.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Tuesday, Nov. 11.—After more than ten hours' debate, Executives of the United Mine Workers of America, who met here today, had reached no agreement as to whether they would comply with the order of Federal Judge A. B. Anderson to call off the strike of coal miners, and they were still in session early this morning.

Just before midnight John L. Lewis, Acting President of the Mine Workers, left the hall for a few minutes and remarked that it looked like an all-night session.

The length of the debate indicated that a heated fight was in progress by those opposing compliance of the court order. However, it was the general belief that the conservatives would prevail in the end, and obey the court's injunction.

During the evening it was said by a delegate that the conference of international officials with district presidents, and members of the executive board and scale committee, would continue until a decision had been reached.

In this connection it was pointed out that the miners' representatives had no time to waste in recesses, since Judge Anderson's order provide that they shall present to him for approval their order calling off the strike, within seventy-two hours after the issuance of the mandate Saturday.

Although the meeting was closed and extraordinary measures were taken to prevent the proceedings from becoming public, it was ascertained from disconnected remarks dropped by delegates as they left the hall for lunch and dinner, that the discussion brought out wide divergence of opinion as to what course the coal workers should pursue with regard to the order of the court.

Alexander Howat, President of the Kansas district, remarked to Frank Farrington, President of the Illinois district, as they passed newspaper men:

"That was a good speech you made, Frank. I agree with it fully."

Mr. Howat, before leaving Kansas for the conference here, gave out a statement in which he declared that "regardless of injunction, prisons, and Judges" he intended to fight.

Another delegate said:

"It is not a question of going to jail. These men have no fear of that. What they are debating is the welfare of the United Mine Workers as affected by the court order requiring the strike order to be rescinded. They are debating, too, whether they should take a position that would be a stand against the attitude of the Federal Government."

Lewis Refuses to Talk.

Other officials and delegates adopted the same attitude.

There was every indication that the majority of the mine workers are determined to weigh carefully all phases of the issue before taking any step toward disobedience of the strike order. Most of the delegates are men past middle-age and their demeanor in pacing to and from the convention hall indicated that they were giving careful consideration to the arguments.

All the members of the General Committee of the mine workers, including international officers, District Presidents, and members of the Executive Board and Scale Committee, were present. It was said, when the conference assembled in the Lincoln Hotel at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. It was found the Executive Board room at headquarters would not accommodate the full membership of the General Committee and the meeting was transferred to the hotel assembly room.

The meeting place was kept secret until just a few minutes before the conference convened. A sergeant at arms was stationed at the entrance and only delegates were permitted to approach within twenty feet of the entrance.

Shortly after 1 P. M. a recess was taken until 2 o'clock, and officials of the union, including Acting President Lewis and Secretary-Treasurer Green, on leaving the hall declared they had nothing whatever to give out as to the proceedings of the meeting and that nothing would be made public until after the afternoon session.

Early in the afternoon session deputies from the office of United States

Admiral Mark Street appeared at the conference held with about forty-three writs issued in the original restraining order. The men served with the writs yesterday were those named in the original restraining order but had not been served.

With the exception of Frank Farrington, President of the Illinois district, who was intercepted on the street, all the men named in the injunction were served in the convention hall. The writs are returnable in the United States District Court, Dec. 1, while the original writs in the restraining order were made returnable Nov. 20.

The men served are:

WILLIAM DONALDSON, Dubois, Penn.; Executive Board.

EXPECT MEN TO OBEY CHIEFS.

Western Pennsylvania Miners Await Decision in Indianapolis.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 10.—Reports received here tonight indicate that the majority of striking miners in Western and Central Pennsylvania will abide by the decision of their leaders at the Indianapolis conference, relative to their returning to work.

Mercer County miners have signified their intention of going back to the mines immediately should the union leaders decide to abide by the injunction issued for the Government by Judge Anderson, according to word received from union headquarters at Sharon, Penn.

Mine union officials at Clearfield, Penn., will not discuss what action local striking miners will take if the strike is called off. However, the feeling among the miners, it is said, is that they will stand firm in their demands for an increase in wages and shorter hours.

Non-union mines in the district were reported running at capacity today by the operators, while mine union headquarters said there was "no change."

SOLDIERS OUT IN ST. LOUIS.

Surround Public Buildings on Order from Washington.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 10.—Cordons of United States soldiers took up positions surrounding all public buildings in this city shortly after noon today. They were also placed at various points throughout the business districts and around some of the large business structures.

Information obtained stated that the orders for the placing of the soldiers came from Washington and each soldier was instructed to "watch out for suspicious characters."

ASSAILS STRIKE INJUNCTION

San Francisco Board of Supervisors Wants It Withdrawn.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—The San Francisco Board of Supervisors late today adopted by a vote of 17 to 1 a resolution requesting the United States Government to withdraw the injunction against the strike of bituminous coal miners and characterizing the injunction as "an injustice."

The resolution expressed belief that the Government's action would tend only to develop hate and would aid "those who are preaching hate against the form of government under which we live."

MINERS ASSAIL ANDERSON.

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Nov. 10.—A statement condemning the ruling of Judge Anderson at Indianapolis in the Government injunction suit against the striking coal miners and pledging united support to Acting President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers, was issued today by forty-two delegates of the Belleville sub-district, representing more than 10,000 Illinois miners.

"The decision of Judge Anderson sounds to us like the raving of a maniac," said the statement. "We believe this to be a deliberate plan of the profiteers to fasten chains of autocracy on us. We are determined to stand on our constitutional rights and liberties even to the same extent our forefathers did, and we wish to advise that we are with you to a man. May our confidence give power to your actions and courage to your soul."

It was signed by President Thomas and Secretary Mason of the sub-district.

DES MOINES SCHOOLS CLOSED.

Public Buildings Face Shutdown Within 48 Hours for Lack of Coal.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 10.—Des Moines schools were closed today, and will remain so until the end of the coal strike. Lack of fuel was the reason.

Several public buildings and business places in the city will have to close within forty-eight hours if coal is not forthcoming.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 10.—In the grip of a blizzard and with nearly a foot of snow on the ground, the town of St. Francis, Kan., in the extreme northwest corner of the State, is out of coal, according to a telegram received today at Governor Allen's office.

50 MORE HARTFORD WARRANTS

Names Being Secured from Prisoners Already Under Arrest.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 10.—Warrants were telegraphed from Washington tonight for the arrests of about fifty more members of the Russian Workers' Union, whose names have been secured by the tedious examination of some of the original prisoners, and an attorney of New Haven continued today to endeavor to represent certain of the Reds, but his efforts were unavailing, as there is no appeal from an order of deportation, and only a writ of habeas corpus may delay return to Europe.

So prolific have been the detailed examinations of some of the leaders that there are still about twenty-five to be arraigned, and tonight Inspector Clark completed arrangements for hiring a number of special guards to be posted in an old, unused wing of the Hartford County Jail, whence tomorrow he will move his anarchists.

Copies of the incriminating and blasphemous constitution of the Red Union have been found on many of the prisoners, together with lists of names of present or prospective members.

BROTHERHOODS' CHIEFS TO MEET HINES TODAY

Director General of Railroads Is Expected to Refuse Demands for Wage Increases.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Director General Hines has called the chiefs of the four railroad brotherhoods to confer with him here tomorrow to discuss labor questions directly affecting railroad employes. Mr. Hines is expected to outline the Railroad Administration's attitude on wages and working conditions.

It was said by Administration officials today that the Director General was not prepared at this time to meet the demands of the brotherhoods for substantial wage increases. A compromise offer based on a small general increase was thought propable.

Should the brotherhood chiefs press their demands complications of the industrial situation are feared, it is said.

CLASHES IN YOUNGSTOWN.

Pickets and Deserters from the Strikers Fight—One Man Stabbed.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Nov. 10.—Numerous clashes between pickets and deserters from the strikers' ranks marked the opening of the eighth week of the steel strike here. Observers estimated 2,000 additional workers returned to the steel plants today.

Several fights ensued when pickets visited homes of millworkers who had announced their intention of returning to work today. Joe Gradutitch, a picket, who is alleged to have attacked a millworker at his home, was stabbed and may die.

According to workers, committees representing large numbers of millmen anxious to return to work went over the heads of local strike leaders today and took an early train to Pittsburgh to request permission of National Headquarters.

Operations were increased in all the mills.

MOB OF STRIKERS ROUTED BY DEPUTIES

BEAT THE SUPERINTENDENT

Rioters Fire at Approach of Sheriff and Twenty Men Armed with Rifles.

Special to The New York Times.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 10.—Sheriff Broken with twenty deputies armed with riot guns, today broke up an attempt by 2,000 workers, mostly foreigners, to blockade the plant of the H. W. Johns-Manville Company, at Manville, about two miles from here. The armed deputies were called into service after the strikers had thrown a cordon around the works, and attempted to dictate who should be admitted.

Without presenting any demands, the men, egged on by what the company described as the "Bolshevist" element, walked out of the plant this morning. Manville is reached by two highways, and workers who were loyal to the company tried to get to work by jitneys. The strikers lined the roads and halted all traffic. For a time they had that section of the community absolutely under their control.

Walter De Witt, Superintendent of the plant, on his way to work successfully passed several hundred of the strikers' patrols. Within sight of the factory, however, his jitney was brought to a stop by a barricade thrown across the road. The news that the "boss" had been stopped spread, and many of the strikers hurried up. A sudden rush was made on the automobile. Mr. De Witt was dragged from his seat and badly beaten. He required medical attention before he could return to his home. The motor was pulled from the highway and shoved into a ditch.

A short time later George Christiansen, a foreman, came along in his car. The machine was driven by his daughter. The strikers signalled to Christiansen to stop. He ignored their command but was halted within a hundred yards. The strikers offered no violence to the foreman, and one of them hopped on to the running board and passed him into the plant.

When word was received of the attack on Superintendent De Witt, Sheriff Broken swore in deputies and hurried out to the Manville section in automobile trucks. At the sight of the rifles and shotguns the strikers fled. Ten of them were arrested and lodged in the county jail. According to one of the deputies, one of the strikers was seen to throw away a revolver just before he was arrested.

George Cyzck, arrested in Friday night's raids at Newark, was sent to Ellis Island yesterday for deportation, Federal agents say. He admitted that he was an anarchist, but denied that he was a counterfeiter. When his room was searched counterfeit money and plates were found there, secret service agents declare. Another prisoner, who roomed with Cyzck, is being held while the authorities investigate the origin of the counterfeit money and plates.

GOVERNOR THREATENS TO TAKE OVER MINES

North Dakota Executive Warns Owners and Workers to Agree on Terms Today.

BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 10.—Governor Lynn J. Frazier issued a proclamation tonight declaring his intention of taking over the North Dakota lignite coal mines and operating them in behalf of the State if the operators and their men have not conferred and reached a [illegible] by 6 o'clock tomorrow

NO RAILROAD STRIKE.

Gary Union Official Declares They Won't Go Out There.

GARY, Ind., Nov. 10.—Denial that union railroad men would join in a sympathetic strike in aid of the striking steel employes was made today by an official of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen of the Gary district.

He pointed out that the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen holds a contract with the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern Railway, serving the steel mills here, and that it is determined to protect the good name of organized labor" and has no desire to be "classed with the radicals."

LARKIN AND GITLOW HELD IN $15,000

raids at the Russian Workers Headquarters Friday night, said that he was preparing to make a complaint to Assistant Attorney General Garvan, and other officials because of occurrences there.

"Every man caught in that house was taken up by the police and Department of Justice officials," he said. "Not one of them offered resistance, but they were terribly beaten and many kicked downstairs just the same. There is no authority for any such proceedings and I do not believe that this Government, if it knew the facts, would permit such brutality."

Assistant District Attorney Burke and Archibald H. Stevenson and Samuel A. Berger, representing the Lusk Committee, yesterday questioned "Big Jim" Larkin regarding his alleged revolutionary activities and regarding the fact that a seaman's passport was found on him bearing his photograph, but made out in the name of Bernard Scales.

While admitting that he wanted this Government overthrown, Larkin denied that he belonged to the Communist Party and said that he belonged to the Communist Labor Party. He denounced the Communist Party because of the love of its leaders for long words and abstract reasoning, which went over the heads of the masses.

"Their talk is full of stuff against parliamentary government. The people can't understand them. We can't accomplish anything till we get the intellectuals out of the movements."

Deputy Attorney General Berger said that several of the men picked up at Communist headquarters were strikers from the steel mills and the coal mines, who had drifted here to work with Communist leaders, who have been flooding the steel and coal districts with their propaganda.

Mayor Hylan yesterday sent a letter of commendation to Police Commissioner Enright, in which he said:

"Please accept my compliments on the way you handled the 'Reds' on Saturday. I am very pleased with your good work, and hope Mayor Thompson also, although it is easier to deal with bomb throwers than it is for you to defend yourself against some of the people whose chief stock in trade is in knocking the Police Department."

Frank J. Flynn, Director of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, said yesterday that he had several warrants for the arrest of anarchists, who would be rounded up as fast as they could be found. Charles Rocht, lawyer for the men arrested in the Lusk Committee raids, said last night that he had obtained writs of habeas corpus for eleven of the men under arrest. By agreement with Assistant District Attorney Burke, these cases are not to be heard before Wednesday.

ARREST SIX REDS IN CHICAGO.

Federal Agents Now Hold 36, Including Secretary of Russian Workers.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Six more members, including the Treasurer, of the Union of Russian Workers, were arrested here tonight by Department of Justice agents in connection with the Government's drive on organized anarchy.

Arms and ammunition, including shotguns and hatchets, and a trunk full of inflammatory literature were seized. The six arrests tonight were made in as many different rooming houses.

Including the six arrests tonight the Department of Justice has thirty alleged anarchists under arrest here.

BACKS COAL MINERS' STRIKE.

Missouri State Federation Calls the Injunction Despotic.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 10.—Support of the American Federation of Labor and the United Mine Workers on the coal strike situation was promised tonight by the Missouri State Federation of Labor in a statement declaring the restraining order of Federal Judge Anderson "arbitrary, unconstitutional, and despotic."

"The Missouri State Federation of Labor will stand by the United Mine Workers in this great crisis," the statement said. "The American labor movement will never submit to autocracy, no matter under what manner it may try to operate."

PUBLISHERS REOPEN WITH CUT IN FORCES

Lack of Compositors Is Principal Obstacle to Capacity Production.

O'BRIEN PRINTERS WALK OUT

Boast Declares That the Strike Is Ended So Far as the Pressmen Are Concerned.

While many of the large printing establishments were enabled to resume operation with some of their presses yesterday as a result of the return of the pressmen to their jobs, it is apparent that future work will be turned out under difficulties, because of the scarcity of feeders and compositors. The most serious handicap will be in the typesetting department, for, in accordance with the stand taken on Sunday, when the members of Typographical Union No. 6 did not even consider returning to work, some of the largest printing houses are without any compositors, and others are operating with a mere handful.

The Printers' League frankly recognizes that the refusal of these men to terminate their "sympathetic vacations" is the one big obstacle to capacity production, but if the men do not soon report, in accordance with order of their union, the employers intend to call in union men from the outside to fill their places.

The employing-printers gave out the following figures yesterday, showing the gain in men over last week, when none of these shops was operating with union men:

Butterick's—Fifty pressmen, thirty feeders and no compositors.

Brooklyn Eagle Job Plan.—All pressmen, all feeders and 50 per cent. of their compositors.

Isaac Goldman.—Four pressmen, two feeders and two compositors.

Publishers' Printing Company.—All pressmen, all feeders and six compositors.

Schweinler.—All pressmen, no feeders and no compositors.

At the shop of The Pictorial Review twenty former employes showed their new international union cards yesterday morning and applied for work. At the Carey Press, Federal Press, and Blanchard Press the old men appeared and stated that they wanted their new international cards. In each case an agent was dispatched to the American Federation of Labor headquarters, but they failed to return. It was reported that these men had been held out of the international by a promise from the remnants of old Local No. 51 that a new settlement had been arranged. The Pictorial Review operated all day in all departments. At the C. J. O'Brien plant all departments were operating until noon, when the men walked out and failed to return.

Although the conditions as outlined above follows the official statement of the Printers' League, reports from individual plants throughout the day varied considerably. In most cases they leaned toward an optimism apparently born of hope, and in others probably represented conditions existing at the time the statement was made, but changing later in the day.

The situation as to compositors seems to be as follows: There are about 1,000 Big Six men working on the steps that have agreed to the 44-hour week, another 1,000 in shops granting the old 48-hour week, 2,000 are working in the newspaper shops and 4,000 are out on "vacations." At the offices of Big Six it was claimed that all the shops which the employers assert are running are actually in operation.

George L. Berry, President of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union, with which most of the pressmen have reaffiliated, was optimistic yesterday as to the ultimate outcome of the difficulties in the printing trade. He said the strike was over so far as the pressmen are concerned, and that the men who were back on the job showed a "pep and dash" which made it evident that they were glad to be back.

David Sinson, President of Web Pressmen's Union No. 25, which is in good standing with the International body, made known yesterday that he had signed a separate agreement of the school men of the employers, but upon inquiry it was found that he had not received the approval of the Board and not received it. The proposal calls for a $30 increase in the weekly wage, instead of $5, provided the men are willing to reenter the International. According to Mr. Simons, the employers are willing to give the $30, and in his opinion this will provide a sufficient inducement to make the men return.

our course. We believe that we are right.

"Aye, we are convinced that we are right, and the men and women of labor of America understand; men and women of labor and freedom of the whole world will understand that with the attempt to impose on our people a condition of affairs that is repugnant to the concepts of right and of justice and democracy, we, the men and women of labor, will stand true to the highest principles of justice and right and of freedom in our country."

Those present at the dinner included the labor delegates representing France, England, Spain, and the other foreign nations which have sent representatives to the International Labor Conference. They received Mr. Gompers's remarks with applause. Special significance was given to the dinner by the fact that it was held while the officials of the United Mine Workers of America at Indianapolis were attempting to make a decision concerning the mandate issued by Judge Anderson.

Labor delegates from many of the foreign countries assured Mr. Gompers that American labor would have support in the fight it is now making. A typical pledge was that given by Leon Jouhaux, the labor representative from France. Here is what he said:

"French labor and the people of the world are following the struggles of the people in the United States with interest. They hope labor will come out successful, and our people do not think it could come out otherwise in such a labor-loving country.

"In addition to hope of success I feel that if the workers of the United States need the assistance of the workers in other countries they will get it.

"Frontiers cannot separate the interests of workers, and private interests cannot separate workers."

Appleton Expresses Sympathy.

William A. Appleton, President of the International Federation of Trades Unions, which held a recent meeting in Amsterdam, spoke along the same lines as the French delegate.

"We find labor organizations in America in the throes of a great trouble," he said. "Our hearts go out to them, and we sympathize with them. We shall be glad to hear of their success. We sorrow to hear their loyalty impugned, as we know there is no class so loyal in the country.

"I believe if the soul of that great American, Abraham Lincoln, could be back for one hour this trouble would blow away.

"The application of theoretical sociology is one of the hardest problems in the world—some appreciate this difficulty. Some realize we will not see the whole of it accomplished in our time, but we know we have done our best.

"The association at Amsterdam was the beginning of the union of the people of the world and will make for the ultimate peace of the world."

Reports of the address by Mr. Gompers attracted unusual attention in official circles in Washington tonight, especially his remarks intimating the willingness of labor leaders to go to jail rather than surrender what they believed were the vital principles of justice and freedom. Some saw in such remarks a prediction that the leaders of the United Mine Workers of America would not obey the mandate issued by Judge Anderson. On this point, however, Mr. Gompers made no direct statement.

Secretary of Labor Wilson was invited but did not attend the dinner. All of the officials of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, who had been in conference all day at the Labor Temple, were present together with most of the delegates from the foreign countries.

taken in this coal strike. I believe the country is facing the most serious time since 1861.

"The passage of the Adamson law at the time of the threatened railroad strike, I think, is the cause of most of our trouble today. I hope the mistake will not be repeated.

"I am in favor of having this issue decided now without any compromise. Delay will only postpone the evil day. There is nothing in the Federation's statement which would in any way justify any body of citizens in defying the laws and the courts."

While the reading of the Federation statement was in progress in the Senate, there was so much talking in the chamber that it was difficult to understand the clerk. This did not please Mr. La Follette and he interrupted to suggest that no one was listening and the reading of the statement might be discontinued. Senator Norris of Nebraska objected, however, and the reading continued.

Senator Cummins said that while he believed the miners should receive higher wages, he inclined to the opinion that one reason why they had not worked full time was due to the shortage of railway cars and to a disinclination on the part of the public to buy coal last Summer.

Senator Owen of Oklahoma suggested that the people may have been disinclined to pay the high prices charged for coal, whereupon Senator Cummins remarked that Fuel Administrator Garfield had fixed the prices.

Both Senators Cummins and Owen agreed that much of the time now being used in discussing the treaty might more profitably be devoted to a discussion of some of the domestic problems confronting the country.

"I think we are fiddling while Rome is burning," said Senator Owen.

Congress Foresaw Strike Writs.

Senator Thomas began his remarks by reading excerpts from the statement issued by the Executive Council of the Federation of Labor. He called attention particularly to that part of the statement in which it was said that at the time the Lever bill passed President Gompers was assured by the Attorney General, at that time Mr. Gregory, and by the "highest authority," apparently referring to the President and the Congressional committees, that the legislation would not interfere with peaceful strikes. Senator Thomas believed that, so far as Attorney General Gregory and the Senate committee were concerned, Mr. Gompers was in error. He did not believe that it was possible that such assurances had been given.

To reinforce this view Senator Thomas read from the record of the Congressional proceedings at the time the Lever bill was passed. It showed that an amendment was introduced providing that the bill should not amount to a repeal of the Clayton law exemption of labor and farmers organizations from the anti-trust law. Senator Hollis asserted at that time that it would be so construed, and that under it injunctions might be issued in strikes, and he was very active in efforts to have this amendment included in the legislation. As Senator Thomas remembered, the amendment was dropped out by the Conference Committee. At any rate, it was not included in the law.

That there might be no misunderstanding about the Senate conception of the meaning of the legislation, Senator Thomas then read from remarks made by Senators Hollis and Chamberlain on the floor of the Senate at that time. They agreed that there was nothing in the act that would prevent the issuance of anti-strike injunctions under it. Senator Hollis went so far as to say that he was informed by the committee that the intention was that injunctions might be issued under the law against strikes during the period of the war. It was the conviction of those backing the legislation that the Government ought to have power to prevent strikes.

In view of this record Senator Thomas said he found it difficult to believe that the Federation of Labor officials could have received assurances that labor injunctions could not be issued under the Lever act. He therefore introduced a resolution calling upon the Attorney General to submit to the Senate the files of his office at that period bearing on the matter, so that it could be determined whether any such opinion had been expressed. Senator Thomas asked for the immediate consideration of the resolution, but Senator Smith, Georgia, objected, and the resolution went over until tomorrow.

The position of the four great railroad Brotherhoods in the strike situation has not yet been determined, according to Brotherhood officials now in Washington. The Brotherhoods are not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and are not, therefore, bound to follow the course of the Gompers organization. Under their rules they would have to make an official decision as to their attitude.

W. N. Doak of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen said that nothing had been done so far, and that he had not even discussed the matter with any one.

The head of the Brotherhoods, Warren S. Stone of the Engineers, Timothy Shea of the Firemen, and W. G. Lee of the Trainmen, will be in Washington, and it is believed that they will take a definite position. It was said tonight that L. E. Sheppard of the Conductors, the chief of the remaining Brotherhoods, might not be here tomorrow, but if absent would be represented. The Brotherhoods number about 650,000 men.

No "Cold Feet," Says Tumulty.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. (Associated Press.)—White House officials refused today to comment on the Federation of Labor statement on the coal strike injunction.

"The situation is in the hands of the courts," Secretary Tumulty said, adding: "This is no time to get cold feet."

Labor leaders predicted today that international officers of the United Mine Workers of America, meeting at Indianapolis, would not call off the strike, as directed by Federal Judge Anderson, whatever the legal consequences might be.

One of the spokesmen for the miners' organization said that he doubted if acting President Lewis and his associates had the power, even if they had the inclination, to comply with the mandate.

"The strike was ordered by a delegate convention in the event that the operators refused to grant our demands," the spokesman said, "and Lewis merely carried out instructions in ordering the strike. The convention must call it off."

Only a few reports came in from the coal fields and these showed the situation generally unchanged, with miners waiting to see what orders they would get from Indianapolis.

Reports that a roaring blizzard was sweeping out of the Northwest was a disquieting bit of news received during the day, officials realizing that a week of cold weather would cut deeply into reserve coal stocks and make conditions critical unless the men returned promptly to work.

DENOUNCES LABOR LEADERS.

Currie, in House, Also Criticises Secretary of Labor Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The stand taken by the United Mine Workers of America and the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor was denounced today in the House by Representative Gilbert A. Currie, Republican, of Michigan. Mr. Currie said that he was determined to make known his position even if his stand meant his removal from public life in the next election by the labor interests in his district. In the course of his address he severely criticised the attitude which, he said, he understood, had been taken by Secretary of Labor Wilson in regard to the coal strike and the deportation of radicals.

"The Government's position is correct and must be sustained unflinchingly by men intrusted with the conduct of public affairs," said Mr. Currie. "Attorney General Palmer is to be commended for his stubborn insistence in overcoming the objection of the Secretary of Labor. If we are to accept the press reports, the Secretary of Labor stood side by side with Mr. Gompers, insisting in substance that notwithstanding the unlawful conduct of these strike leaders, whose action threatens to paralyze transportation and industry, leaving cold, hunger, and even death in its wake, the strong arm of the law should not be exercised to restrain this most nefarious act ever proposed in the history of our country.

"The American Federation of Labor in its statement today pledging support to the strike leaders of the United Mine Workers of America even to the extent of defying the Government and its courts is guilty of a most outrageous assault upon the Government," said Mr. Currie.

"There is no longer any middle ground. We are confronted with this proposition: Is the American Federation of Labor more powerful than the Government itself? Can it successfully defy the law?"

VANDERLIP IN CLASH WITH UNION LEADER

Calls Unlimited Combinations of Labor as Dangerous as Unbridled Capital.

REPLY TO PLEA BY FRAYNE

Disputes Federation's Policy in Discussion on Merits of Collective Bargaining.

Frank A. Vanderlip, speaking before the National Republican Club last night, during a discussion on "Collective Bargaining," gave it as his belief that "In combinations of labor without limit over the entire industrial field, we have a situation as dangerous as any which has arisen through combinations of capital."

The statement came in reply to a plea for the policy of the American Federation of Labor by Hugh Frayne, a national organizer of that body, speaking in place of Samuel Gompers, who could not attend. Professor Henry Rogers Seager of Columbia University urged combining the shop committee idea of collective bargaining, in which the outsider has no voice, with the trade union conception, in which a national organization steps in to adjust disputes for local bodies.

Paul W. Litchfield, Vice President and factory manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, who was introduced as "one who managed 25,000 contented men and considers it an asset," Akron, Ohio," contended for adherence to the shop committee idea as more highly protective of the welfare of both the employe and the public. The discussion was held under the direction of the subcommittee on industrial relations of the club's committee on national affairs, of which Henry W. Taft is Chairman.

Mr. Vanderlip said he felt men were pretty well agreed on one phase of collective bargaining, and that was that "limitations must be, and already had been, put on combinations of capital."

"They have been put there with a firm hand," he continued, "and they are desirable. If we have a combination of labor without limit over the entire industrial field, I believe we have a situation as dangerous as any caused by the combination of capital. We have been told the shop organization should have a fair trial, and I believe that too.

"I know from my own observation that it gives promise of development, especially where employers and employes sit down with each other weekly or daily, in times when there is no great stress. They become educated to the economic principles involved, and they learn what is fair. We are only just becoming educated to the ethics of this situation.

"An interesting picture has been presented as to how the outside labor man enters into an industrial dispute and brings about harmony. I am afraid that practically it is not quite the correct picture. Often employers are satisfied with a situation until they are made dissatisfied by the outsider. Perhaps it is not fair to make that as a general statement, but in many cases it is true. Where is unfair to bring in outside interference we must combat it, and this, I think, is true of the steel situation."

Professor Seager said the shop plan of collective bargaining was unfair to the employe, who was seldom equipped to meet the employer on his own ground. He urged a reconciliation of this with the trade union idea, the shop committee to look after the betterment of local conditions, and to have the privilege of appealing to national unions for help when fundamental issues are involved.

He suggested the establishment of an industrial relations commission of three members by the Government on the plan of the Interstate Commerce Commission. He would have it represent the employes, employers, and the public.

Mr. Frayne cited numerous instances in which international labor union officers had settled local disputes which, he said, could have been settled in no other way. This, he contended, was in the virtue of the national organization. He said the American Federation was working for 100 per cent. Americanism. When the stand taken on the coal strike was mentioned as "a dent in this Americanism," he replied that Mr. Gompers "had worked hard and long to avert the necessity of a strike, and that it would have been settled by this time if the Government had not insisted on the injunction."

UPHOLDS SENTENCE OF RUSSIAN 'REDS'

Supreme Court Decides Against Four Who Threw Pamphlets From Rooftops.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Upholding the convictions in New York of Jacob Abrams and three other Russians for spreading radical propaganda, the Supreme Court, in a majority opinion written by Justice Clarke, declared today that the pamphlets prepared by the Russians and scattered broadcast from rooftops in the lower east side, New York City, were "clearly an appeal to the workers to arise and put down by force the Government of the United States."

Justices Holmes and Brandeis dissented, and the former declared in a minority opinion that the circulation of the leaflets, which protested against sending American troops to Russia, was not in violation of the Espionage act. The right of the Russians to publish the pamphlets, Justice Holmes said, was as clear as was the right of the Federal Government to publish the Constitution of the United States.

The majority opinion pointed out that the Russians, who received sentences of from three to twenty years, had called on the steward, naturalization, although they had lived in this country from five to ten years.

"Four of them testified in their own behalf," said Justice Clarke, "and of these, three frankly avowed that they were 'revolutionists,' 'anarchists,' 'anarchists,' that they did not believe in Government in any form, and they declared they had no interest whatever in the Government of the United States. The fourth defendant testified he was a 'Socialist' and believed in 'a proper kind of Government not capitalistic,' but in his classification the Government of the United States was 'capitalistic.'

Declaring that it was argued "somewhat faintly" that the acts charged against the defendants were not unlawful because within the right of freedom of speech and of the press guaranteed in the Constitution, the court said this contention had been "definitely negatived" in several cases previously decided by it.

Justice Holmes in his opinion said Congress could not forbid all efforts to change the mind of the country.

"I think," he said, "that we should be eternally vigilant against attempts to check the expression of opinions that we loathe and believe to be fraught with death, unless they so imminently threaten immediate interference with the lawful and pressing purposes of the law that an immediate check is required to save the country."

Hyman Lachowsky, Hyman Rosansky and Willie Schmer were the other defendants also from New York. Abrams and Lachowsky were sentenced to twenty years, Millie Schmer to fifteen years and Rosansky to three years.

Conviction in Philadelphia of Joseph V. Skvirsky and Joseph Dunsky of the Lithuanian Socialist Federation, on charges of violating the Espionage act through articles printed in The Kova, a Socialist newspaper, also was upheld. Justices Holmes and Brandeis also dissented in this case.

FORBID MAURER MEETING.

University of Pennsylvania Authorities Cancel Students' Plan.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—Permission for a meeting at the University of Pennsylvania at which James H. Maurer, President of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, was to deliver an address, was canceled today by the university authorities.

The reason given is that the students who planned the meeting had exceeded their authority and invited the general public.

In forbidding the meeting Provost Smith of the University said in his announcement:

"Originally permission had been given to a small group of students to have Mr. Maurer discuss with them certain phases of the labor movement. But since the students have posted placards not only in the university grounds but also over portions of Philadelphia, the gathering has begun to assume the proportions of a mass meeting. Under these circumstances it was deemed best to cancel the meeting."

FRENCH DECLARE LEAGUE IS DEAD

Lodge Reservations Strangle It, They Assert, Before It Is Really Born.

COMPLAIN OF TREATY DELAY

One Year Today Since Hostilities Ceased and They See No Fruits of Victory.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Tuesday, Nov. 11.—Today being the anniversary of the cessation of hostilities, France expressed bitter regret that a year has not brought her the fruits of victory. There is not a little bitterness that the regret is directed toward the United States.

Le Matin, which yesterday caused no little surprise in diplomatic circles by charging America with having killed the League of Nations, today turns its guns on the American Senate and blames the Senate for some of France's troubles of today. It says this morning:

"The treaty of peace signed at Versailles on June 28 is going bit by bit. It is the American Senate which has assumed this work of destruction, to which it devotes itself with method and consistency.

"It has just adopted a preamble to the motion for ratification which demands the approval of the American reservations by three of the great allied powers before the treaty shall become ratified by the United States. It has then approved the first reservation which, in fact, destroys the League of Nations since the United States, according to this reservation, will alone be qualified to judge, when it wishes to withdraw from the League, whether it has fulfilled its obligations under the covenant."

Le Matin then pays its respects to the other reservations and adds:

"It has well been said that these reservations are inspired by the wish of the Republicans to work against the 'autocracy' of the President. Although inspired by internal politics, the attitude of the adversaries of Mr. Wilson has the effect of withdrawing the United States from engagements which their President, holding a mandate from them, had taken in their name.

"Inasmuch as these engagements conformed to the policy of the President, many times expressed before Congress, and were known to it, one is astonished to see these Republicans, whose sympathies were generally acquiescent at the end of the conflict with our enemies, turn to destroying the work which, in spite of its imperfections, assured to the nations which were associated upon the field of battle their minimum of guarantee."

Referring to the long delay in putting the treaty into effect, Le Matin says:

"It is the attitude of America which has been the principal cause of this delay. Certainly, as one knows well, the ratification by this power is not technically indispensable to putting the treaty into effect. But, practically, for the full application of certain clauses, for putting into movement the complicated machinery of the administration of commissions, one had always counted upon the help of America.

"We hope that aside from ratification of the treaty the Senate will authorize its officials and its high command to collaborate with the Entente powers for the realization of peace. The latest news from Washington excludes for the present all possibility of co-operation."

It regrets the apparent certainty of American reservations, but says they may not be so bad as some think. It argues that Europe can probably survive them. As for the first Lodge reservation already adopted, this journal says that while to give Congress the power to decide whether or not America had fulfilled its obligations when it should wish to quit the League might appear to weaken the League, as a matter of hard cold fact the writer asks who could keep the United States in the League if Congress at any time voted to take the United States out.

As for the reservation on Article X., Le Temps says that it is not so bad because the United States cannot go to war anyhow without the consent of Congress. Turning to the Shantung reservation, Le Temps calls attention to the fact that China did not sign the Versailles Treaty and says that "So long as China has not signed, the Shantung question is still in suspense, since Shantung is a province of China. If the United States reserves its interpretation, how does that change the real situation?"

Then, patting the Republicans on the back, Le Temps says: "Can any one say that the Republican majority seeks to transform the spirit of the treaty? Can one say that the Republican Party, which is in power and will remain in power for sixteen months, wishes to ruin the idea of international solidarity upon which the treaty rests?

"Such would be an interpretation contrary to what we know to be the facts."

The writer then quotes Hay and Knox in various declarations in support of international action for world peace and concludes:

"It is then reasonable to hope that the Senate of the United States where Republicans dominate wishes neither to kill the treaty nor to choke the League of Nations. We would do well in commenting at Paris upon debates at Washington never to forget the principles of international solidarity which live in the soul of America, no matter which party governs. They are necessary to the security of our country."

Fear We Are Killing League.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—France fears America has killed the League of Nations. For weeks the French Government has felt that the League was being slowly choked to death in Washington, and now adoption of two Lodge League reservations brings official Paris to believe that the infanticide is accomplished.

This state of mind has been reached by a process of reasoning which says that if the United States disclaims responsibility under the League covenant and demands that other nations accept her reservations, saying so, those other nations will also feel free to withdraw from their obligation when it suits them.

For a fortnight European diplomats have been declaring that it really did not make much difference whether or not reservations were adopted so far as the League of Nations was concerned, for the debate had shown that there existed in America such a strong spirit of distrust of European nations, as voiced in the opposition to the League covenant, that America would not be able to play her proper rôle; but public declarations were subdued until the adoption of the Lodge reservation on Saturday.

The gravity of the situation is brought home to all circles in Paris today by a sensational article in Le Matin, which says: "We fear that from today there is no more League of Nations," and then asks if there is any treaty of peace left." It is known that in this article Le Matin reflects the views of the French Foreign Office and, indeed, of the whole French Government. After saying that it appears America has killed the League of Nations, Le Matin declares:

"This league can live only if more powerful nations, surrendering certain privileges their power gives them, accept the Government of a world community.

"The treaty creates for all these countries the obligation of not quitting the League without two years' notice. This notice does not count for the Senate of America.

"If there is no more Society of Nations, if the United States hangs the operation of the treaty upon acceptance of its reservation, which destroy the operation of it, does there indeed remain any treaty of peace?"

The Echo de Paris, in an article by "Pertinax," says that, as for France, she might as well forget about any protection the League of Nations will give her, and turn her hopes and attention to the proposed treaty between the United States and France and England and France. Referring to the American reservations, he says: "Do not let us deceive ourselves that they discredit the League of Nations which, despite the conditions of peace to an extent hindering their enforcement and even forecasting their failure."

Further on he declares, "Whatever the final result, there is sufficient evidence to demonstrate that there exists a fraction of public opinion in America resolved to safeguard with respect to Europe, and especially with respect to England, entire liberty of action. The final vote on the treaty will, if it were fortunate, would not change this situation. Common sense indicates to us that the league would be a failure. Do not believe that. They built it to make sure of having a hold on Germany. It was built as something that might be thrown away if not needed at the same time something that would be real and available if necessity arose.

"It is probably strengthened, and that in the largest possible way. It shall play the same rôle as our treaty with England in 1904, so modest in its origin. In this movement, the Treaty of Versailles, in spite of difficulties, in spite of the necessity for new accords among the Allies, can only gain in efficacy. It will have recovered that which the past year has tended to take away from us—real alliances."

For the past few months European diplomats have been going ahead making plans in anticipation of the failure of the league. It has so happened that this work has been done largely without America. It has been cloaked under the guise of preparations for putting the treaty into force, and these preparations have been made by nations which have ratified it—in other words by England, France, and Italy. Italy has not counted much.

All that has been done is not publicly known, but part of it may be sketched now. Going back several months, it was the ordinary presumption both in Paris and in all capitals that the League of Nations Council was to be more or less of a clearing house for the execution of the treaty. Many commissions to enforce the treaty, to be appointed by the Council of the League, were to report to it. It was supposed that in a general way the League would watch over the whole performance.

Then, months ago, there appeared one day an announcement of the creation of a new commission, one not named in the Peace Treaty. It was to be known as the Commission on Co-ordination. It was to be a commission to which all the treaty commissions not tied to the League of Nations were to report, and it in turn was to report to the different Foreign Offices. Four days later the name of this commission was changed to the "Commission for the Enforcement of the Peace Treaty." Its real character became plainer, and now, since it is known that not only those treaty enforcement commissions not tied to the League, but also those named by the League, are to report to this commission, there is no longer any reasonable doubt that this commission now stands to play the rôle it used to be supposed the Council of the League would play. It is to be one big, powerful piece of machinery for the enforcement of the Treaty of Peace. It will be stronger than the Reparations Commission, for it will have all the powers given to the Reparations Commission and others in addition.

SOCIALISTS HOLD MEETINGS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—I doubt if ever Germany felt quite so much alone in the world as today, a year after the fall of the régime which brought so much woe to the earth.

Prince Max, Minister Baden, in an article in Vorwärts, says that the most serious part of the new republic's struggle has been against the Entente, which endeavors to "make the democratic rebuilding of Germany impossible and to block up the future." Prince Max declares, assists all the reactionary elements in the country.

The Deutsche Tageszeitung declares triumphantly that it can loudly proclaim that during the first year of the new Germany there have been thefts on the railways to the extent of 30,000,000 marks and on the postal service to the amount of 1,500,000 marks.

BERLIN, Nov. 9, (via Copenhagen.)—As had been expected since the untimely discovery and frustration of the Communists and Spartacide plans decided on for the anniversary of the revolution, the day passed very quietly. A dismal snowstorm came to Noske's aid and cooled the red rot revolutionary spirit that otherwise, despite the strictest prohibition, might have led to some public demonstrations.

The newspapers of all shades comment copiously, lauding or deprecating the causes and consequences of Nov. 9. As usual, the organs of the Extreme Right have vitriolic articles blaming all of Germany's misfortunes to the revolution in language which, had it been used under the system of censoring in the Kaiser's time, would have caused the confiscation of the papers, but the republican Government is tolerant, despising similar means to silence its enemies.

In the Lokal-Anzeiger, Professor Reinhold Zeberg vents his wrath on fate because, he says, the events of Nov. 9, 1918, generally ignored all the landmarks created by the precedents in history and took an entirely contrary course from what should have been taken according to the deductions and the rules and regulations laid down by those supreme infallible gentlemen, in consequence of which Germany and the whole world are bound for perdition.

Democratic newspapers such as the Vossische Zeitung and the Tageblatt discredit the revolution as an inevitable consequence of the imperial policy and war against the whole world. Both assert that the republic is the only form of State under which Germany may continue to exist. The Vossische Zeitung concludes:

The Tageblatt says that the German revolution was not a spiritual upheaval or a terrible assertion of new ideas, but the consequence of the wild egotism, which had heaped up the ugly mistakes, and was bound to collapse the minute it lost the precaution of impervious Democratic shell. We never should forget that there has been a revolution, concludes the Tageblatt.

Tirpitz Praises Kaiserism.

The reactionary papers blame every misfortune on the revolution. Such men as Tirpitz echo in his reminiscences, says that he realized everything was lost after the Marne defeat, and in every chapter his book mourns faults of inefficiency, unfairness and lack of concerted action under the old system, has the boldness today to praise Kaiserism as compared with Republicanism generally and the present German situation particularly.

As stated before, the lack of transportation is recognized as the root of all the evil. However, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent has observed a great improvement within the last two months. While in May and June it took more than twenty men on an average to repair one locomotive, only half the number accomplish the same job now, which in pre-war times required seven men. The same proportion applies to other work in the State railway repair shops.

The greatest drawbacks, Otto Hue, a member of the Prussian National Convention, says in the Tageblatt today, have firstly been a petrified bureaucracy in the management of State repair shops as compared with the energetic modern element and, secondly, the lack of transportation which dragged out Germany's mechanics and thirty skilled tools. He adds that the organization of the German railway staff was the first and foremost thing the Soviet Republic of Germany and the late Railway Minister Breitscheid were just as insufficient as today. One must wonder that railway transportation, after another year, with fifty per cent of its best engines to the Entente, still has some life left.

Socialist Speeches on Anniversary.

BERLIN, Nov. 10. (Associated Press.)—The Majority and Independent Socialist leaders devoted the greater part of the celebration of the anniversary of the revolution to addressing scores of meetings. There were only moderately attended.

Philipp Scheidemann, former Chancellor, in an address at Stettin, made a stand for the union of the Independent Socialists, saying that the danger from the Left was just as menacing as that from the Right.

Eduard David, Minister without Portfolio, in a speech in the east end of Berlin, said that the German people had been deceived with regard to Germany's submarine warfare and President Wilson's peace negotiations. He added that a day of reckoning had been made up to calm President Wilson and that the gravity of the U-boat decision had been concealed from the German people, and the entry of the United States into the war had been represented as being without military importance. As nonsensical was the foregone conclusion that America's participation sealed our doom."

Georg Ledebour, speaking at the chief meeting of the Independent Socialists, delivered a violent tirade against Herr Scheidemann, President Ebert and Herr Landsberg, Secretary for Publicity, Art, and Literature, for the part played by them as people's commissioners. Ledebour brought the meeting to a spectacular close when he called on his auditors to raise their right hands and solemnly swear that they would "help to carry the revolution in Germany and elsewhere to victory." Men and women rose promptly and repeated the vow as prescribed.

COUNCIL AWAITS GERMANS IN VAIN

NO DATE FOR FORMAL PEACE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—The delegates of Great Britain, France, and Italy were all ready today to open negotiations with the Germans on the question of signing the protocol providing for the fulfillment of armistice terms and for arranging for putting the Versailles treaty into effect. But the negotiations were not opened for the reason that the Germans were not present and nothing had been heard from them.

The Berlin Government had been asked to send representatives or delegate one of its representatives now in Paris to sign further negotiations on Nov. 10. Among the provisions of the protocol was a clause calling for payment by the Berlin Government for the surrendered German warships sunk at Scapa Flow last Summer. The Germans were expected to oppose this clause strongly.

At the office of the Secretary of the Peace Conference it was stated this afternoon that it was not known when the negotiations would be opened because it was not sure even what Germany had in its delegation.

The date for the deposit of ratifications of the Peace Treaty was not fixed today, as it had been announced it would be because no one knew what tactics the Germans would pursue or how long they would be able to drag out proceedings. The protocol provides for the date to be between the signing of it and the putting into effect of the treaty.

The Supreme Council considered a report that Germany was exporting arms to Russia in violation of the armistice terms, and the Allied Military Commission was instructed to tell the Germans that they must stop such exports.

PARIS, Nov. 10, (Associated Press.)—The settlement of the status of Galicia and the defining of the eastern boundary of Poland are two important problems which the Supreme Council has under consideration and will undoubtedly dispose of before it is dissolved.

The determination of Poland's eastern boundary is an even more delicate problem because of the unsettled conditions in the territories of the Supreme Council to take any action which may be regarded as a further partitioning of that country which would offend Russians fighting for a united nation.

The Council also hopes to effect some arrangement whereby Greece, Rumania, and Serbia will sign treaties protecting the rights of the minorities in those countries. It expects to make a new treaty with Hungary, although there is no intimation that the present Budapest Government is yet in such form that the Conference can deal with it.

KILLS SUBSTITUTE FOR 'KNIFE THRUST'

States would assume no legal or moral obligation under Article X. This would have had the effect, so far as the United States is concerned, of striking ables" among the Republicans and on this amendment, 18 in favor, to 66 against, found only the "irreconcilables" among the Republicans and Democrats supporting it.

With the effort of the radicals voted down, the Senate took up a reservation offered by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, providing that the provision in the committee reservation declaring against the armed forces of the United States being used under Article X., except by assent of Congress, be struck out. This was defeated by a vote of 31 to 45.

After this Senator Walsh offered another amendment, to provide that the United States "releases the other members of the League of Nations from any obligation under Article X. and declines to participate in any proceedings in the Council authorized thereby."

Senator Walsh explained that, since the committee reservation assumed to lift the United States out of any obligation under Article X., it was only fair to release other nations.

The majority Senators savagely attacked the Walsh reservation as not being offered in good faith, and as attempting, if taken seriously, to interfere with the affairs of other nations in the League. The Walsh amendment was still before the Senate at the end of the day.

Senator Lodge attacked the Walsh reservation as "putting the United States in the position of dictating to other nations."

"If other nations of the world want to bind themselves to protect each other against wars of territorial aggression," argued Senator Lodge, "that is their own affair and not ours. I believe in allowing every country to look after itself under this treaty. If some other nations desire to enter into agreements to fight for each other, let them do it."

Senator Hitchcock contended that it was unfair to nations to which the United States "owed an obligation" to put this country outside the binding terms of the article.

"To what countries are we obligated for anything and who obligated us?" demanded Senator Penrose, Republican, of Pennsylvania.

"We would repudiate an obligation to help the smaller nations that went into the war with the tacit understanding that we would help them," replied Senator Hitchcock. "We cannot dodge our obligations in the way the majority of this body contemplates."

Senator Hitchcock would not oppose a reservation, he said, which would express the "sense" of the Senate that decisions of the League Council involving use of American forces in war were "merely advisory," so that Congress, in the last analysis, might have the final word. This was his first inkling that he might accept any such compromise on Article X.

"The President has not objected to a reservation to provide that the advice given by the League Council, under the terms of Article X., shall be regarded by the United States merely as advice, which may be accepted by Congress or rejected," said Mr. Hitchcock.

Senator Cummins, Republican of Iowa, said he would prefer having Article X. struck out, but that, since a majority of the Senate appeared to favor leaving it in the league covenant, it ought to be made as "harmless as possible."

"We ought to see that the President cannot, at the whim of the League of Nations, send our armed forces to every land under the sun," insisted Mr. Cummins.

Senator Jones, Republican of Washington, offered a reservation, to be voted on later, to provide that the representative of the United States in the League Council shall not give his consent to any proposal of the league involving use of the armed forces of the United States without first obtaining the assent of Congress.

POINCARE AND KING WANT LEAGUE AT ONCE

LONDON, Nov. 10.—President Poincaré of France and Madame Poincaré arrived here today for a four days' visit with King George and Queen Mary. The French President was met at Victoria Station by the King and Queen and the Earl of Bemerryde (Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig,) Baron Beatty of North Sea and Brooksby, Commander of the Grand Fleet, and nearly the whole cabinet.

M. Poincaré and Madame Poincaré received a rousing reception by great crowds during the drive to Buckingham Palace, where they will be entertained during their stay in London.

King George in proposing a toast to M. Poincaré, expressed appreciation of the feats of the French troops and referred to the alliance between France and Great Britain as having been made permanent. He prayed that heaven would avert the calamity of another war and that the League of Nations would insure the peace of the world.

President Poincaré expressed a fervent hope that Great Britain never would be called upon to fulfill her promise of military assistance against a fresh attack and also hoped a permanent league among nations would speedily be formed to prevent a return of violence.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—Considerable importance is attached by the Press to the visit of President Poincaré to England. According to Marcel Hutin, writing in L'Echo de Paris, the President and Foreign Minister Pichon, who accompanies him, will discuss with Premier Lloyd George and Earl Curzon, British Foreign Secretary, questions relating to putting the Peace Treaty into effect, taking into account new dispositions by the United States.

LEAGUE MAY GO AHEAD WITHOUT AMERICA

Supreme Council Agrees on Procedure Should the Senate Fail to Ratify.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—The Supreme Council reached an agreement this morning on the procedure for convoking the first Council of the League of Nations, taking into account the situation created by the opposition to ratification in the American Senate.

The possibility of the treaty being put into force without ratification by the United States came under consideration, says Le Temps, which declares that ratification by the United States is not indispensable. The newspaper states that the question arises, however, if it is possible to execute the treaty without the participation of the United States in the numerous Interallied Commissions on Reparations, control and the military contingents of occupation.

Training for Home Management

Many of the young women who enter employment, quite naturally look upon their work as an opportunity for an active and profitable interval between school and marriage—a most commendable and natural attitude.

As a training for managing a home successfully or for a business future, the advantages of store experience are valuable. Women do the greater part of the family purchasing, and the first essential of a good home manager is the ability to buy wisely. Where can she gain so broad and accurate a knowledge of qualities and values as in a good store?

We welcome to Lord & Taylor the young woman to whose life we can contribute something of permanent value besides her weekly pay. Talk it over with an executive on the 10th floor.

G. O. P. COMMITTEE TO MEET ON DEC. 10

Washington Conference Will Fix Date and Place of 1920 Convention.

WOMEN TO HAVE A COUNCIL

Mrs. J. C. South to Head Woman's Division of National Committee—Miss Hay a Member.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—The Republican National Committee will meet in Washington Wednesday, Dec. 10, to name the convention city and fix the date for the next Republican National Convention, Will H. Hays, National Chairman, will issue the official call for the session tomorrow morning before departing for the East.

This and the announcement of the admission of women, through the organization of a woman's division of the National Committee, to thoroughgoing participation in the work of the party, were the chief developments at today's meeting of the National Committee held at the Congress Hotel.

Announcement was made that Mrs. Medill McCormick, because of illness, had resigned as Chairman of the Woman's Executive Committee. Mrs. John C. South of Kentucky was made General Chairman of a newly created woman's division with three Vice Chairmen and a National Woman's Council of One Hundred.

Outside the committee room, in which were sitting committeemen, State Chairmen, and other party leaders from nearly all of the States, Presidential politics were the absorbing topic of discussion. Governor Frank O. Lowden's headquarters were formally opened under full head of steam. Across the hall General Leonard Wood and his campaign manager, Committeeman John T. King of Connecticut, were holding conferences with Republicans from different States. Down at the Blackstone, Governor Lowden was conferring with deputations that had come to Chicago to talk things over.

St. Louis, with a delegation of twenty men headed by Mayor Kiel, was making a fight to take the next convention to that city. Chicago, represented by Fred W. Upham, went into action at once to plug up any holes in the lineup for Chicago that might have been made by the unexpected attack from St. Louis.

Announcement of the organization of the woman's division was made in a formal statement from the National Committee issued by Chairman Hays. The statement said that Mrs. McCormick had been compelled to terminate her service as Chairman of the Executive Committee because of illness, and Mrs. John C. South of Frankfort, Ky., daughter of the late Senator Bradley of Kentucky, had been elected unanimously to the Chairmanship. The three Vice Chairmen are Miss Mary Garrett Hay of New York, Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter of Topeka, Kan., and Mrs. Josephine Corliss Preston of Olympia, Wash.

Miss Hay is named as Chairman of the organization work of the woman's division, with these members of the committee: Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter, Kansas; Mrs. Josephine Preston, Washington; Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, California; Mrs. Raymond Robins, Illinois; Mrs. John Glover South, Kentucky; Miss Maude Wetmore, Rhode Island; Miss Mina M. West, Michigan; Mrs. C. A. Severance, Minnesota.

The statement concluded:

"The Republican women, coming more and more into the rights of their full citizenship, are most important factors in the situation. They are part of the party membership, not as women but as voters entitled to participate, and participating in so far as present legal limitations permit, just as others voters. Their activity is not supplementary, ancillary, or secondary at all. They are not to be separated or segregated, but assimilated and amalgamated, with just that full consideration due every working member of the party, and the Republican National Committee is sure that the Republican women will come into the party's activities with that sense of responsibility necessarily consequent upon these activities, and will add, through the party, in the solution of the problems facing the country."

The National Committee session took on the nature of a jubilee over the election results of last week. Governor-elect Morrow of Kentucky had a royal reception as he was introduced by Chairman Hays. Treasurer Upham talked about campaign funds. The indications seemed to be manifold that there would be no dearth of Republican cash next year. It is said that $1,000,000 has been pledged already for campaign purposes.

SPROUL WARNS WOMEN.

Says Party Organization on Sex Lines Would Be Disastrous.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—Governor Sproul, addressing the delegates to the State convention of the Pennsylvania Woman's Suffrage Association at a dinner here tonight, reminded them that, although Pennsylvania had ratified the universal suffrage amendment, their work was not done, and that they had still to convince the people and the Legislature that they should enjoy suffrage in State elections. He said he had little doubt that this would be accomplished as rapidly as the importance of the issue warranted.

Governor Sproul expressed concern at the reports from New York that certain leaders in one branch of suffrage activities were contemplating the organization of a separate and distinct woman's party. Nothing affecting one class of citizenship in this country, whether that classification was by sex, by usefulness, by material possessions, or vocational position, he said, could fail to affect every other class, and it would be entirely unwise—in fact, almost destructive—if the women of the country should set up by themselves and establish anything like a party founded only on sex prejudices.

TICKET SELLER FINED $10.

Court Rules Dealer Can't Do Business in a Hallway.

In fining Ernest Gross of 141 West Forty-ninth Street $10 yesterday for selling tickets without a license, Magistrate Dourss, in the West Side Court, ruled that hiring a doorway in which to make the sales constituted an offense within the meaning of the city's ordinance.

It was charged that Gross had sold a detective a theatre ticket while standing in a doorway in West Forty-fifth Street. He said in court he had paid $5 for the use of the hallway. The license he produced gave him permission to sell tickets in an office on Broadway. In imposing the fine the Magistrate held that ticket selling would not be permitted from doorways.

Barney Warfield of the Hotel Theresa, in West 125th Street, who was arrested by Policewoman Mary A. Sullivan for selling a theatre ticket at a greater profit than allowed by law, was discharged in the Jefferson Market Court. Warfield said the charge was untrue.

GUGGENHEIMS AID HOSPITAL

$2m. or $250,000 to Mount Sinai by Four Brothers.

George Blumenthal, President of Mount Sinai Hospital, announced yesterday the gift to that institution by the Guggenheim brothers, Daniel, Myers, Murry, Solomon, and Simon, of $2,000,000, whereby the hospital will be enabled to start the construction of a pavilion for patients which is to be a memorial to the donors' parents. The brothers have given a total of $5,000,000 for the purpose in the last three years and, the announcement says, their contribution is the largest ever made for a single Jewish philanthropic purpose in this city.

The pavilion will cover the entire block on Fifth Avenue from Ninety-ninth to 100th Streets and will represent a total outlay of $3,000,000. It had been projected as a smaller unit before the war, but the embargo on building materials led to delay in its construction and, because of the additional Guggenheim gift, when ground is broken early next Spring, the structure will be far more ample, providing private rooms for 150 patients with sun exposure for all. Half of the rooms will face Central Park and the other half a wide court running through from Ninety-ninth to 100th Streets.

The new pavilion will be completely equipped, including an electro-cardiograph system whereby the heart action of patients may be studied and recorded.

TAX FORMS READY EARLY.

Income Returns May Be Made Promptly After Jan. 1.

Arrangements for putting out early in December forms for filing income and excess profits tax returns are being made by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, according to a statement given out yesterday. Taxpayers thus will have opportunity to make out returns immediately upon the closing of their books for the year.

"As a convenience to themselves and as a means of expediting the work of the Government," said Collector Edwards yesterday, "taxpayers are urged to avail themselves of this opportunity. The period for filing is from Jan. 1 to March 15.

"The normal tax for 1919 income is 4 per cent. on the first $4,000 above the exemption, and 8 per cent. on the remaining net income. The tax for 1918 was 6 and 12 per cent.

"Announcement will be made of the date on which the forms will be available at the offices of Collectors of Internal Revenue."

Whalen Waives Immunity.

"I answered all the questions asked of me. I was asked to sign a waiver of immunity, which I was very glad to do. I was subpoenaed in the matter of The People versus Hedley et al, and was required to bring all correspondence between myself and Mayor Hylan, and all contracts signed with lighting companies and traction companies, and any contracts I signed with operators of buses during my term of office as Commissioner of Plants and Structures."

President Connolly of the Brotherhood of Interborough Employes, declared there was no collusive effort in the strike to his knowledge. While waiting outside of the jury room he said:

"Mayor Hylan asked me why we did not join the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, and that is all I know of any attempts of his to force us to affiliate with the A. F. of L. There is nothing to the charges of collusion between the employes' union and the company. The fact is, we in the union are trying to get the best wages and conditions, while the company is a big corporation, looking out for its own interests."

It was rumored at the Criminal Court Building that the jury gave some consideration to Mayor Hylan's statement, issued on Sunday, in which he criticised the action of the jury in seizing his cabinet file of official and private papers, which was taken from his office at the City Hall a week ago. If the jurors did discuss this they made no public reply to the Mayor. If their new move in the investigation may be accepted as their reply, they made it in the form of seizing more of the City Administration's papers and records.

A further report had it that the jury's latest move was the beginning of a search for evidence to show another conspiracy, one said to be more serious than that charged by the Mayor against Interborough officials and their employes, resulting from the strike. So far as could be learned no subpoenas have yet been sent to the financial district, yet it was rumored that the inquiry might include investigation of information pointing to alleged speculation in traction and subway stocks, and the peculiar fluctuations in these stocks at certain periods.

Hints of Politics.

Judging from the action taken yesterday, there are political factors that may be developed as important features of the investigation. It may extend back to the strike on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit lines a year ago, to determine if there was a conspiracy, based on political influences or otherwise, all continuing and leading up to the troubles that culminated in the Interborough strike and financial affairs involved in the question of increased fares.

During the Brooklyn strike ex-Inspector Hughes had charge of police matters there, and he was succeeded by the then Captain Lahey. It was presumed that both these witnesses were called to tell what they knew of the police phase of these strikes.

It was understood that the jury was not making and does not contemplate making any special investigation into police matters or into the questions of vice and gambling, but an attorney familiar with such investigations said it would be required of the jury to take cognisance of any crime that came to their attention from any source during the investigation. This is required of every jury under the penal law.

Contrary to previous reports, the jury will not be able to finish its work speedily. The Jurymen may be in session for six months or more, depending upon the developments of the inquiry, and they may continue in session during the entire term of the Criminal Court presided over by Justice Weeks.

BLIZZARD IN WEST SPREEDING THIS WAY

Hits Denver After 12-Hour Snow—Fear for Thousands of Sheep and Cattle.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Sweeping eastward, a severe blizzard is raging today over the Mississippi Valley States, crippling telegraph and train service. Western Minnesota, Colorado, North and South Dakota, and Nebraska were in the grip of the storm.

Telegraph service between Omaha and Denver was cut off. Snow, driven by a twenty-five-mile wind, fell throughout Western Minnesota and Eastern North Dakota. Telephone and telegraph service in South Dakota was demoralized by a heavy sleet storm.

Trains throughout the storm area were three to five hours late.

Although local snowstorms were reported in various sections of the Northwest, the general blizzard did not develop until late last night. Bismarck, Aberdeen, and Watertown, S. D.; Fargo, Grand Forks and Devil's Lake, N. D., and cities in Western Minnesota were in the storm zone at noon. Most of these cities reported mild weather.

Thus far no serious property loss has been reported, but thousands of sheep are believed to be pastured in the regions where the blizzard is raging.

A heavy loss of livestock is feared on the ranges of Northern Colorado, as the blizzard struck that part of the State without warning, and the range is covered with snow. Kansas and Nebraska also report heavy snow and high winds.

The mecury dropped below zero in several parts of the storm area, and the fuel situation at some points is causing anxiety.

DENVER, Nov. 10.—Telegraph service out of Denver was crippled today by a severe blizzard that followed twelve hours of snowfall throughout this section.

Eight miles of telegraph poles of the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Company were reported down east of North Platte, Neb.

TEST NIXON'S AUTHORITY.

Corporation Counsel Wants Commissioner to Define Position on Fares.

Corporation Counsel Burr appeared before Justice Giegerich of the Supreme Court yesterday and asked that Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon be compelled to state in his return in the Manhattan and Queens Traction Company case whether he assumes to have the power to increase the fare on traction lines. Several weeks ago Justice Finch, on the application of Mr. Burr, issued an alternative writ prohibiting Mr. Nixon from taking any steps in a request from the Manhattan and Queens Company for permission to increase the fare.

Mr. Burr described the return of Mr. Nixon on the writ as incomplete and evasive, and said that he wanted Mr. Nixon to make a fuller return, and especially to make clear his state of mind as to his jurisdiction in requests for fare increases.

Mr. Burr told the Court that as soon as Mr. Nixon became a Public Service Commissioner he assumed the right to abrogate free transfers, and to compel a transfer charge that cost the people of Manhattan, $60 000 a year, and the people of Brooklyn $1,200,000. He charged Mr. Nixon with having acted in violation of the decision of the Court of Appeals in the Quinby case, which stated that the commission had no power to increase fares that were fixed in franchises.

Both sides have until today to file briefs.

STOPS PRIVATE BUS LINE.

Long Island City Man Is Told He Must Get a License.

Henry Meyer, owner of automobile trucks, of 55 Third Street, Long Island City, learned yesterday that there are difficulties in the way of competing with Mayor Hylan's bus lines. On Sunday, as the result of the breaking down of Macaroni Company's plant, several of the trolley lines in the Hunter's Point section of Long Island City were put out of commission. Meyer brought out one of the largest of his trucks and fitted it up with seats and then began transporting men and women along the Calvary Cemetery Line. After he had been in operation for an hour or so Patrolman Thomas Brennan of the Hunter's Point precinct served him with a summons for operating a bus without a proper license.

When Meyer came before Magistrate Conway in the Long Island City Police Court yesterday he was told that he would have to get a franchise from the city if he wanted to operate.

CARDS IN SIGHT

The effort to make card records visible has been solved by the Kardex. Kardex Steel Cabinets with capacity from one thousand expanding to a million or more cards, is perhaps the most remarkable among all the new office betterments.

Every card in a Kardex frame gives you information in sight—no fumbling—no hunting for lost cards—no misplaced information. Colored cards and colored guides—always in sight—make wonderful classifications possible. One clerk does the work of four with Kardex.

This new system would not mean so much were it not for the exclusive Kardex features. Steel cabinets are fire-resisting and have Yale lock. The frames pull out quietly and smoothly. There is quality in construction of Kardex that means durability. Let us demonstrate Kardex to you at once.

QUITE AS IMPORTANT AS THE PARTIES THEMSELVES!

A TOUCH of fluttering, feathery ostrich, nestling on a frock of taffeta would mean quite as much to a young girl as the "fortune" she pulls from a Jack Horner pie. And surely a frock of delicate silk net, twinkling with tiny starry figures, spreading into bouffant puffs over hoops, would count as a greater acquisition than the latest candle on her birthday cake! Franklin Simon & Co. have frocks of billowy chiffon, Georgette crepe, pastel satin, taffeta, filmy net — smocked or ruched, beruffled or beribboned — for all events, each in itself an event.

WILLIAMS REBUKES 'IRELAND'S SENATOR'

WALSH REPLIES WITH ANGER

Massachusetts Senator Declares That He Has a Right to Represent Oppressed Peoples.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—In a brisk interchange in the Senate today between Senator Williams, Democrat, of Mississippi, and Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts, the former took Mr. Walsh sharply to task for his attitude on the advocacy of changes in the League of Nations covenant in the treaty with Germany, asserting that Mr. Walsh, by his own word, had shown himself to be actuated by sentiment for Ireland in its fight for self-government. Senator Williams upbraided the Massachusetts Senator for telling the Senate that he stood in that body as the "offspring of subject peoples."

Senator Walsh, in a heated reply, declared that he knew, when he assumed the attitude he did against the League of Nations, voting for the reservations of the Republican majority, that he would be assailed by the Administration forces. He did not intend, he said, to be influenced by any "antagonism" manifested against him, and insisted that he had the right to stand as sponsor for "subject nations" if his conscience dictated that attitude.

"It has not been easy for me to disagree with my associates on the League of Nations," said Senator Walsh. "I am a believer in the League. I expect to vote for a covenant of a League.

"I have stood here as the offspring of subject peoples," concluded Senator Walsh, declaring his sympathy for the oppressed peoples and determination to do what he could to insure that the League should do justice to them.

Senator Williams, replying to Mr. Walsh, said the Senator ought to stand in the Senate as "an American citizen, regardless of all questions of love or hatred of Europe."

"But he announces himself that he stands here in his capacity as an ambassador from a sovereign American State, not as a representative of American interests, not as a representative of America, but as the offspring of subject races," said Mr. Williams. "If every Jew in America stood in America simply as a Jew—and God knows the Jewish race has been oppressed enough—if every American stood here in that capacity, and if every German and every Austrian stood here in that capacity, we would have of what are known as hyphenates some ten millions or twenty millions of Irish Americans, another twenty millions of German Americans, another twenty millions of Slovak Americans, and some thirty millions of some other sort of Americans, reducing the real Americans not only to a minority but to a minor quantity, and we would stand here as a potpourri."

Senator Walsh interrupted to remark that he "used the expression in connection with a statement that subject races had a right to a hearing under the provisions of Article XI. of the treaty."

VAN DYKE ASSAILS STRIKE.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Nov. 10.—Denouncing employers and leaders of the coal and steel strikes, pronouncing one in particular an "incendiary pacifist," and declaring that selfishness, ignorance, and violence everywhere lifting their ugly heads threaten "the world to be," Dr. Henry van Dyke, diplomat, author, and lecturer, tonight brought out loud applause from the audience which crowded into Syria Mosque for the first evening session of the World's Christian Citizenship Conference. Nearly 5,000 people attended and hundreds were turned away.

Summarizing world conditions and particularly the increase in highway robberies and holdups, race riots, murders, strikes, and lockouts, Dr. van Dyke saw liberty, established by victory in the world war, imperilled.

"Labor unions are torn by disputes for control by men who never did an honest day's work in their lives," he said. "And the capitalists are little better. They don't trust one another around the corner and most of them are united in opposition to the workmen with whom they ought to try to make friends.

"What else could you expect from a world which has stopped going to church and whose chief intellectual influence is the moving picture show?"

common sense, of course. Under this construction a man of any party anywhere in the United States could be indicted, convicted and sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary if his opinions on public questions were offensive to the men temporarily in power."

Reiterating his declaration that this was a capitalist war in which the United States should have refused to participate, Mr. Berger quoted from President Wilson's speeches in 1915 declaring that it was America's duty to remain neutral. He then quoted from President Wilson's St. Louis speech, Sept. 5, 1919, in which the President said: "This war was a commercial and industrial war. It was not a political war."

"I was condemned to serve twenty years in the penitentiary for saying the same thing," Mr. Berger added. "Is it a crime to tell the truth until Woodrow Wilson permits it, to be told? Postmaster General Burleson suppressed about sixty Socialist papers and took away the second class mail rights from The Milwaukee Leader and tried his utmost to kill the paper for saying the same thing in 1917 that Woodrow Wilson and everybody else are saying now."

Mr. Berger characterized the Espionage act as an infamous measure, passed at the order of American plutocracy, and said that it had been used not to punish spies, but to hound citizens whose opinions differed from those of the Administration.

Taking up the charge that his utterances were inspired by a pro-German bias, Berger said:

"As a matter of fact, I was twice defeated for Congress, in 1912 and 1916, for my opposition to the war when the Germans were winning, because certain pro-German societies started the charge that my position was 'pro-Ally.' He read an editorial from THE NEW YORK TIMES in 1916 praising his stand against pro-Germanism.

Mr. Berger denied that he had ever attempted to obstruct recruiting, as charged. He cited the fact that all his male relatives of military age volunteered from his own home for service, as proof that he had not tried to discourage enlistments.

He charged the Administration with making a specialty of hypocritical phrases and autocratic, tyrannical acts. Except for England, he said, America was the only civilized country which had political prisoners.

The man who differs from Woodrow Wilson and his satellites and is found guilty of this terrible crime is treated worse than a common criminal," he declared.

A motion by Representative Rucker of Missouri to expunge Mr. Berger's speech from the Congressional Record was offered and evoked applause. Many members of the House had left the chamber while Mr. Berger was speaking. Representative Mondell, Republican floor leader, objected to Mr. Rucker's motion on the ground that its passage would deprive Mr. Berger of an opportunity to have his case put before the public. His proposal to lay the motion on the table was carried by a vote of 172 to 132.

Representative Voigt, Republican, of Wisconsin, made a speech in favor of Mr. Berger.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. (Associated Press.)—After denying Victor L. Berger's title to the seat for the Fifth Wisconsin District, the House today declared that the seat was vacant, holding that Joseph P. Carney, Democrat, who contested Berger's election, did not receive a plurality in the election last year. Without a record vote, the House also directed Speaker Gillett to notify the Governor of Wisconsin of the vacancy in the State delegation, so that a special election might be called to choose a new member.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 10.—Governor Philipp of Wisconsin, when notified tonight of Victor L. Berger's expulsion from the House of Representatives, announced that he would call a special election within a few days to fill the vacancy.

ARMISTICE DAY

ON THIS day we celebrate one of the two most wonderful achievements in the American arms. However glorious as have been our martial victories at Yorktown, and in France, and as much as they have done for us and the entire human race, our real work for mankind lies before us.

It is not to be done in destructive war. It is equally hard, but it is constructive work. Our duty calls us into the fields of education and industry. Traditions which are born and grow great among families and nations because they will not try to get at basic facts, but lazily and thoughtlessly choose the easy way. The pioneers in the new world were given a marvellous opportunity to break from old traditions. They did it, and gave the world many courageous, bold, thoughtful, industrious men, who raised tremendously the average number of planners and doers in the world.

We, in America, with no more pioneer days to live, must not forget the lessons they taught. With general education, with the press and the telegraph, and now with a practical understanding of the value of the development of personalities through psychology, we can, when we turn our wills to the subject again, casting aside tradition, raise the average number of these thoughtful, courageous, bold, industrious men, possessing unusual ability to plan and execute.

The price that must be paid for the benefits of civilization is that we must enter into the organization of civilized society and bear our part of the burden. Work is what it takes. The disposition of generations now gone was to produce more than they consumed. This made capital—that surplus of labor over and above what necessity requires. Civilization is always using up capital, and it can only be maintained if the supply of capital is kept up. The higher and more effective the organization, the more imperative is co-operation. When men quarrel with each other, they fall back under the dominion of that part of nature which cannot think and plan and work in excess of its necessities.

In the wisdom of God, men were given power over the rest of nature, but to enjoy their power men must work. A desire for wealth is a thirst for independence from the ills of life. Independence plans for civilization. The development and control of wealth is concerned with human welfare. Denunciations of the desire for wealth are childish.

Has the world forgotten that the only way to get the best from men is to give them first a just wage, and, after that, the leadership and sympathy that not only wins the hand, but the heart and the head on the job? This has not been forgotten, and these three powers behind production, behind civilization — LABOR, MANAGEMENT and CAPITAL—are getting the habit of thought, and each realizes the importance of judging its own groups first, so that each one can be fair to the other two. Labor, Management and Capital should and will become partners, not only in physical values, but partners also in mental and spiritual values. But America is preparing to win, and will win, this great battle in the fields of education and industry—to our own lasting glory and to the glory of mankind.

A CHECK is a grievance to employees because it means a trip to the bank and often a tiresome wait in line. Getting it cashed elsewhere generally leads to unnecessary expenditures.

Porter, in charge of internal revenue agents in New York, who desired to make it known that persons, under the impression that they are buying whisky risk their lives when they drink the concoction, for which they pay exorbitant prices.

Lieut. Col. Porter, who returned yesterday from Washington, said the law was being adhered to loyally in New York, because there is no real whisky to be had, but that the beverage sold under that name for 30 to 40 cents a drink was not whisky. He said that a non-beverage alcohol that was permitted under the food control law during the war for use in the manufacture of colognes, hair tonics, and certain patent medicines was seized upon by the saloon men in their extremity, and they proceeded to convert it into beverage alcohol.

The non-beverage alcohol is 188 proof and costs $240 a barrel. When the saloon man gets hold of it, Mr. Porter explained, his first operation is to acquire a half dozen empty barrels, a quantity of prune juice or caramel for coloring matter. It is then a simple matter to manufacture "whisky" that will tear the lining of the stomach. The barrels are filled with water, diluted with the commercial alcohol and the prune juice or other coloring matter to make it appear like real whisky. The proof of the alcohol is, of course, materially reduced in the process, but it still retains power for considerable damage to the drinker.

On an investment of $240 for the barrel of commercial alcohol the whisky dealer makes a profit of from $1,600 to $2,000. During the last four months Lieut. Col. Porter and his deputies have confiscated 160 barrels of this non-beverage alcohol in New York City.

Judge Learned Hand, in chambers yesterday, heard arguments in the case of the Kips Bay Brewery and Malting Company of First Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street, which asked that a temporary injunction obtained by the Government be set aside.

Frankus, Gordon & Hyman appeared for the petitioner and Francis G. Caffey, U. S. Attorney, and Earl B. Barnes, his assistant, appeared for the Government. Attorney Gordon argued that there was nothing in the Constitution to show that Congress can assume what he termed as "borrowed" power, and however assumed, it cannot be used indefinitely, he said.

Peace is already here, the attorney said, and it merely remains for the President to issue a formal statement to that effect. In Congress, he said, the war had been referred to as "present." He said the Volstead act was a sham and a pretense. He asserted it deprived people of their rights and declared that the information against his client imposed penalties that are excessive, even denying a man a jury trial and at the same time mankling him liable to thirty days in prison and $1,000 fine.

The Anti-Saloon League yesterday issued a reply to the second installment of the report made by the Association Opposed to National Prohibition concerning the increase of crime and reckless driving in connection with prohibition. The statement said that there is even more industrial unrest where there is not prohibition, as for example, in England, where prohibition does not exist and apparently is a long way off.

The Anti-Saloon League of New York sent a message yesterday to all pastors in the State concerning a report said to have emanated from the White House that the President would proclaim the end of the war and demobilization at the earliest moment after ratification of the treaty with Germany, thus giving the liquor interests the opportunity to secure the unlimited sale of liquor from then on until Jan. 16.

The statement said in part:

"Unfortunately the president's attempt to compel the repeal of the War Prohibition act, which was known in advance by the wets, and his veto message on the Enforcement bill, which was a mild nullification proposal, taken in connection with all other facts, leave no doubt of his intention so to act, unless convinced that the nation will not stand for it.

"By every fair and reasonable interpretation the war is not ended until the treaty with Austria is disposed of, as there is ample legal warrant for the President withholding action to prevent such a calamity.

"We believe that the time has come for the moral element in New York, in common with that in America, respectfully but emphatically to demand that the President give no new lease of life to this foul, anarchistic, crime-breeding and riot-causing traffic, and that the remnant be so general and roll toward the White House in such proportions that it will sweep over Mr. Tumulty, his wet secretary—who has undoubtedly served as a non-conductor of moral impulse—and reach the President himself."

STRIKER GETS TWO YEARS.

George S. Green, a striking employe of the Ward Baking Company in Brooklyn, who pleaded guilty to an assault admitted upon a loyal employe of the firm, was sentenced yesterday by Justice James C. Cropsey, in the Supreme Court, to serve not less than two years nor more than five years in Sing Sing Prison.

Green is 34 years of age, and lives on Jefferson Avenue, near Franklin Avenue. The assault to which he pleaded guilty to was committed upon John Pascal, 34 years old, of 638 Adelphi Street. The crime was committed early on the morning of Aug. 9, on Cumberland Street, near Atlantic Avenue, shortly after Pascal left the bakery on his way home. While recovering from the beating, administered by several men, Pascal fell downstairs, and died shortly after. Green was indicted for manslaughter, but was allowed to plead to a lesser charge.

"The laws of this country," said Justice Cropsey in passing sentence, "are most liberal. They do not require those to continue in employment if the terms and conditions are not satisfactory. They allow workmen to strike as and when they please. And they go further, and permit strikers to persuade other workmen not to continue at work, provided that is done in a lawful manner. But the law that permits this freedom of action likewise permits freedom of action on the part of those who wish to continue to work.

"You and a number of your fellow-strikers committed this assault because the man continued to work and refused to join you. Your act was the act of a coward; it was unmanly and un-American. It was also against the best interests of organized labor. Organized labor is a helpful and necessary thing, and its true leaders can not and do not tolerate or approve acts such as you committed. When people take the law in their own hands, as you and your associates did, you become not only a criminal, but a foe to organized labor. The courts will ever be stern in enforcing the law in such circumstances."

MOVE TO DISBAR MARGOLIS.

Charges Against Lawyer Whose Radicalism Startled Senators.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 10.—Jacob Margolis, whose radical views were brought to the attention of the United States Committee on Labor and Education when he admitted that he was an anarchist, will be the subject of investigation by the Allegheny County Bar Association, of which he is a member.

Charles F. C. Arensburg, Chairman of the association's Committee on Offenses, today named John C. Bane and Arthur M. Scully, attorneys, to prepare a case against Margolis, the charges having been preferred by A. C. Ford, another member of the association, several weeks ago. When the committee has completed its investigation it will report to a full meeting of the association.

If the recommendation is for disbarment Margolis will be summoned before the association to answer.

600 NEW POLICE IN BOSTON.

2,000 State Troops Still on Duty, but Reduction Is Expected Soon.

BOSTON, Nov. 10.—Six hundred new policemen were officially reported on regular duty here today. They were successful applicants for positions made vacant by the strike of 1,400 members of the department in September. The number of men still in training was not disclosed, but the Civil Service Commission has announced the certification of more than 1,000, mostly former service men, since the general recruiting began.

There are 2,000 State Guardsmen still on duty here, or about half the number called into service when the strike began. Further reductions in the guardsmen's force are expected shortly.

An answer to the questions of Labor and Production and Factory Costs and Profits

The Du Pont Chemical Company Offers the Petersburg-Hopewell Industrial District of Virginia to the Manufacturers of the World as a Solution of Their Big Problems of Production and Distribution.

Are These Your Problems?

Are excessive power costs or high wage, tax, water and insurance rates cutting down your profits?

Is your production hampered by adverse labor and housing conditions?

Is your business suffering for lack of cheap and adequate transportation facilities?

Are you without room to expand your plant to take care of the increased demand that's coming?

Would a branch factory located at a place of greater strategic value help to solve your marketing problems?

Do you have to fight a hostile local government to prevent harassing restrictions on your business?

Does it require cheaper power and lower factory costs to make your business a greater success?

Do you need greater financial aid for expansion, or the help of technical and traffic experts to work out your particular problems?

How Hopewell Solves Them

Rail and deep water shipping facilities that are unsurpassed in point of service and cost.

Freedom from labor and housing troubles. Houses are plentiful, rent is cheap, and living costs are approximately on a pre-war basis.

Abundance of purest water for all domestic and industrial purposes at low rates. Best fire protection in the world, with consequent low insurance costs.

Climate never too hot or too cold for out-of-door work. Health conditions such as to make Hopewell a potential health resort.

Civic environment that makes Hopewell a good place to live and rear a family.

Adequate financial help to take care of legitimate development or expansion and expert technical advisors and industrial engineers to aid in solving your problems.

In short, the essentials to make your business a greater success are at Hopewell.

NOTE

As its name implies, the Du Pont Chemical Company is not a real estate concern. We have these factories, factory sites and other buildings—a limited number—which we offer for immediate sale direct to manufacturers, at attractive terms. We are employing the most powerful and the quickest means of disposing of our peace surplus and of acquainting the public with the opportunities Hopewell offers. It will be a matter of first come first served. Quick action is advisable.

A Tidewater Port

It is a railway center with trunk-line connections to all points North, West and South. It is a tidewater port with steamer connections with transatlantic, South American and coastwise ports. Its shipping facilities compare favorably with those of the big port cities.

Factories and Sites

Hopewell was designed for the production of guncotton on a colossal scale. In less than a year it rose from a quiet little town to an industrial city of over 40,000 population.

Hopewell now presents opportunities to manufacturers unique in history—factory buildings easily adaptable to many kinds of manufacturing—1200 acres available for factory sites with railway sidings already built.

Labor and Housing

Labor, both skilled and unskilled, male and female, can be recruited from the surrounding territory to supply all needs. Within the space of a few weeks, the Du Pont Company recruited 30,000 workers. Low living costs have kept and should continue to keep wages at a fair level. Strikes are unknown.

Hopewell has cottages, bungalows, apartments and dormitories sufficient to accommodate 12,000 workers. In addition, it has clubs, hotels, churches, schools, commissary operating on a low cost-plus basis, stores, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., and all the public utilities and civic improvements that constitute a modern city.

Power and Water

Hopewell has three gigantic and modern power plants; a total capacity of 60,000 h. p., ready to supply manufacturers with steam, electricity, heat, light and air pressure in any quantity at a surprisingly low cost.

Water of hygienic purity is drawn from filtration plants with a daily capacity of 50,000,000 gallons—more than enough to supply a city of 500,000.

Raw Material and Fuel

The Pocahontas and New River coal fields, which produce the best steam coal in the world, lie within a short hauling distance and assure a constant supply of low priced fuel.

Hopewell is in the center of a region rich in natural resources. Within a radius of fifty miles are produced annually 555,000,000 feet of timber available for lumber or for pulp and paper making; 25,000,000 pounds of tobacco, 3,000,000 bushels of corn, 2,000,000 bushels of peanuts and other crops valued at over $5,000,000. Each of these products offers opportunities to manufacturers.

A Good Place to Live

Hopewell's climatic and general health conditions are unsurpassed. It is a city without a "housing problem"—a city where profiteering is unknown, a city where, compared with some cities, the worker's fifty cents buys a dollar's worth of goods; a city where living ceases to be a losing struggle. In brief, Hopewell is a city where the average man would like to live and rear his children.

Tell Us Your Problems

Our experts—Technical, Industrial, Traffic—will gladly study your specific requirements, investigate your problems of raw materials, manufacturing processes, transportation and give you an unbiased report as to the adaptability of Hopewell (plant sites, present available equipment, raw materials, etc.) to your special needs. GREETING BY FOCH TO LEGION CONGRESS

LINDSLEY MADE CHAIRMAN

Says the Organization Will Affect Powerfully the Trend of Thought of American People.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 10.—The first convention of the American Legion got under way smoothly here today, although, as Chairman Henry D. Lindsley of Texas expressed it, "The convention has no powers, and I hope no legion convention ever will have a program."

The importance of decisions which would be expressed of the various committees was emphasized, however, by Mr. Lindsley when he declared the legion "would affect the trend of thought of the American people as no other organization has ever done."

"The report of the Advance Committee of the legion, advocating laws to curb the activities of radical aliens; investigation of the present critical industrial situation, and definite pronouncement as to what legislation ex-service men may want of Congress was presented by Chairman Lindsley and Secretary Hopper Wood.

Henry D. Lindsley of Texas was chosen Permanent Chairman of the convention and Sergeant Jack Sullivan of Washington, Vice Chairman, with other officers of the legion continued during the convention. Bennett Clark of Missouri was nominated from the floor for Vice Chairman, but was defeated.

Greetings from Marshal Foch, Allied Commander in Chief, were transmitted by J. J. Jusserand, French Ambassador to the United States. Marshal Foch's message follows:

"My Valiant War Companions: The 11th of November, 1918, saw the capitulation of the enemy vanquished Germany was craving for mercy and she delivered over to us such trophies as history has never known.

"This was indeed the victory of the allied armies, who ardently fighting had united in a supreme, continuous, and violent effort all their energies as they had united all their hopes.

"With head erect, the valiant American fighters of the Argonne, of the Meuse, of the Somme, of Flanders, after hard days, resumed once more, by the side of the Allies, the march toward the Rhine.

"On this day, when for the first time we celebrate the anniversary of the armistice, I want to be with you to commemorate the past and to tell you that with our eyes ever raised toward the morrow (despite parties and liberty) we must remain united as we have been in the days of trial and the days of triumph.

"Proud to have been at your head, I send my most cordial greetings to the veterans of the great war, illustrious by their immortal deeds, and to those who, in the camps of America, were preparing with ardor to come and take their part in the battle.

"Lastly, I wish to salute, as ever living in a memory of the past and on the threshold of a future common to us, the tombs of those who lie in the soil of France, resting there as a symbol of our indissoluble union."

The accompanying letter from Mr. Jusserand said:

"You may be assured that the Marshal has very truly expressed the feelings of every French citizen.

"He rightly interpreted the deep gratitude which we wanted to express to the convention of those who took part or were drifting to take part in the world conflict, by circumstances which put us hardly, stood by every example of the highest way."

On motion of the California delegation, the delegates stood in silence for one minute, in honor of the men and women who laid their lives down in the great war.

Discussion of candidates for national officers, with at least a dozen prominently mentioned for first national head of the legion, has brought an upheaval of the legion, and a hot battle is raging around Chairman Lindsley's head.

When he arrived here, it declared Theodore Roosevelt, one of the delegates from New York, whose candidacy was mentioned. Others receiving support from their State delegations and others include Colonel Milton J. Foreman of Chicago, Henry D. Lindsley of Texas, Colonel Bankon W. Hough of Ohio, and Thomas S. Wallace of Louisiana.

War service adjustment bonds, amounting to $1 for each day in the Federal service, were proposed tonight in a committee by Chairman Lindsley, as the solution of the much discussed problem of compensating service men and women for their physical and financial sacrifices. A favorable committee report on the recommendation is expected. Mr. Lindsley's proposal, which he said had been indorsed by a number of groups of thoughtful men of wealth, would involve a long term bond issue of approximately $2,000,000,000, drawing a high rate of interest and subject to all taxes "so that they would remain in the hands of service men rather than be accumulated by the rich."

Minneapolis won over Washington, D. C., by one vote on the sixth committee ballot for permanent national headquarters and will be recommended to the convention tomorrow for that selection.

Changes in the War Risk Insurance Administration were recommended to another committee by Mr. Lindsley and were embodied in their recommendations. These include reduction of premiums by payment of dividends through

NEGRO KILLS POLICEMAN.

Member of Force Shot While Trying to Save Woman.

Policeman John McCormack of 370 East Ninety-first Street, the father of three young children, who died last night at Seventh Avenue and 123d Street. William Sanford, a negro musician, was arrested, charged with the killing.

According to the police, McCormack was on post early last night when Mrs. Edna Sanford, a cabaret singer, wife of the negro, came to and asked his aid in getting Sanford out of a saloon at 2,220 Seventh Avenue. McCormack went into the cafe and found that the negro had just slipped out of the side door. He told the woman to let him know if he [illegible]. Other saloons were searched in vain.

The policeman later McCormack heard a shot and saw the woman flash out of the saloon with her husband in close pursuit. Brandishing an automatic pistol, Sanford had fired at the bartender, missed, and then turned on his wife, shooting her in the breast. Her condition is serious.

The young patrolman gave chase and soon caught up with the negro. Sanford heard the command to halt. He turned when McCormack was ten paces away. The negro fired four times and two shots found their mark. McCormack was picked up and rushed to the Harlem Hospital.

Four patrolmen, attached to the West 126th Street Station left their posts and volunteered for blood transfusions, but McCormack died an hour after the shooting took place. Before he passed away Father John J. Goggan, the police chaplain, administered the last rites of the Catholic Church. The patrolman's wife reached the hospital a few minutes after he had died, and when the news was broken to her she collapsed.

The negro was captured by two other policemen and started toward the West 126th Street Station House.

The neighborhood where the shooting took place was crowded. The shots, the police said, drew a crowd of about 1,000. Half that number trailed the policemen and Sanford to the station house. It was necessary for the captors to draw their revolvers to prevent the angry crowd from rushing in and attacking Sanford.

The beauteous and accomplished Marjorie Rambeau, who came radiantly out of the West several seasons ago, is now an established personage on Broadway, and so she was met by a determined audience when she reappeared last evening at Maxine Elliott's Theatre in a new play called "The Unknown Woman."

This piece was contrived by Marjorie Blaine, assisted by Willard Mack, from a Yiddish work by Stanley Lewis, which is said to have had considerable vogue further downtown in its original tongue. It is doubtful if Miss Rambeau, even in her early barn-storming days in Alaska, was ever before called upon to breathe life into as mechanical and grotesquely improbable a melodrama as the highly-colored effort at sensationalism which had its New York première last night.

It is very rare nowadays for a playwright, who is not doing the book for a musical show but really trying hard to be serious, to leave plausibility quite so completely out of his reckoning. Of course it would never do to assume that audiences are going to be particularly intelligent, but of late years there has been growing up among our writers for the theatre a sneaking notion that all the people who come to see their shows will not be weak in the head. The authors of "The Unknown Woman" apparently had not heard about this new movement.

Miss Rambeau plays the rôle of Margaret Emerson, handsome wife of a New York District Attorney, who is running for Governor. His infidelities are well known in her set, but he is none the less strict with her and will not even let her go to the opera without him. This is the last straw, and in her deep chagrin she and an old sweetheart named Gerald Hastings discover that they love one another still. Now, Gerald's wife is addicted to drugs and escapes from her sanitarium just in time to kill herself at the very hour when her husband is off philandering with Mrs. Emerson. He is, of course, arrested for the murder and will not testify in his own behalf because to do so would be to compromise the unknown woman who alone could prove his alibi. She, in turn, holds her own tongue on her gubernatorial husband's promise to pardon Hastings at the eleventh hour.

Does he keep his promise? Well, he tries not to and, indeed, locks his wife up in the State House to prevent her shouting her testimony up and down the streets of Albany. However, he plausibly but recklessly assumes she cannot communicate with the outside world by telephone. She, trusting in an eleventh-hour miracle, stakes her all on central's being able to connect her with the Ten Eyck, and the connection is actually made. Deafening applause.

All is rushed to her, the story is told, the man in the death house is saved, and the Governor exits cursing.

He does not say "Foiled again!" but that is the only one he overlooks. There are all the dear, familiar variants of "Gerald Hastings goes to the chair tomorrow and" "Gerald Hastings dies tomorrow." Then there is "It was not what you think, and" "You called me a—Faugh, I cannot use the words," and "I do not wish to be seen here—is there a room where I can hide?" Also there is another one which runs: "For ten years I have tried hard to keep my self-respect and now look at the damned thing," or words to that effect.

With this material every one does nobly. There are times when both Felix Krembs and Lumsden Hare, who embody the villain and hero, respectively, are a trifle at a loss, but there really is no kind of play that is beyond Marjorie Rambeau's reach. She has such a collection of old stock company tricks of histrionism that the playwright does not live who could baffle her for a moment. It is also probable that she could rise gloriously and completely to as fine a play as this country is likely to produce in the next ten years, but that remains guesswork. There are a few moments of Anna Mack Berlein, of "Kick In" memory, which are pleasant. Of Jean Robertson as the drug addict, (who also brazenly smokes a cigarette in full view of the audience,) it may be said that her performance is nicely in key with the play.

It should be reported that there was indefatigable applause at the appointed moments last evening, several clusters of first-nighters passionately demanding the appearance before the curtain not only of Miss Rambeau but also of Miss Blaine and Willard Mack. The demands were met in full.

"THE MIKADO" WELCOMED.

"The Mikado" filled the Park Theatre last evening with an audience of loyal Gilbert and Sullivan enthusiasts, who greeted with instant applause each member of the Society of American Singers appearing in rôles familiar from last season. There was one newcomer, Sallie Keith, a demure and pleasing person, who stepped from the chorus at three days' notice and sang promisingly as Yum Yum.

Gladys Caldwell and Gertrude Shannon were the other Little Maids, Cora Tracy the Katisha, William Danforth the classic Emperor, Craig Campbell his wandering heir, and Frank Moulan, Herbert Waterous, and Bertram Peacock the several noble lords of Japan. John McGhie conducted an excellent ensemble.

There was a welcome attempt at Oriental realism in the first scene, a picture drawn from the shrines of the Tokungawa shoguns in Shiba Park, Tokio, which was much appreciated by many Japanese in the house. The company announced for next week its first performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Yeomen of the Guard," which is English in scene and timely to the visit of the Prince of Wales.

OPERA FOR PRINCE OF WALES

Signor Caruso, who was absent when the Metropolitan staged its gala concert for King Albert of Belgium recently, is announced to appear a week from tonight in the second of this season's "royal galas," a special performance in honor of the Prince of Wales. Opera subscribers have the first call on seats at the box office today, from 9 o'clock on, and the general public tomorrow, at regular opera rates.

General Manager Gatti-Casazza has arranged a program of four scenes, with an orchestral interlude and a finale of patriotic airs, as follows: Overture and Scene 3 from "Oberon," Pesaelle and Howard, Bodansky conducting; part of the final scene of "Samson et Dalila," Lillian Ogden, ballet and chorus, led by Bamboschek; first act of "Pagliacci," Caruso, Easton, Amato, Laurenti, Paltrinieri, led by Moranzoni, and the camp scene from "Forza del Destino," sung by Delaunois and chorus, with dances by Galli, Bonfiglio and the corps de ballet, conducted by Setti.

Before the "Pagliacci" number, the orchestra, led by Bamboschek, will play the "Pomp and Circumstance" march by the English composer, Sir Edward Elgar, and at the program's close, Florence Easton, born in England and formerly by residence a Canadian, will sing with the chorus of "The Star-Spangled Banner," while Frances Alda, who before her marriage was a British subject, will sing "God Save the King." There will possibly be added, if the music is obtained here, the special air, "God Bless the Prince of Wales."

TWO ARTISTS MAKE DEBUTS

Miss Kathryn Lee, Soprano, and Miss Dorja Madden, Pianist, Heard.

Two debutante artists, soprano and pianist respectively, sang and played to audiences in Carnegie and Aeolian Halls last evening, with the usual manifestations on such occasions of extravagant floral tributes borne through the aisles and excessive nervousness on the stage. Miss Kathryn Lee, a singer from Maine, the State of Eames and Nordica, faced the larger assembly at Carnegie Hall. She sang an ambitious program of Italian, French, Russian and English airs, in a voice often explosive and ill controlled. Her native talent merited perhaps a

New Concert Hall in West 63d St.

A new concert hall at 22 to 28 West Sixty-third Street, adjoining the Century Theatre, is announced to open about Dec. 15 as an outlet for musical entertainments which have this season found an overcrowded calendar in existing halls. Built some years ago, and used for several seasons as a lecture hall, the house has a seating capacity of 1,200, and has been taken on a twenty-one years' lease by a holding company, to be operated under the direction of S. E. Macmillen, manager of the New Symphony Orchestra.

ECONOMY

You pay a little more for tomatoes at Park & Tilford, but you buy a can filled with the luscious whole tomatoes.

THE FEDERATION'S MISTAKE.

Whatever its merits as an appeal or as an argument, the statement put forth by the American Federation of Labor at Washington on Sunday evening was out of place, it was a serious impropriety, even if it was not something worse. When the court has spoken, when a decree has been handed down, there is but one thing to do. The order of the court must be obeyed. It was no time then for the chiefs of the Federation to issue a statement "to our fellow-citizens and to our fellow-workers." The court spoke with the voice of all citizens, of all workers. If this is a government of laws, then the will of all the people found expression in Judge Anderson's decree that the strike order be withdrawn. The Federation chiefs spoke only for themselves, for their appeal runs against the authority of the Government, which is based upon the will of all the people. If the American Federation is a law unto itself, if it can set up a government of its own, then we have anarchy, not government. It was certainly out of place to address this statement "to our fellow-citizens," for the thing enjoined and forbidden by the court is a conspiracy against the welfare and the safety, even against the lives, of the citizens of the United States. It is a conspiracy in violation of the law. The chiefs of the Federation were very badly advised when they "justified" that conspiracy, when they declared "we indorse it."

Though skillfully drawn with evident intent to suggest rather than to say openly that the American Federation of Labor was going to support the miners' union in resisting the authority of the court and of the United States, that part of the statement has been generally construed as a threat, certainly as an encouragement to disobedience of the court's order. That is pretty dangerous business. Whatever it may be or may not be in the view of the law, it betrays a shocking misunderstanding of the very foundation principles not only of our Government, but of our civilization. Respect for the constable's staff, as the emblem of authority, is the foundation stone of our institutions. That is why we have domestic peace, that is why our Government does not alternate between the rule of chosen authority and the rule of self-appointed dictators.

The Federation chiefs have exposed themselves to the charge that they are trying to set up a government in opposition to the one the people have set up. Mr. Gompers should have advised them against that. We are sorry to see that he quite fails to note and understand the present temper of the American people. He is too much inclined to talk, as he has always been inclined to talk, of always higher wages, always shorter hours. All exactions must have their limits, he should be the first to see when he is approaching them.

The managers of the coal strike against whom the court's order is directed will, no doubt, obey it; they would be inconceivably foolish to disobey it. Some of them say they would rather go to jail, but they must be blind if they fancy that is the way to martyrdom. They have alienated public sympathy by their conspiracy in violation of the law and against the public safety. At Washington they rejected repeated opportunities to come to an arrangement with the operators through negotiation. There can be no negotiation, no discussion of their demands until the order of the court is obeyed, until the notice to strike is withdrawn. What may be done then depends first of all upon their reasonableness. There may be a commission of inquiry into mining conditions, but if they are to entertain any hope of that they must not repeat their fatal blunder of issuing a strike order in advance of all negotiations. That is not collective bargaining, it has been well called collective threatening. But the merits of their demands can have no further consideration until the strike is ended. The one thing for them to do, the only course for them to take now, is to obey the order of the court.

ON KILLING THE TREATY.

After the Senate had adopted the majority reservation on withdrawal from the League Senator Lodge declared:

> If the Democrats vote down the resolution of ratification with the reservations embraced in it, they will vote down the Treaty. They will have no way, after that, of resurrecting it.

Vice President Marshall's rulings leave it somewhat doubtful if this is really the case; but suppose Senator Lodge is right. Suppose the Democrats do vote down the ratification resolution with the majority amendments, and thereby kill the Treaty. What treaty will they have killed? Not the Treaty negotiated at Versailles, which has already been accepted by nine of the allied States and by Germany. The document which will lie before the Senate when the majority reservations have been added will bear little resemblance to that Treaty. If the Democrats kill a treaty, it will be a treaty negotiated by and between Henry Cabot Lodge, William E. Borah, Frank B. Brandegee, Albert C. Fall, Philander C. Knox, Warren G. Harding, Hiram Johnson, Harry S. New, and George H. Moses.

The Treaty drawn up in Paris pledged the nations of the world to cooperation for the common good. The treaty drawn up by the majority of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which Senator Lodge is trying to substitute for the one signed at Versailles, serves notice that the United States expects to share in all the benefits of international co-operation, but will do none of the work except perhaps now and then, on the impulse of the moment. This treaty has not been submitted to any other nation, and is not at all likely to be acceptable to other nations; as a great many of the men who voted for the preamble well knew.

If the League of Nations is a good thing, let us have it. If it is a bad thing, let us frankly say we will have none of it. Either position has the merit of frankness and fair dealing. What can be said for the declaration that we expect others to work for us, but will make no promise to work for others; that we expect the rest of the world to take the League for better or worse, but that we shall take it only for better? And that is what we say in the treaty that Senator Lodge now has before the Senate.

THE REDS.

When we hear that "the bubonic plague" has been observed in some far ports we are not in the least alarmed. The world is great. Sanitary restrictions are severe. Science is potent. The unclean thing cannot reach to us. How is it about the Red Plague, now spreading through the world? Who will delimit it, who will localize it? Ah, but this is all nonsense. There is nothing serious about it. For instance, when the missionaries of Lenin tried to begin a world-rising of Bolshevism on Nov. 7, there was nothing in it. Switzerland, Germany, Italy, were making merely phantom demonstrations to suppress the revolt of the "proletariat of the world." Mr. Harald Scavenius, lately Danish Minister to Russia, was merely indulging in blague, we are told, for the purpose of frightening the bourgeoisie, when he was saying that, from one single source, the Bolshevist propaganda was being disseminated through the world. In every country, he said, and we have seen and are seeing all too much demonstration of his theory, the strike of the labor unions against their recognized leaders is the prime social-economic fact of the day; and everywhere that revolt is part, and the leading part, of the Bolshevist program.

All authority must be broken. The beginning of that breaking is the breaking of the authority of the labor leaders. That is the road, and the natural road, to the destruction of lawful and constitutional government. When all those restrictions have been overthrown, the new world of disorder, of class and proletarian sway, will begin.

The policy of the Federation of Unions of Russian Workers in the United States, made public yesterday by Assistant Attorney General Garvan, is exactly that policy of destruction. That policy includes the confiscation of private property, the assassination of public officers, the burning of army barracks and police stations, the overturn of the United States Government. How much effect does this have on the "ordinary American citizen"? It is nonsense. "They can't do it." Well, there are a good many of these offensive people in the United States; and they are not conscious that they can't do it. They are trying very hard to do it. They have, to start on, a large element in the alien and foreign-speaking population of the United States. They have an unknown number of natives sympathetic with their motives. They have five hundred or more publications working for their side. Among the three thousand or more foreign-language publications in the United States they have a good many more friends and colporteurs than that. They are endowed for their work of massacre and ruin by wealthy half-baked Americans, the list of whom the Department of Justice declines to publish.

On Saturday night twenty-five tons of "radical literature" was seized in the raids on seventy-one radical headquarters. Twenty-five tons are seized with great, and doubtless just, celebration on the part of the authorities. Do they ever think of the unseized tons of propaganda of social and economic death? The police and the Government get a little, choke off a little. What of that which is circulated? What of that literature of anarchy that reaches 3,000,000 readers, is supported by wealthy men and women in this town, amateurs of excitement? Does the Government stop that? Is it trying to stop that? Hypnotized by a false theory of the "liberty" of the press, do the guardians of the law see law crumbling every moment, and make no effort to support it, save these sporadic raids where everybody is arrested and finally few are held?

We hear that there are 7,500 Communists in New York. Is it a guess of our active statisticians? Communist or anarchist or Bolshevik, what happens to them? They are always punishable and seldom punished. They are always deportable and never deported.

As solid American citizens, innocently believing that what has been will continue to be, and that there are no people in the world who really amount to anything that hate everything that we love, we are inclined to grin tolerantly at the program, the energetic, fanatical, and ferocious program, of world-revolution of the Russian adapters of Marxism. Hordes of ignorant aliens, speaking not a word of English, their minds subject without correction to what we regard as the mad Russian doctrine, are in the United States. A too large class of amateurs, corresponding in a way to the "enlightened" French noblesse in 1789, are in the United States. Still, there isn't anything in it, is there? In Madison Square Garden Sunday night some 11,000 New Yorkers assembled to cheer for the Russian Soviet, which is not yet the government of this country. With a sinister significance, the applauders of class government in Russia cheered also the coal mine strikers and the steel strikers. As former Minister Scavenius says, "all, or nearly "all, present and recent strikes have "been carried out against the wishes "or over the heads of the men's own "leaders and usual trades union or-"ganizations." It is for the sober and conservative members, the majority, of those organizations to consider what puppet part they are playing in the great drama of disorganization staged by the Bolshevist movement. As to what the American people think and will do, if it has to be done, in regard to these attempts to break down their government, there is no doubt.

THE HOUSE'S RAILWAY PLAN.

The bill reported by Representative Esch's committee is to have the right of way in the House after today, and is likely to be passed before Senator Cummins's plan. The difference between the two plans is so great that there is no likelihood that either will displace the other, nor is it desirable that either should until there is greater agreement upon the contentious points. The most conspicuous difference, although not the most important, is the treatment of the strike difficulty. The Cummins plan resembles the Lever law in making strikes criminal and providing punishment for them. The Esch plan provides for damages for either strikes or lockouts in violation of contract. Both plans have provisions for adjusting differences of opinions about wages, but the differences are in details, not in principle as in respect to strikes.

The Esch bill avoids punitive methods because laws in several countries have failed either to prevent strikes on railways, or in finding practicable methods of punishment. It is an argument from experience, not from principle. Strikes are sometimes criminal, and ought to be punishable, but the way has not yet been found. On the other hand, the way has been found to make unions pay for the damages they do, and they have been mulcted whenever their acts have been of the sort which ought to be punished, and when the prosecution has been sufficiently determined. It is a reproach to the enactment of law that enactments and exceptions are passed in the same breath, and it is a reproach to the administration of law that private prosecutions have shown the way to make labor respect the law even without the Esch bill. It is a cumulation of law rather than a new enactment, and it might even be thought a mitigation of present law, for it limits damages to the amount of common property held by unions, although under present law damages have been recovered even from individual unionists' property.

On the longer view strikes are so few and brief on railways that the provisions affecting permanent interests are more important, although at the moment less interesting. The Esch bill leaves the [illegible] question where it is, merely providing that rates shall provide a "fair return" upon the value of the property used. No provision is made for adjusting differences of opinion about rates as there is about wages. The Cummins proposal is to set up another commission to instruct the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Esch bill leaves the Interstate Commerce Commission in control, apparently on the belief that the commission's education has now reached the stage of recognizing that rates are not just and reasonable unless they provide a fair return to the owners of property as well as good service to shippers, and fair wages to workers. There have been signs of this growing perception among some of the commission, and if the others resist the logic of experience it would be better to build up the present commission with suitable material than to multiply commissions, with all the chances of untried machinery and new phraseology for judicial definition, running over years, no doubt.

The bills resemble each other in their provision that there shall be an interval after the return of the roads to private operation, during which present conditions shall endure until altered by experience under future conditions. The Senate bill attacks the difficulty about making the same rates for weak and strong roads, with the further difficulty about excess profits for some roads and financial trouble for others, by providing for great combinations of railways, with rates for regions and an average return which the weak roads may earn, and above which the profits of strong roads are reduced. The Esch bill provides for supervision of the apportionment of joint rates. Hitherto the commission has prorated the haul, although the costs of service are often greater on the short lines, and although the profits of the longer lines are increased disproportionately by the traffic originating on their own lines. There are many cases in which strong roads by stock ownership control weak roads in disregard of the interests of minority investors. The strong roads make their profit on the business done, and there is no reward for those whose money built the facilities. As the bill is over eighty pages long it will be understood that many details are not mentioned. The high points of comparison suffice for a judgment as to whether the permanent legislation should be hastened until there is better agreement upon the fundamentals. It would be desirable that the measure which is to survive should not become part of the Presidential campaign, but that may be the result of Congress's dallying with the subject for the past year.

GEN. SHERWOOD'S FIELD DAY.

The House of Representatives had the pleasure the other day of hearing that veteran General Isaac R. Sherwood fight his battles over. Members stood up and cheered his eloquent periods. It was a field day for the General, who is in his eighty-fifth year. He fought gallantly in the civil war and he has a rare gift of expression. His description of Franklin, where both sides suffered severe losses, made the pulse beat faster. Before he began his vivid recital he called upon the Military Affairs Committee to "tell the House and the "country when and where General "Pershing was at the front during "any of the great conflicts of this "World War." Then he informed the House that he had talked with many "overseas soldiers," all of whom declared that "they never saw "or heard of General Pershing at "the front."

But before plunging in medias res General Sherwood explained why Congress had never granted General William R. Shafter supreme rank, or acclaimed him a hero, for winning the battle of Santiago; it was because he was "six miles in the rear" on the day of battle. General Sherwood is mistaken about the distance. Shafter, sick enough from fever to be in a hospital on July 1, 1898, saw the fighting from a rise of ground not far from the front, in range of the Spanish Mausers, and was as near the thick of things as a Commander in Chief should ever be. Of his courage there could be no question. He had won the Medal of Honor by "most "distinguished gallantry in the battle "of Fair Oaks, Virginia, May 31, "1862," refusing to leave the field, although wounded, until the close of the engagement.

General Sherwood, as Colonel of the 111th Ohio, was at Franklin. "The hottest part of the line," according to General Basil Duke of Kentucky, "was a black locust "thicket just at the right of the "Columbia Pike." To the House General Sherwood said: "This is "correct; I was at that part of the "line." And the following recital of experience evoked the applause (in brackets) of his hearers: "My horse "Firefly, a coal black that I had "ridden in many fierce conflicts from "Rocky Face to Atlanta, was shot. "He fell with a deadening thud. I "never knew how many bullets "pierced his quivering body." How General John B. Hood, a target for Federal sharpshooters, coolly surveyed the Union Army through his glasses from the large linden tree (still standing) on the ridge at Franklin; how General Pat Cleburne's [illegible], a chestnut horse, and afterward on foot, led a charge against the Federal line and fell mortally wounded; how General John Adams rushed up on the parapet, and was fatally shot, his "horse falling across the breast-"works"; and how other Generals exposed themselves and gave up their lives—all this Representative Sherwood described to the House in words that made his hearers break into thunders of applause. He had, he said, witnessed the "agonizing aftermath of forty battlefields."

From General Sherman to the newest Brigadier, all the civil war commanders sought the post of danger where the fire was galling. General Sherwood passed them in review grandiloquently. As to Franklin, "more Brigadiers and Major Generals "were killed in that eight-hour fight "than in the whole World War of "four years and over where nearly "18,000,000 soldiers were in the hell "of battle." (Applause.) It was a rash statement. The purpose of these civil war reminiscences was obviously to cast a reflection upon General Pershing's reputation. Since Representative Sherwood's field day in the House scores of letters from American soldiers have been received by the Military Affairs Committee testifying to their General's presence at the front in France at different times. In more than one of them General Sherwood is reminded that methods of warfare have changed since the civil war. Ex-Sergeant P. J. Lindew of the Thirty-third Division wants the committee to tell General Sherwood that the veterans of the A. E. F. are "sick" of such charges as he and Representatives Schall and Bland have made against the Commander in Chief.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Amateurs Will Be Resentful. As all common folk are suavely informed by the President of the Royal Society that Dr. Einstein's deductions from the behavior of light as observed during an eclipse cannot be put in language comprehensible to them, they are under no obligations to worry their heads, already tired by contemplation of so many other hard problems, about this addition to the number. Still, almost everybody who has read the story of the apple has a sort of affection for Sir Isaac Newton, and a general uneasiness of mind will be created by the current assertions that while the long-revered law of gravitation remains good enough for everybody except the mathematicians, the latter, for reasons comprehensible only to themselves, now hold it to be not always and everywhere true.

This is news distinctly shocking, and apprehensions for the safety of confidence even in the multiplication table will arise. It is a pity that the Wise Ones told us anything at all about this new scandal in scientific circles, if they cannot tell us more, for, somehow, what they do say hints less at the impossibility of making us understand the Einstein discovery than at an inclination to keep a particularly interesting thing to themselves.

Quite the most disturbing feature of the situation is the assumption that only men of wonderful learning have the ability, and therefore the right, to see what meaning there is in the fact that light, being subject to a turning from the straight path by a mass of matter like the sun, must itself have of matter at least the quality of weight. Not a few mathematicians who are merely modest amateurs can at least glimpse significance in that, and it is hard to avoid the suspicion that if the masters could do any more they wouldn't recoil from the task of putting what it means to them into words for the rest of us at least to mull over. If we gave it up, no harm would be done, for we are used to that, but to have the giving up done for us is—well, just a little irritating.

They Have Already a Geometry. Years and years ago certain mathematicians who had tired of accepting the assumptions of Euclid as of self-evident truth said to themselves: "Go to! Let us assume that parallel lines do meet, and see what happens." What happened was that they found it possible to build up a new geometry, just as elaborate, just as well reasoned, and just as well demonstrated as Euclid's. They called it "metageometry," and greatly enjoyed the attention they attracted. If those innovators were still alive they could get, apparently, out of the Einstein observations and deductions an excuse for saying to all and sundry, "We told you so!"

They did, though they were considerably less serious about it than they should have been to establish a posthumous reputation as prophets wise before the time.

It remains to be seen what bearing the Einstein discovery has upon the old syllogism that constitutes what passed with students of logic for a joke. It ran: "Light moves in straight lines; feathers are light; therefore feathers move in straight lines." Now, the conclusion must be that feathers, too, being light, move in crooked lines, or at least curved ones, and that fits in better with experience than did the old conclusion.

It would take the Presidents of at least two royal societies to give plausibility, or even thinkability, to the declaration that as light has weight space has limits. It just doesn't, by definition, and that's the end of that—for common folk, however it may be for higher mathematicians.

Not All Will Enjoy the Prospect. Among the many interesting proposals in the program of the Federation of Unions of Russian Workers is one relating to "certificates of indebtedness." All of these, it seems, are to be burned in the course of carrying out the plan of the Russian workers. There are not a few besides themselves, it is to be feared, who will find a certain attractiveness, at first thought, in this particular promise for the New Day. Debts are nuisances and the payment of them is troublesome, as everybody knows. But are not the Muscovite financiers hasty in promising to destroy all evidences of debt? How about those owed to the proletarians by the accursed bourgeoisie?

Taken the world over, such debts run up into the millions of millions, for the working folk are the real creditor class everywhere, and "the rich," not the poor, are the habitual borrowers.

Almost the entirety of indebtedness that will go into the fire if all Bo[illegible] are the little books acknowledging the deposit of money in savings banks. Not all of these are held by poor people, but the great majority of them are, and, judging from what happens when savings bank depositors who are not rich doubt the solvency of one of those institutions and make a run on it, they would not really be pleased to have their pass books burned or think it a favor to them.

A Corporation Goes on a Strike. As the people of Toledo had for their street car company the enthusiastic lack of affection which it seems to be the fate of such corporations everywhere to excite, there was no difficulty in getting the inhabitants of the city to vote their company's cars off its streets until it stopped charging six cents fare and two cents for transfers. That vote, however, was cast on an understanding—by the voters—not that the company would remove its cars from the streets, but that it would return to a straight five-cent fare. Instead, with truly malignant docility and between two days, it deported all its cars into the State of Michigan, and the Toledans found themselves the winners of a most inconvenient victory against the hated foe.

They were confronted with a painful alternative—that of riding in automobiles at a cost considerably greater than the rates they had held intolerable, or of walking.

Of course this situation will not last long. A compromise of one sort or another is inevitable, but the warning to be found in Toledo's attempt at compulsion by exclusion should be heeded in other cities where the desire to ride at what the street car companies declare to be less than cost might lead to action of like unwisdom.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial article, "Prohibition and Its Friends," you said at the close of the second paragraph that the view is held by allied citizens that a man "who has once antagonized the Anti-Saloon League is thereafter debarred from holding public office."

As far as the Anti-Saloon League is concerned, the complete answer to that is our indorsement of Charles H. Betts of Wayne County for Assemblyman. You know that there was no more pronounced opponent of the League than Mr. Betts a few years ago. I could cite other instances, but that is sufficient to establish the principle. We don't care a continental whether a man has once antagonized the League, because we deal with the immediate present issue and have supported many a man who has decided to get on the right side of this question.

The worst thing about the statement you made is that you have not comprehended the difference between Haskell's standing for a referendum, and on the other hand Haskell's statement assailing the Constitution as oppressive and iniquitous. We worked for a referendum for twenty years, and if that had been the legal procedure in the case of a national amendment we would have welcomed it, but that is settled and the referendum hasn't anything to do with it. Mr. Haskell's offense was in his appeal to the lawless element, a sufficient quantity of which apparently came over from the Democratic Party of Brooklyn to put him in the lead.

ANDREW B. WOOD,

New York, Nov. 8, 1919.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

All thoughtful minds will agree with Attorney General Palmer's statement that "this is a critical hour in the life of our country;" and that "the test is being made whether the Government has the right and the power to protect all the people from a national disaster which would be inflicted upon them by a single group for its own advantage." And also as to his declaration that "no Government worthy of the name can permit the strike weapon to be used to enforce the demands of a single class of workers at the expense of all the people."

The perils from within our social order from those who hold and propagate the doctrines of communism, socialism, and radical notions which tend to overturn our Government and institutions of true freedom based on wisely ordained constitutions, must be firmly met and resisted. There should be no compromise with principle, no concession to clamorous and defiant elements which might induce the reign of anarchy or the blight of social and economic chaos.

It should ever be borne in mind and everywhere taught that the individual good and national safety are bound up in the vigilant maintenance of the law and public justice.

THOS. F. WILKINSON.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am a Canadian spending a few months' holidays in and about New York. One of the first things I did on reaching your country was to purchase a small book of twelve 2-cent stamps and to look up therein the rate of postage to Canada. I saw that the letter rate to Canada was 3 cents for the first ounce. Fortunately since that time some kind countryman of yours has informed me that the stamp folder (sold by the Post Office authorities) contains absolutely inaccurate information and that I have been squandering 1 cent on every letter to Canada. I trust this letter may put other Canadians on their guard against a similar mistake.

ARMISTICE DAY AND A GOLD STAR.

When the armistice news worldwide had flown,
A little gray mother across the sea—
Robbed by the war, bereft, alone—
And a two-edged sword in her heart had she!

"Was it for this I bore a son,
Dearer than life itself to me?
Ah, but 'tis well for mother hearts
What the future holds we may not see—
Flesh of my flesh, bone of my bone,
In my sad old age to be left alone.

"Was it for this I watched him grow—
Never to hear his voice again,
Or see him with his soldier's kit
Come swinging down the old home-lane?

"Was it for this? Yes! Even so.
Nor time nor space can take from me
That joy the childless may not know—
The priceless joy—his memory!
For as long as this world in its orbit runs,
Mothers of men must give their sons!"

So this little gray mother whom war had led Through sorrow's waters, deep and wide,
Looked away to that Country far ahead
Where they still "carry on"—our glorious dead,
Who for honor's name have lived and died!

LUSITANIA'S CAPTAIN QUITS.

Commodore Turner of Cunard Line Retired at Age Limit of 63.

Word was received yesterday from Liverpool by the officers of the steamship Royal George that Captain William T. Turner, commodore of the Cunard Line, who commanded the Lusitania when she was torpedoed off the Irish Coast on May 7, 1915, and later the Ivernia, torpedoed on Jan. 1, 1917, in the Mediterranean, had retired after fifty years' sea service. He had been forty-one years with the Cunard Line and is 63 years old, which is the company's age limit for commanders.

Captain Turner was recently criticised in the Admiralty paper read before Parliament concerning the loss of the Lusitania, which stated that he had disobeyed the instructions by reducing speed, going close into the land instead of keeping out in mid-channel and in not zig-zagging. His brother shipmasters said that while he might not have carried out the Admiralty instructions concerning the course and manoeuvering, he was not to blame for reducing speed, as six boilers in the Lusitania were shut down in January, 1915, which brought the big liner down from 25 knots to 20 or 21 knots at the best.

In the Ivernia the Captain was in very hard luck, for he had only relieved Captain Arthur Rostron four hours before he steamed to sea and was torpedoed. That was his last seagoing command. Since then Captain Turner has been relief Captain at Glasgow and Liverpool.

He had another accident in the war early in 1915 as commander of the auxiliary cruiser Aquitania when she rammed a big freighter in the Irish Sea and stove her bow in, but a naval officer was in charge of the bridge at the time.

Captain Turner commanded the Lusitania and Mauretania when they made some of their fastest runs between New York and Liverpool and docked the Aquitania at the Cunard pier, foot of West Fourteenth Street, in nineteen minutes on her first voyage, which was a record for such a big ship.

Captain Turner is a first-class navigator and seaman and is regarded in New York and Liverpool as one of the ablest shipmasters in the Atlantic trade. Pilots describe him as a wizard in docking a ship and a man who has the fullest confidence in his own ability to handle a situation. The early part of his nautical career was passed in sailing ships trading round the Cape of Good Hope and Cape Horn.

ART SALE AT BIJOU THEATRE.

Collection of Major George Paget at Auction Thursday.

There are many occasions upon which the sale of art objects becomes drama, but a theatrical setting is a novelty. At the Bijou Theatre on Thursday and Friday afternoons the collection of Major George Paget, with a number of additions, will be sold at auction by Karl Freund. The things will be on view until Nov. 12 at Delmonico's. They make a delightful group, with a dominant eighteenth century flavor, in spite of many objects belonging to earlier periods.

Letter boxes and candlesticks, maps and pictures done in silk needlework, Louis XVI. fashions, illustrated in "gravures habillés," inkstands and consoles, paper weights and barometers are among the charming trifles made important by the beautiful workmanship of the eighteenth century, and the color has the pleasant gravity characteristic of the best work of that century, but not always credited to it.

The pictures, also, are serious and pleasant in character, and extremely varied in subject. Two of the most interesting from their rarity are little panels credited to the sixteenth century Flemish artist Floris, and represent a haymaking scene in one instance, and in the other a group of gentlemen and ladies dancing the old dance called the "pavane" on a green. In both pictures the architectural accessories and the landscape are drawn with the loving care of the ancient miniaturists. A later painting of great interest is by Carnicero, a contemporary of Goya and one of the liveliest and most inventive Spaniards of his time.

TYPHUS IN EUROPE A WORLD PROBLEM

WORST SINCE MIDDLE AGES

Drive for Red Cross Members to Be On for Another Week—Kindly Message from Foch.

Sir David Henderson, Director General of the newly created League of Red Cross Societies, with headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, said last night that the league, at the beginning of its organization was confronted with one of the most serious scourges since the Middle Ages—the typhus epidemic in Eastern Europe. "The situation is too grave for the Red Cross societies to cope with unaided," he said. "We have already asked the assistance of the Governments to stop the spread of the disease."

Sir David, who was a Lieutenant General in the British Army, arrived here yesterday on the Baltic. He saw reporters last night at the home of Henry P. Davison, 390 Park Avenue.

"We were unorganized when the appeal came to help the people of Eastern Europe," he said, "but we had to throw ourselves into it. There is a belt across Russia, Poland, Rumania, Serbia, and Lithuania, where typhus has been raging for two years. The American Red Cross, as usual, took the lead, and all the nations have joined in.

"There were more than 120,000 cases in Poland alone in July, and conditions are growing worse. We are approaching the worst season for typhus now. Typhus goes with dirt, and our chief difficulty is in keeping the people clean. We sent soap, but then there was no coal to heat the water. We have sent fresh clothes, but we have been unable to supply enough. There is a great lack of material, hospitals are unequipped, and there is only one doctor to every 10,000."

Sir David said the American Red Cross was the "backbone" of the league. "It was Mr. Davison's initiative that started it," he said, "and it was American aid that gave us our first organization."

The Third Red Cross Roll Call, instead of ending today, as had been planned, has been extended a week in New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut. Major Gen. O'Ryan, campaign manager, said last night that the reason was the inability of the chapter organizations to complete their canvass.

The Actors' Fidelity League got several hundred members for the Red Cross yesterday at a meeting in front of the library. Louis Mann, who directed the meeting, made good his promise to give $100 for a life membership if his fellow-actors would get 100 other members. Florence Nash, Ruth Chatterton, Fay Bainter, Frances Starr, Ina Claire, Frankie Bailey, Bessie McCoy Davis, Dorothy Rogers, Mrs. Howard Kyle, and Lillian Grant were those who took part.

Private A. B. Creagh, who calls himself "The Man of Mystery," will free himself from a straitjacket while suspended in midair in Times Square today at 2 in the afternoon and 7 in the evening. Private Creagh, who was taken prisoner by the Germans, said he would never have lived to return to his home had it not been for the aid of the Red Cross.

There will be another open-air meeting in front of the library this afternoon at 1 o'clock. Several speakers, including Police Commissioner Enright, Rabbi Silverman, Chaplain William Pringle, the Rev. W. T. Crocker, and the Rev. Dr. McRossie will take part. Mayor Hylan, Father Duffy and Major Gen. O'Ryan have been asked to attend. There will be a similar meeting in Times Square in the evening.

Tributes to the Red Cross yesterday included one from Marshal Foch, another from Cardinal Luçon, Archbishop of Rheims, and one from the Union des Femmes de France. Marshal Foch wrote:

"The American Red Cross has accomplished a great work during the war. She has had to employ vast resources to do this, and through it all has displayed a magnificent spirit."

SPANISH CLERGY FOR RISE.

$200 Minimum for Priests to be Urged on the Government.

MADRID, Nov. 9.—Clergymen, in conference here under the Presidency of Cardinal Primado of Spain, have decided to ask the Government and the Cortes for increases in salaries.

The new scale, as outlined by the conference, provides that no priest shall receive less than 1,000 pesetas (about $200) yearly, and increases ranging from 30 to 65 per cent., according to the present salaries of priests, are asked. Missionaries in Spanish colonies to be included. Charges for special masses and other special services would be increased 35 per cent., according to the plan.

There are 1,122 priests in Spain at present receiving less than 1,000 pesetas and 23,452 receiving less than 1,500 pesetas. Salaries of priests, it is pointed out, have been stationary since the Concordat in 1851.

WALES WELCOMED TO UNITED STATES

GIRLS RAISE FLAG CANOPY

ROUSE POINT, N. Y., Nov. 10.—Edward, Prince of Wales, entered the United States shortly after 9 o'clock tonight, and received his first welcome to the Republic at this little out-of-the-way New York town.

Officially he was greeted by Secretary of State Lansing, with a be-medalled staff of Admirals and Generals in attendance, and the band of the 66d United States Infantry blaring "God Save the King." Unofficially he received a far more boisterous welcome from 2,000 inhabitants of Rouses Point, who had waited patiently for hours in the bleak north wind to cheer the nation's guest.

There was no formality of speech-making in connection with the welcome. He shook hands in turn with Secretary Lansing, Major General John Biddle, resenting the United States Army; Rear Admiral Albert T. Niblick, representing the United States Navy; Major General Charleton of the British Army, representing the British Embassy, and then with the officers of lesser rank belonging to the various staffs.

After introductions had ended, the Prince inspected the guard of honor, made up of 150 picked men of the 66d Regiment. When he reached the end of the front rank a surprise awaited him. Rouses Point had selected its twelve prettiest girls to hold aloft a canopy formed of two great American and British flags sewed together.

"Oh! I must speak to the ladies afterward," exclaimed the Prince.

He completed his inspection and returned to the flag holders, passing under the canopy and shaking hands with each in turn.

The soldiers moved off as the Prince climbed aboard his car again and the crowd surged about the observation platform where he stood, smiling and waving his hand in acknowledgement of their cheers.

Then he had another surprise. It appeared as if Rouse Point had decided with one mind that they were going to obtain the distinguished visitor's autograph and had equipped themselves with everything for that purpose from pink pencils and memorandum books to cabinet portraits and fountain pens. The Secret Service agents waved them back desperately, but one woman reached the steps of the car and to her delight the laughing Prince bent down and wrote his name in her book.

Just before the train pulled out on its long run to Washington a man darted out of the crowd and shouted:

"Will you give me the honor of shaking hands with you? I'm a Canadian, wounded and gassed at Vimy."

The Prince leaned over the rail and shook him heartily by the hand and the train was off.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The Prince of Wales will arrive in Washington at noon tomorrow for a three-day sojourn in the American capital, and at 3 o'clock will call on Mrs. Wilson at the White House. President Wilson has expressed a desire to meet the Prince and Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, the President's physician, said today that the President's health would permit him to do so.

During the afternoon the Prince will receive and return calls. Vice President Marshall will give a formal dinner in honor of the Prince at the Belmont home in the evening, and this will complete the first day's program.

THE SCREEN

Any one would expect a motion picture full of Elsie Janis to be full of snap and pep, bright and brisk, jolly and friendly from start to finish—and that's just what "A Regular Girl" is. It is the first of Miss Janis's pictures for the Selznick company, and it opened at B. S. Moss's Broadway Theatre last night.

One of the best things about the film is that it shows Elsie Janis as she was "over there." There are a number of scenes of her among the boys at the front and they make people realize what a boost to the army spirit she must have been. The "gang" shown on the screen with her very apparently registered the response they and their buddies must have shown in France.

The story of "A Regular Girl" was devised to illustrate Elsie Janis at the war and on the stage. It begins with a society girl full of life but living to little or no purpose. Then she goes to France to do war work, and when she comes back the old things do not satisfy her. Pretending to be a maid, she rejoins her "gang" and when they discover that she is Elizabeth Van Sammithingerther Schuyler, and not just their "Lizzie," she becomes their fairy godmother and sets to work finding jobs for all of them and others. She gives a circus first to raise money and then opens an employment agency. Her fiancé is drawn into her activities and she finally gives him the job of husband—so there is no "love interest" in the picture, but it doesn't interfere with the real "action," which is carried on by Lizzie, Mac, Sherty, Slim, and Red.

Matt Moore, as the fiancé, fits into the lumpen of the picture nicely, and the "boys" are played realistically by Tammany Young, Ernie Adams, Jerry Delaney, and Frank Murdock. Mrs. Jeffrey Lewis makes the role of a boarding housekeeper lovable. Robert Lyton appears as Elizabeth's father, and Robert Ayerton as a butler. The picture was directed by James Young.

Incidentally, so far as the present picture is concerned, only, Miss Janis has noteworthy pantomimic ability, as the many who have seen her on the stage will not be surprised to hear, and when she takes up "straight" or "regular" photoplays later on she will probably be a valuable acquisition to the screen, especially if she has the advantage of good stories well directed.

On the program with "A Regular Girl" is what is described as a "Peruvian Fashion Frolic." Boudoir afternoon and evening costumes designed by Boue Soeurs of Paris, are shown on mannequins, and serve to show the mannequins.

CANAPARY, CAPTAIN OF COLUMBIA ELEVEN, IS DISMISSED AND SUCCESSOR ELECTED

COLUMBIA CAPTAIN OUSTED FROM SQUAD

Canapary Is Dropped for Insubordination and Kennedy Elected to Lead Eleven.

The storm that has been hanging over Columbia football affairs for three weeks broke yesterday afternoon when Frank Canapary, Captain and left half back of the 'Varsity team, was summarily dismissed from the squad. Jack Kennedy, left end and Captain-elect of the 1917 eleven, was elected to succeed the deposed leader.

Th official version of the affair as given in a statement issued last night by L. C. Danielson, Graduate Manager of Athletics, was as follows:

"Frank Canapary, left half back and Captain, is no longer a member of the football team of Columbia University. His connection with the eleven ceased on Saturday, Nov. 8, when, because of insubordination, he was dismissed from the squad by Coach Fred Dawson. At a meeting of the squad at the training table this evening John Kennedy of Manchester, N. H., was chosen Captain for the rest of the season."

The alleged insubordination occurred in the third period of Saturday's game, when, with the ball in Columbia's possession on Stevens's seven-yard line, following a long run by Forsythe, Canapary was taken from the game and Eccles was substituted for him at quarter back. When the Columbia leader reached the players' bench he demanded of Coach Dawson the reason for his removal, and, according to witnesses of the affair, used abusive language toward the coach, besides accusing him of favoritism in sending Eccles into the game. When Canapary refused to obey Dawson's order to keep quiet, he was sent from the field. Later he reappeared in street clothes and sat near the Columbia bench.

The second episode came yesterday afternoon when Canapary reported at the dressing room for practice. When he found his uniform missing from his locker he sought out Dawson and told him that he wanted to continue playing football. The coach then informed him that he had been dismissed for the season and that his successor would be elected after the practice. During the entire workout Canapary sat along the sidelines in his street clothes but refused to comment on his removal.

Fails to Obey Orders.

It became known yesterday that Canapary had also failed to obey explicit orders as to the use of trick formations and forward passes in Saturday's game. Even after he had received emphatic directions between the halves, the Columbia leader refused to abandon straight rushing tactics, which Stevens had been smearing with painful consistency. It was not until Eddie Quigley was injected into the fray that the Columbia offense took the form of forward passing, on which large-sized gains were made.

The dissension on the Columbia team began with the election of Canapary to the captaincy over Jack Kennedy, who resigned the leadership in the Fall of 1917 to become an ensign in the navy. Among the students it was felt that the veteran Kennedy had been poorly rewarded for his sacrifice. Canapary's attempts to dictate to quarter back Eddie Quigley, an experienced player with extensive football knowledge, on nearly every play that was to be tried, also created a dissension that became more noticeable in every game. The result was that the Columbia offense was so hampered and checked that in the game last Saturday it collapsed completely.

Coach Dawson refused to comment on his action last night, aside from the official statement from the athletic association. He had nothing to say concerning the future makeup of the backfield, which suffered two other losses yesterday in addition to that of Canapary. Jack Thornton, a half back and the eleven's most dependable punter, will be out of the game for the remainder of the season with a fractured ankle. An X-ray plate that was developed last night at the Knickerbocker Hospital showed a clean oblique fracture of the right ankle. The injured player was removed to his home from the hospital on Saturday.

Other Regulars Injured.

Charlie Shaw, the only other regular punter on the team, will also be missing for a time with an injured shoulder, but it is possible that he will be in condition to play next Saturday against Wesleyan. Another member of the casualty list is Forsythe, left guard, who played through most of Saturday's game with two badly torn tendons in his right leg. Despite the fact that between the halves he fainted in the dressing room, he insisted on staying in the game and in the third quarter made the longest run of the contest, a seventy-yard dash after he had intercepted a Stevens forward pass. When he weakened from sheer exhaustion on the 7-yard line he was nailed from behind by an enemy tackler, and Columbia's chances for a touchdown were spoiled.

With Canapary, Thornton, and Shaw out of business, Dawson was forced yesterday to send out a hurry call to two new backs—Farrell, the basket ball captain, and Wright, formerly at Exeter, and freshman crew captain last Spring. The latter dropped out of the running early this Fall when his nose was broken. During most of yesterday's practice he was at left half back until Farrell finally displaced him. Eccles was at quarterback, Quigley taking a rest after his brief effort on Saturday. Johnstone and Mossczinski completed the backfield. The practice was extremely light, and only three 'Varsity men took part in the signal practice. Sam Weinstein tried his foot at drop kicking and apparently is being groomed to succeed Canapary in this department.

Between injuries and open dissension on the team the outlook on Morningside Heights is far from encouraging. The first unconcealed pessimism of the season has appeared among the students, who seem to distribute the blame for last Saturday's disaster between the coach and the late captain. The opinion of the undergraduates was reflected in an editorial in yesterday morning's issue of The Spectator, the student daily, which advised the athletic authorities to make a thorough investigation of the football situation with a view to placing the blame. The editorial contains a veiled ultimatum to Coach Dawson, who, it says, "has three big games in as many weeks to put the team through," at the end of which time the question of a revision of the coaching system may be seriously considered.

FOUR MOUNTAINEERS HURT.

Archer, Hager, Ice, and Martin Are Unable to Practice.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 10.—Four regulars were missing from West Virginia's practice this afternoon. Archer and Hager were detained at their homes in the southern part of the State by injuries, Ice was on the field in civilian clothes, and Martin also was absent at this home. Ice is so severely injured that he uses a crutch to walk, and both Hager and Archer are fairly certain to be out of the Rutgers game at New Brunswick Saturday.

All the other men who participated in the Centre defeat Saturday were on the field, and the dummy, which has not been used for almost a month, was brought forth and occupied the attention of the squad most all afternoon. The Mountaineers' tackling Saturday was nothing less than miserable, and Coach McIntire knows that it must be remedied before Saford's men are met Saturday.

TIGERS IN SECRET DRILL.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 10.—Secret practice was the rule here this afternoon when Bill Roper led his Tiger football players into the Palmer Memorial Stadium to start rounding them into form for the final battle of the season, that with Yale at New Haven on Saturday.

The first string men were missing from the afternoon's roll call. All hands came through Saturday's grueling game with Harvard without injury, but the general punishment which is inevitable in such a game earned for the regulars a well-deserved rest, and they will not get into harness for serious work until tomorrow afternoon.

Roper and his corps of assistants spent the afternoon instructing the scrubs. The second and third string players, who did not break into the lineup Saturday, went at it with a vim in preparation for the coming battles with the 'Varsity, which are scheduled for the rest of the week. When the first eleven faces the reserves tomorrow it will find them equipped and familiar with the Yale formations. The men devoted this afternoon to perfecting themselves in the Eli plays and they will put them into action against the 'Varsity tomorrow.

Keck, it is expected, will be in his regular place at left tackle tomorrow. This means that Puffy Bigler, former tackle until he was called on to play end this season, but who was shifted back to his old position on the eve of the Harvard game, will probably view the start of next Saturday's game from the side lines. The brand of football put up on the left wing of the line by Shad Davis against the Crimson entitles hi mto first call at that post. The remainder of the team will probably remain intact in its makeup.

Baker, by his fierce playing, has supplanted Mal Dickinson at left tackle. Whether Whitey Thomas or Mike Callahan will face Captain Tim Callahan of the Blue eleven at centre is problematical but will probably be answered when the 'Varsity lines up for the first scrimmage of the week tomorrow.

The backfield is almost sure to remain intact as it started in the Harvard game. With Strubing, Trimble, Garrity, and Wittmer all playing, the Tigers have the combination that best combines a strong offensive punch and clever secondary defense.

HARVARD FACES PROBLEM.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 10.—Few of the 'Varsity football players who played for the Crimson against Princeton on Saturday were in Cambridge today, and those who were did not go out to the field. Arnold Horween walked out because he was lonely and to make light of the muscle bruise he nas on his back. He will not lose any time, and will start preparing for the Yale game with the rest.

Against the Tigers he played centre, and then in the backfield. While he made the bad pass which started things for the Tigers' goal from the field, Arnold Horween was a much more effective lineman than Havemeyer, whose play at centre was disappointing. Still there is a question whether Horween will be found finally as a back or centre. He is needed in both places, and Saturday at Princeton he was the man who did the most to put pep into the outfit in the second half. If Arnold Horween finally is taken to the backfield again, it will be because it will be impossible for his brother Ralph to get back into shape for the Yale engagement.

Ralph Horween's first shoulder hurt mended quickly, but the injury sustained at Princeton is more serious. He will be able to do little hard work in backfield play before Nov. 22, and if he does get into the game it will not be after working out under any hard playing conditions.

Besides the two Horweens, the only Harvard players who are at all banged up as the result of the Princeton game are Desmond and Sedgwick. The tall tackle has another slight leg bruise, and Desmond hurt his knee again. The big end went home to Haverford after the game, and is not expected to be handicapped when he returns to Cambridge.

The Varsity coaches today took quarterback Tommy Wales from the second team, of which he was captain, and played him on the big squad. He is the second scrub team man promoted to the Varsity this Fall, the other being Lockwood, one of the tackles. Wales has done some good work for Jim Knox, and is not only heady but fast in a broken field.

FRENCH BACK IN LINEUP.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 10.—With French back in the lineup to tear holes in their opponents' line, and with renewed confidence from their victory over Boston College, conquerors of Yale, the Rutgers football warriors were given no rest today in their preparations for a victory over West Virginia here on Saturday.

The return of French has apparently put a new punch into the whole attack. Gardner is also in much better condition than at any time since his injury, and the team is far different from that which faced Syracuse. A victory over the Mountaineers will give Rutgers a real standing that may wipe out the defeat by the Orange.

COLGATE SUBS PLAY WELL.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 10.—Practice this afternoon found the entire squad on hand for the beginning of a week's hard drive in preparation for the game with Syracuse Saturday. With the exception of Woodman and Barton, the entire 'Varsity team was in uniform. Excepting that Anderson's old injury bothered him again, slightly, the team suffered no damages in the game with Rochester.

Browns, who showed up exceptionally well at Woodman's position at centre in the Rochester game, kept up his good work in the absence of the latter today, and Cornelius, who is substituting for Barton at left guard, also came in for considerable praise from the coaches. No other shift was made in the 'Varsity lineup for this afternoon's practice and it is not anticipated at this time that any change will be necessary.

WORKING ON ARMY LINE.

Coaches Endeavor to Correct Faults in Defensive Play.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 10.—There was no rest for the Army team today. Although the Notre Dame clash was a strenuous game for the Army, the men came through in fair physical condition. Herrick and McQuarrie, however, are both laid up with injuries and will not get into the Army's work until later in the week. Boyan and Blaik, tackle and end, respectively, are both sick, and the squad will be without their services this week. Neither played against Notre Dame Saturday.

The Army's defeat was a source of keen disappointment to Army folks, as it was thought that the soldiers would be able to win from the Hoosiers. The play of the Army's forwards was ragged and the tackling at times weird. The front line is in for a hard week's drive under Colonel Graves, the line coach. Special stress will be laid on the defense for the forward pass. The cadets were set on their ears by Notre Dame's overhead attack Saturday. Today's drill featured more scrimmaging and a long session at the blocking and tackling dummies.

HOLIDAY ORDERED FOR ELI REGULARS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 10.—A rigid physical examination of the Yale football players has disclosed that only one, Fred Webb, is out of condition. He complained of pain in his side, and it was learned that two ribs had been broken during the Brown game. He was considerably improved tonight, and it is believed that he may be able to play against Harvard on Nov. 22. His improvement during the last six weeks as a line forcer has been one of the most brilliant pieces of progressive football exhibited this Fall.

Howard Campbell, the former Exeter half back, whose promotion from the third eleven last week followed spectacular rushes in practice, has been selected as Webb's successor at right half back. When Webb retired last Saturday Campbell succeeded him, and crashed through the Brown line repeatedly for 10-yard plunges, the last giving Yale its second touchdown.

The entire 'Varsity squad was turned loose for a walk this afternoon, only Campbell and Captain Tim Callahan of the players who were in the lineup last Saturday appearing at the Bowl.

Parker Allen was present in uniform and will resume scrimmage by Wednesday. The coaches expect to start him at right end next Saturday, although Barclay Robinson played the position brilliantly against Brown. Allen was right end on Aleck Wilson's ill-fated Eli eleven in 1915, and would have played it in 1916 but for repeated injuries. Except that Allen will return to right end, and that Campbell will be assigned as right half back in place of Webb, Yale's lineup against Princeton is likely to duplicate that against Brown.

Princeton money is reaching this city in large blocks, and Yale confidence in the ability of its team to win is so high that no Princeton offers are allowed to go uncovered. The Yale diagnosis of the tricky Brown defense on Saturday was so successful that the undergraduates believe the similar Harvard plays will be solved with equal success.

A decided letdown in the orders for scrimmage practice has been noted. Short scrimmages tomorrow and a long drill on Wednesday will be ordered, but the eleven will get three days' solid rest before the Princeton game Saturday.

ALL YALE TICKETS GONE.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 10.—Yale's last block of tickets to the game with Princeton next Saturday went over the counter at a public sale this morning. There were 700 persons in line when the box office opened at 9 o'clock, the line forming during the night. The sale was very slow, only one wicker gate being opened. It continued till late in the afternoon. About 4,500 tickets were sold. The line extended over four city blocks and grew in size as the day advanced. It included men, women and children, and many of the line bore indications of being professional speculators.

Deals in tickets took place during the long wait, the prices averaging from $7 to $8. In some cases they were sold to people in line. The Yale management insisted on fulfilling its promise to hold a public sale, although the telephone orders received during the past two or three days exceeded the supply of tickets which remained.

MAKING OVER GREEN TEAM.

Dartmouth Weakened by Injuries Both in Line and Backfield.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 10.—The work of recasting the personnel of the Dartmouth football team began this afternoon, when Coach Spears took the men of the squad who did not play against Penn and those who played but a short time and put them through a stiff signal workout. It is learned that Jordan will, in all probability, be able to play in the Brown contest, but outside of this there is little to comfort the Green supporters in the outlook for the final game of the year.

The place of Youngstrom will probably be filled by Weld or Dorney, but this will materially weaken the centre of the line, which was not any too heavy before. The only other lineman who suffered in the game was Myers, and his broken collarbone again put him out of the game. His loss is not felt like that of the big Swede, however, as the Green substitute ends are now almost on the same level with the two original 'Varsity end men.

As the lineup of the Dartmouth backfield will finally be worked out, Jordan will start in his old position at full back, with Eckberg playing right half back and either Grundman or Schulting at left half. While Schulting was used as a full back for some time, his natural position is half back, which he played in good style on the team of last Fall.

BRUSSEL BEATS SERVATIUS.

In the opening game of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players' Class C 18.2 metropolitan championship tournament at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night Sidney Brussel of Brooklyn, defeated Louis Servatius of Manhattan, by a score of 150 to 142. As the score indicates, it was a nip and tuck struggle throughout, and when Servatius ran 13 in his thirty-fifth inning it appeared he might win.

The score by innings:

Brussel—0 2 0 8 0 1 0 8 0 5 4 0 0 0 1 14 6 6 0 [illegible] 1 0 [illegible] 0 2 5 2 5 0 0 1 2 4 8 6 1 2. Total—150. High run—[illegible]. Average—4 2-37.

GREENLEAF LEADS CLARK.

Wins First Two Games of Week-Long Match at Pocket Billiards.

Ralph Greenleaf displayed some of his best pocket billiard form while winning the first two games of his week-long match with George Clark at Maurice Daly's Academy yesterday afternoon and last night. In the afternoon the youthful cueist won by a score of 100 to 58, but in the evening he was hard pressed to nose out a victory at 100 to 98.

Clark would have won the evening game had he not scratched on his ninety-ninth ball. He pocketed the ivory, but his cue ball also trickled into a hole. The balls were well scattered, and had he been successful there is not the slightest doubt that he would have won the block. After he missed Greenleaf ran out the game by pocketing fourteen balls without missing. In the first block Greenleaf made a high run of 33, against Clark's 20. In the evening Greenleaf's best was 32, while Clark knocked off 28. They will play again this afternoon and tonight.

MACY DEFEATED IN MATCH.

Lange Scores Victory in Class C Balkline Billiard Tourney.

J. A. Lange and A. R. Macy were opposed in an American Amateur Billiard Association Class C 18.2 metropolitan championship match at Fuller's Academy last night. For long it has been a mooted question as to which of these billiardists was the better player. It was more or less definitely settled when Lange emerged from the cue mêlée the winner by a score of 200 to 133. Lange made high runs of 27, 17, and 16, against Macy's 16, 14, and 11. The game was featured by some good playing by both men, with the winner showing more consistency.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee it was decided that the opening game of the tournament would have to be replayed at some future date. In the first match Dr. Thomas Tuggle and J. A. Lange met. Dr. Tuggle was declared the winner when he made 150 points, but the rules call for matches of 200 points each. At the time Lange had scored 106 points.

COSGROVE WINS CUE MATCH.

Matches in the three-cushion, pocket billiard and English billiard tournaments were played at Doyle's Academy last night. Joseph Cosgrove added another victory to his string in the three-cushion event by defeating Fay Scudder by a score of 25 to 23 in 46 innings. Both players had high runs of 3. Some excellent playing was seen in this game. Both players executed many difficult carom shots, and until the last inning never more than 2 points separated them at any time, with the lead alternating.

Edward Kirby, the A. A. B. A. champion, won his pocket billiard match, defeating Walter Herbert by 50 to 18. Kirby was in stroke. That was the answer. Jackson Woods and William Porter met in the handicap English billiard game, Woods, who plays for 300, defeated Porter, who plays for 230, by a score of 300 to 218. Woods made a high break of 52.

ROI CRAIG TAKES ELKRIDGE 'CHASE

Runs Impressive Race Over the Jumps and Defeats Seven Other Three-Year-Olds.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 10.—That the Greentree Stable's Roi Craig is one of the best newly developed jumpers and destined to achieve more in the cross-country sport that he did on the flat was demonstrated here today, when he captured the $3,000 Elkridge steeplechase. He led home a field of eight, gaining the decision from J. H. Lewis's Kwoneshee by a length and a half, while the latter took the place from Captain Ral Parr's Esquiman.

The Elkridge, which is for three-year-olds exclusively, is one of the most important of the jumping events of the Autumn season, since it points to the horses which may be expected to do something next year. The fields are usually larger than the one today, but the steeplechase sport is only beginning to recover from the effects of the war, and there was not the usual number of horses schooled and ready for the race. Those which went to the starting post were about the best that have been produced this season.

Roi Craig has developed into a clever jumper, and has plenty of speed on the flat. He was not hard pressed at any time today. The finish was close for a steeplechase, but the winner had the race well in hand. Powers rode a good race on the winner, keeping him off the early pace and saving him until the last turn of the field, when he moved into a commanding position.

W. T. Wilkinson's speedy fencer, War Paint, set the pace, and, as usual, made it a hot one. But, despite his speed, he was not able to shake off the field, and slowed up from his own efforts. Kwoneshee was a contender all the way, but made a bad landing at the twelfth jump, and was thrown off his stride. He recovered, but, in the meantime, Roi Craig had slipped away, and, when it came to the final drive, Kwoneshee was unable to gain. Esquiman ran a good race, but Houdini was badly handled again. This clever fencer was kept off the pace and permitted to fall far behind his field. When finally sent forward on the last turn he was too far out of it to get up to the leaders.

A Well-Contested Sprint.

The Annapolis Handicap, for all ages, a six-furlong sprint, brought out some fleet runners and provided one of the best contests on the card. The victory went to Mrs. J. E. Davis's Ophelia, which proved much the best and defeated E. C. Hildreth's Valor by two lengths. Third place went to G. W. Loft's Tippity Witchet, which had scored in his last start but found the weight too much to handle.

Though this was a race for all ages, R. F. Carmen's Carmandale was the only two-year-old to start, and he did not make an impressive showing. He was off slowly and never got up among the contenders. Valor and Midnight Sun were well played, the Beach Stable's flags being neglected because of an impost of 136 pounds. Valor was favored by the weights and ran a good race.

Ophelia dashed to the front with the springing of the barrier and held the position all the way. Valor was taken into a pocket early by Fator, but escaped before he had lost much ground and went to the outside, where he moved up and and made a good effort. For a few strides in the stretch he appeared to be gaining on the leader, but the latter had too much speed for him. Tippity Witchet came with a rush after being badly outrun in the early part of the race.

My Dear Beats the Favorite.

There was a surprise in the fifth race, when G. W. Forman's My Dear, a two-year-old, gained a close decision over J. L. Price's Marmite, which was the favorite in the six-furlong dash. This was a race for two and three year olds, and My Dear was the first of the juveniles to score over older horses during the meeting. Martha Luckett, another juvenile, was third. The latter set the pace all the way to the sixteenth pole, when My Dear came around on the outside and rushed to the front, to win. Marmite, which had been well played, might have won with a better ride, as he was wearing down the winner at the finish.

Frank Regan's Whimsical Whimsy, which has been one of the most inconsistent performers of the season, was in a running mood and won the Severn Purse at a mile in a driving finish from Samuel Ross's Knot. Siesta was third. There was some bumping in the race, Whimsy once knocking Knot off his stride, but no claim of foul was made. Whimsy rushed into the lead at the back stretch and raced closely with Knot all the way to the last turn, when it appeared as though he bumped the contender as the horses were being straightened out in the stretch. Knot came on again, and the two leaders fought it out until Whimsy went over the line to win by a nose. Siesta was close up and was third, only a head back of Knot. It was one of the best and closest finishes of the day.

Samuel Ross found consolation for the defeat of Knot in the victory of Toucanet, a two-year-old filly, which has shown ability at a mile. This was a mile test, and she defeated King's Champion by a length, with Ireland third. Sister Helene, which easily defeated a field of the same class of youngsters the last time out, found the distance too much and was never a contender. Toucanet got the best of the break, rushed to the front, and was the leader all the way.

The first race on the card, for maidens of all ages, went to W. T. Wilkinson's War Duty, with Runnyven second and Freemantle third.

August Herrmann of Cincinnati, Chairman of the National Commission, unexpectedly came to this city yesterday, and as President Ban Johnson of the American League is expected in a day or two it was reported that the commission would hold a special meeting here this week and make an effort to smooth over the troubles which have resulted from the holding up of the Yankees' share of the world's series money.

"The baseball trouble here in New York is very unfortunate," said Mr. Herrmann last night. "I would like to see the parties to the regrettable controversy get together and smooth out their troubles. The commission has been placed in a rather unfortunate position, but it could not very well take any other course than hold up the awarding of the third place money until the American League had settled its internal affairs."

While the Carl Mays injunction case is still in the courts, it was rumored yesterday that influential baseball men would advise some kind of a compromise and clear up the baseball situation before the annual meetings here next month. Chairman Herrmann said that while his trip east was not on baseball, he admitted that he would see President Heydler of the National League today and that, as he expects to stay here several days, a meeting of the three members of the commission would probably be called.

Up to the present time there has been no effort to compromise the feud between New York, Chicago, and Boston clubs on one side and President Johnson and the five other clubs on the other. Colonel Ruppert and Colonel Huston, the owners of the Yankees, have taken the attitude that no compromise was possible and, backed by Presidents Charles Comiskey of the Chicago club and Harry Frazee of the Boston Red Sox, they have repeatedly taken the stand that they would not desist in their attack on Johnson until he had been stripped of some of his power.

The affairs of the American League have reached a stage where the league is threatened with disruption, and the cooler heads of the game are now advising that the difference between the conflicting parties be compromised before it is too late. With baseball in its present prosperous state extremely popular, a prolonged baseball war would be detrimental to the best interests of the sport.

Chairman Herrmann said that he did not believe it advisable for the major leagues to make any advances to the minors to re-establish the national agreement. He is in favor of the minors working out their own salvation, as they chose to do last year when they broke with the majors. He stated that he had received information that many of the minor leagues were dissatisfied with the way things were going in their relations with the Class AA clubs and that many of them favored renewal of working relations. The minors hold their annual meeting in Springfield beginning today, but, as Mr. Herrmann has received no invitation he does not expect to attend.

Chairman Herrmann said he would not oppose any rule prohibiting the spit ball and the shine ball. He said that he had a recent talk with Hod Eller, whose alleged shine ball is one of the things the rule makers are aiming at. Mr. Herrmann said that he asked Eller if he thought that a change in the rule would make any difference in his pitching, and Eller said that he didn't object to any new rules, as he could pitch just as effectively without rubbing the ball against his uniform. Mr. Herrmann said that he believes the shine ball is nothing but a myth in the minds of the opposing batsmen.

BULL BEATS MARTIN IN SQUASH TENNIS

RICHARD IN CLOSE MATCH

The squash tennis season got away to an early start yesterday, when fifty of the leading metropolitan experts began play in an invitation tournament conducted by the Yale Club on its home courts. Veterans of the game were prominent in the draw, many of them taking their first shot at competitive play since entering military service two years ago, and seeming little the worse for their extended lay-off.

John W. Appel, Jr., of the Harvard Club, the present national amateur champion, was unfortunately missing from the red-walled enclosure, having severely injured his right wrist in practice a few days ago. The default of Harold Tobey, another member of the "first ten," was an added disappointment, but beyond these two defections the local committee, headed by A. G. Maisdell, had nothing to worry over.

With ten matches actually played in the late afternoon hours and a few more contenders advancing without opposition, practically the entire first round was completed, and one encounter in the second was added when H. R. Mixsell of the Princeton Club defeated his Yale rival, C. J. MacGuire, in straight games, 15—11, 15—6. Both had come through the first round by the default route, and Mixsell, a former Class A titleholder, proved to be the quicker of the two in striking his stride, winning without great difficulty, largely on MacGuire's errors of judgment.

Bull in Good Form.

Charles M. Bull, Jr., famous in both the outdoor and indoor games of the racquet, made a surprisingly good showing in the first match he has played since getting out of the army. He was drawn against Clyde Martin, a former Yale hockey star, who, although new to tournament play, has picked up a vast amount of squash in the last few months under the coaching of Frank Lafforgue and others.

Bull was inclined to be wild at the start, but ran into a lead of 5 to 1 through Martin's inability to gauge the speed of his shots. Then the newcomer began suddenly to find himself, judging the angles with splendid accuracy, and picking up many a point with soft returns, which hugged the wall and completely baffled the squash club veteran.

Martin collected four tallies in his fifth hand in, and after both had served twice without scoring, added an astonishing run of nine, which brought him within one point of game. Bull responded with a pair of tallies, and, getting another opportunity through Martin's cipher, ran four more in a desperate effort to catch up. He stopped at seven, however, and his young rival quickly smashed out the point which gave him the first leg on the match.

Bull went after the second game without a trace of dismay over this unexpected reverse, and by brilliant hitting all around the court ran up a lead of 10 to 1 in four hands. Both went scoreless once, after which Martin gathered a cluster of three, only to see his opponent put on one more and then run out with five points in a row.

The rubber was never in doubt, although Martin stuck to it manfully and kept the score even up to 4 all. Both worked hard for the break, and made some gets of the acrobatic type, but also threw away an occasional sure kill by slamming the ball straight at the tell-tale.

A run of 3 put Bull once more ahead, and, although he went scoreless for three successive hands in, while Martin crept up within a point of his total, he finally let loose with all his old brilliancy in his ninth chance at the service. Six points fell to his credit before he went out on a close decision, refusing to accept the "let" offered by his opponent. Bull overlooked two of these points when he took up the scoring again, and ran four more before calling it game and match, the final result being recorded at 11—15, 15—4, 15—6 in his favor.

The Day's Closest Match.

J. A. Richard of the Harvard Club won the closest match of the day from his fellow-alumnus, G. B. Rushmore, losing the opener at 10—15 and then pulling out with two games which were set to extra points, both going in his favor at 17—14.

Edwin J. Clapp, the former Yale hurdler and tennisastar, also had a long session before he could claim a victory over E. W. Putnam of the Columbia University Club. The first two games both ran beyond the 15 limit, being divided at 18—5 and 14—15. Clapp then pulled himself together, although his endurance was fast fading, and pounded out the rubber in spectacular fashion for a 15—5 decision.

N. F. Torrance of the Crescent Athletic Club required three games to dispose of J. C. Tomlinson, another Yale representative, and Kenneth Bulkley, the Columbia Club champion, had to come from behind to gain his bracket over H. R. Stern of Yale at 9—15, 15—9, 18—7.

The first round will be completed at the Yale Club this afternoon, simultaneously with the handicap tournament of the Princeton Club, which shares the Yale courts. The second round is scheduled for tomorrow, with such experts as R. E. T. Riggs, Anderson Dana, F. S. Keeler, Livingston Platt, Frank Kidde, A. J. Cordier, R. E. Fink, Alan L. Corey, and J. A. Victor listed among those who drew byes on the opening day.

Several Leading Teams Sustain Unexpected Reverses.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The outstanding feature of the principal English and Scottish soccer games decided on Saturday was Tottenham Hotspur's first defeat this season by Bury. Queen's Park Rangers, the leaders in the Southern League, also suffered a surprising reverse on their own ground, Millwall beating them by 2 to 1. In the Scottish League the famous Celtic team had a big fight against Falkirk, just managing to share the points, which enables the Rangers, who beat Partick Thistle, to increase their lead at the top of the table.

LEONARD DEFEATS BARTFIELD EASILY

Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, administered an artistic beating to Soldier Bartfield, Brooklyn welterweight, in their eight-round bout last night at the Arena in the Fourth Regiment Armory, Jersey City. The titleholder, fighting in fitful flashes in which he brought into action all his ring craft, slammed and battered Bartfield from corner to corner under a shower of blows which rocked the Brooklynite's head and had his knees wabbling. This furious attack by Leonard only came in spurts, however, and when it appeared that the champion was in a fair way to score decisively Leonard halted in his efforts, and Bartfield recovered.

The contest was not interesting from a competitive standpoint. Leonard outclassed his sluggish opponent by too great a margin to make for a reasonably even match. Throughout the bout Bartfield was made to look ludicrous by the coolness, speed, well-calculated cleverness and brilliant boxing of Leonard. The Brooklynite stuck to his task, however, and never wavered, even in the face of Leonard's heaviest blows. Bartfield was always trying, employing every conceivable method of offense, but his efforts were futile. Leonard coolly stepped inside most of his rival's blows, allowed others to land on his arms and ducked completely away from still others, while Bartfield, in his wildness, almost dove through the ropes.

Misses Chance for Knockout.

Leonard had his best chance to polish off Bartfield in the sixth round. Shortly after the start of this session the champion landed flush on Bartfield's jaw with a right as the Brooklynite was coming in wildly. The force of the blow spun Bartfield partly around, and he wabbled blindly into the ropes, dazed. Leonard was slow in following his advantage, however, and Bartfield, recovering, resumed his wild lunges about the ring, trying to land on Leonard. Near the bell Leonard again shook Bartfield up, this time a left crashing full in Bartfield's face accomplishing the feat. But again Leonard's attack eased up, and Bartfield once more recovered.

In the seventh round a right to the jaw knocked out one of Bartfield's teeth, and the soldier looked dismally after the disappearing molar. The eighth and final round produced the greatest boxing of the match. Leonard started in whirlwind fashion, flashing out with snappy left-hand jabs and crossing his right in an effort to reach Bartfield's chin. The champion disregarded his defense in this session, chasing Bartfield all over the ring. The Brooklynite lashed out savagely with both hands in wild swings, and landed several on the side of Leonard's face and on the champion's body. The blows, however, only made Leonard box harder and Bartfield suffered as a consequence.

For the first two rounds Leonard contented himself with outboxing his rival. The champion, with the ease and grace of a dancer, slipped in and around Bartfield, avoiding all of the latter's attempts to land a blow, and tying the Brooklynite in knots on the ropes. In the third round Bartfield landed twice with wild, overhand swings which described a half circle in the air before finding a resting place on Leonard's face. The champion returned the blows with interest, peppering Bartfield with hoover, so that Leonard's blows landed high on the head. Near the bell Bartfield landed with a clean right and left to Leonard's face, but he was forced to retreat under a shower of blows. stiff left-hand jabs, crossing his right and driving Bartfield before him in a fast attack to the ropes. Bartfield was furious to judge by the expression on his face, but his looks didn't scare Leonard.

In the seventh round Leonard several times rushed Bartfield to the ropes, where he belabored the Brooklynite with rights and lefts. Bartfield's awkward poses kept his jaw well protected. Starting the fifth round Bartfield caught Leonard again in the eye with an overhand right, giving the champion to the ropes. Leonard quickly bounded back and forced Bartfield into a neutral corner, where the Brooklynite tasted freely of the champion's heavy hitting ability. Bartfield, emerging from the melee, tried frantically to hit the elusive champion, but only spun about the ring. The Brooklynite didn't hear the bell ending this round and continued chasing his foe at Leonard while the latter's hands were down.

In the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds Leonard boxed and slugged alternately, but Bartfield recovered from danger when decisive defeat stared him in the face, and heard the final bell.

Dundee Gets Surprise.

Mel Coogan, a Brooklyn lightweight, outpointed Johnny Dundee, the fiery little Italian, in the eight-round bout which preceded the principal bout. Coogan, showing unexpected form, beat Dundee at the latter's own game. All the tricks of the trade were at the finger tips of Coogan against the wily Italian, and at every move he made on the attack Dundee found himself baffled. Coogan ducked with his rival, sparred with him, and when Dundee employed his favorite trick of bouncing off the ropes, the Brooklynite was right on the job swinging with blows that landed some place on Dundee's anatomy. Once, in the third round, Coogan caught Dundee flush on the jaw with a solid right smash which re-echoed about the ringside. The punch slowed Dundee up for a moment, but soon the Italian was again dancing about trying to land effectively on his tormentor.

Coogan had advantages in height and reach, and these proved too great for Dundee to combat. At long-range work the Brooklynite excelled, for he always beat Dundee to the punch. In the milling at close quarters, too, Coogan showed superior.

Dundee did his best work in the sixth round, when Coogan stopped for a breathing spell. Even in this round, however, Dundee had to work hard to take the laurels by a hair. The seventh was even, but all of the other rounds went to Coogan.

Disorderly Crowd.

Above the floor was a thickly populated balcony installed to accommodate a crowd of 2,000 comfortably. This precious space groaned under the weight of more than 3,000 rabid fans who forgot their discomfort at the prospect of seeing a world's champion. The attendance was estimated at 10,000.

It was impossible to accurately determine the number who were unable to gain admission. They were turned away in thousands. It was estimated that about five thousand unmanageable citizens trod on one another, seeking futilely for admission. The scene defied accurate description. Only the most venturesome of ticket holders dared enter the arena. They were carried helplessly along on the tide of struggling humanity, jostled, elbowed, walked on, and otherwise manhandled before being swept to the door.

The police arrangements were bad. An inadequate force was assigned to the armory, and was helpless in the situation. The big armory door, the main entrance, was torn from its overhead fastening and swung limply in the face of the surging crowd's assault.

A handful of policemen strove to force the crowd back, but their task was an impossible one. In the confusion several were injured, men and women alike suffering from the wild disorder. These hapless ones were taken to hospitals, while the more hardy and determined "stuck."

JIMMY WILDE GETS ROUSING RECEPTION

Is Enthusiastically Welcomed Upon His Arrival Here—Has Four Bouts in Prospect.

Jimmy Wilde, heralded as the greatest little fighting machine developed in England since the prime of Jem Driscoll, arrived in this country yesterday for a tour which he hopes will end with him in possession of the world's bantamweight championship. The sensational little British flyweight has come to America for the purpose of demonstrating his ability before American followers of the ring sport, against American boxers in American rings. While here Wilde will mix pleasure with business, for he plans a tour of the country, particularly the western section, which will commence in about a week and continue until January. His American representative, George Dwyer, stated yesterday, however, that Wilde will arrange for matches under reasonable conditions as frequently as the promoters here submit attractive inducements.

Wilde's first reception in this country was in the nature of an impromptu affair, at least it was not a part of the official program. Several hundred of his countrymen, firemen and sailors from other British ships in port, assembled at Pier 60, North River, and when the Baltic docked their band, which they call the "foo, foo band," made by stretching canvas over kettles and other improvised instruments, nobly greeted him.

The little Briton is already matched for one of his most important American bouts, which will be held at the opening show of the proposed International Sporting Club on Feb. 3, according to present plans. The selection of an opponent has not yet been definitely made, but Joe Lynch, the west side bantamweight, who gave Wilde a stiff bout in England, is the most likely choice. Under the terms for this match Wilde has agreed not to engage in a boxing match conducted east of Chicago prior to Feb. 1.

Bouts in Prospect.

Negotiations are already well advanced, it was announced by Dwyer, for a series of three matches which will be conducted in the West. The first bout is scheduled for Milwaukee, where Wilde will box ten rounds without a decision either on Thanksgiving Day or Dec. 1. His opponent will be either Benny Vogel or Young Marino, both of Milwaukee. The other two bouts will be held in St. Paul and California, the tentative dates being Dec. 15 and New Year's Day. Whether Wilde will appear first in St. Paul or California, Dwyer was not prepared to say. Neither was the American representative ready to discuss Wilde's probable opponents, evading all inquiries with the response that arrangements for all three matches were yet in the tentative stage.

Wilde was accompanied on the trip from England by his wife, David D. Hughes, who will act in the capacity of manager in the absence of Ted Lewis. Wilde's real manager, and Benny Williams, trainer and rubber, who has been part of the Wilde camp since the little fellow attained the pugilistic heights. The party is stopping at the Hotel Imperial, where they were the guests at a luncheon given yesterday by Dwyer. Wilde, as enthusiastic as a schoolboy, plans a sight-seeing tour of the city, which, while of necessity will be hurried, will nevertheless take him to the various places of interest in the metropolis. Mrs. Wilde is very much as enthusiastic as her internationally known husband.

The visiting boxer was extended an official welcome to the country by Jack Gleason, on behalf of the proposed International Sporting Club. Gleason, who was associated with Tex Rickard in the promotion of the Jeffries-Johnson bout in Nevada in 1910, is a member of the U. S. C. Rules and Weights Committee. Gleason acted as toastmaster at the luncheon where he made a formal address of welcome to the boxer and Mrs. Wilde and their associates, characterizing the little Britan as the greatest boxer of his weight and inches the world has ever known.

New York's boxing critics were visibly impressed by their first glimpse of the sensational little British flyweight boxer. His outward appearance, his conversation, his carriage in short his general demeanor bespoke a fine young man. Wilde was not backward, awkward, or embarrassed in the face of the miniature convention in which he was the central figure. Not for a moment did Wilde appear ill at ease. Wilde has a personality which both impresses and attracts his listeners.

Was Fit Boy in Mines.

Wilde is 5 feet 3 inches in height, and can make 102 pounds for his boxing matches. Just now he weighs between 103 and 108 pounds. He is 27 years and 6 months old, and has been fighting since he was 12. He followed the occupation of pit boy in the English coal mines near Wales from the time he was 12 years old until he had passed his twenty-second birthday. He was married before he entered the ring, and is now the father of two bouncing boys, one, David James, 5½ years old, and the other, Verdun, born at the time of the battle of Verdun, 5½ years old. Both were left in England. Wilde was born in Pontypridd, Wales, about five miles from the place where Freddie Welsh, former lightweight champion, first saw the light of day.

BOXING CASE IN COURT.

Justice Leonard A. Giegerich in the Supreme Court yesterday refused to grant the motion made by former State Senator William M. Bennett, in behalf of Major J. Franklin Dunsmith, commanding officer of the First Field Hospital, N. Y. Guard, for an injunction preventing Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright from interfering with any further boxing exhibitions that may be attempted at the armory in Sixty-sixth Street for the benefit of the Red Cross.

When the bouts were called off last Friday it was announced that an effort would be made to hold them tonight. In the event that an injunction is granted today, the original program will be given this evening.

Justice Giegerich denied the motion on the ground that the matter was not placed properly before the Court, but he issued a restraining order until 10:30 o'clock this morning, when the matter will be heard before Justice Francis C. Delehanty, Part 1., Special Term, of the Supreme Court.

O'Dowd Knocks Out O'Hagen.

Benjamin Outpoints Drummie.

Valgar Defeats Michaels.

PRINCE TO VISIT SHOW AT GARDEN

Special Program Arranged in Wales's Honor—Entry List Now Reaches 1,506.

On account of the unusually large entry in the saddle horse classes for the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden from Nov. 17 to 21, John N. Townsend of this city, former M. F. H. of the Orange County Hunt, has consented to serve as third judge, in association with the two selected originally, James G. Marshall and John McE. Bowman.

The total entry in all classes is 1,506, or 403 more than last year. The Prince of Wales is to be present on Wednesday, Nov. 19, in the afternoon, and for other sessions it is announced that Sir Thomas Lipton has engaged a box.

The judging at the morning sessions, to accommodate horsemen from distant points who may wish to be present only when the breeds in which they are chiefly interested are to be judged, will be on this schedule:

Monday—Trotters and Shetland ponies.
Tuesday—Hackney and harness ponies.
Wednesday—Hackney breeding classes.

Thursday—Arabians and polo pony breeding classes.

Friday—Thoroughbred breeding classes.

The harness horses, saddle horses, hunters, and draft horses will be judged in different classes every afternoon and evening. The high jumps will be on Thursday and Friday nights, Nov. 20 and 21. The entire gross receipts from all sources will be a post-war gift to the Salvation Army.

R. Lawrence Smith, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Horse Show Association, acting on the expected visit of the Prince of Wales and Nov. 19, has decided to close the doors of the Garden from 2:30 to 4 P. M. on that date. This is to facilitate the observance of the police regulations and also to handle the crowd that will undoubtedly gather. Therefore all persons holding tickets must present them before 2:30 o'clock or they will not be admitted.

A special program has been arranged which will bring into the ring the finest types of saddle horses, hackney harness horses, and hunters, with a view to showing the Prince the types of the most popular breed of horses in this country.

The sub-committee in charge of the reception to the Prince will be John N. Townsend, Chairman; Robert A. Fairbairn, President of the National Horse Show Association; Alfred B. Maclay, R. Lawrence Smith, Reginald Vanderbilt and I. J. R. Muurling.

TRIPLE TIE IN BILLIARDS.

Lewis, Nadherny, and Hiral Will Settle Class D Title Tonight.

Another three-handed tie was brought about in the American Amateur Billiard Association's Class D straight rail billiard tournament at Cranfield's Academy last night, when Nat Lewis was defeated by E. V. Nadherny by a score of 150 to 97. As a result, Lewis, Nadherny, and Hiral are tied for first place. The three will meet in matches tonight that are expected to decide the metropolitan championship. Lewis and Hiral will play the first game and the winner will meet Nadherny in the final contest.

Lewis started strongly but Nadherny pulled a regular Garrison finish, starting in the sixteenth inning. He made 50, 10, 7, 8, and 8 in succession and put the game on ice. During the closing inning of the game Lewis was over all against Lewis. The winner had high runs of 20, 17, and 13. Lewis made high runs of 29, 15, and 9. Nadherny averaged 4 6-50. Lewis's average was 2 36-46.

COPELAND IS FIRM FOR MILK PRICE CUT

SEES ATTEMPT AT DELAY

The request of Health Commissioner Copeland, as Chairman of the Governor's Fair Milk Price Committee, that the distributors present some tangible plan for materially reducing the price of milk to the consumer in this city will be taken up by the New York Milk Conference Board, Inc., at a meeting of its executive board tomorrow morning. I. Myrin Nathans, secretary of the Milk Conference Board, informed Commissioner Copeland yesterday afternoon that the counsel for the board had been asked to advise whether it would be proper for the Conference Board to undertake to work out the plan, because if any change were made new legislation might be necessary.

The request for this advice was made in writing yesterday morning and a copy was handed to Dr. Copeland. No reply had been received at the time of the hearing before the Fair Milk Price Committee at the City Hall yesterday afternoon.

Lloyd Horton, President of the Sheffield Farms Company, informed Dr. Copeland that he was not aware that the distributors had agreed at Friday's hearing to supply such a plan.

Dr. Copeland, displeased that the distributors had not shown a more willing spirit to co-operate with the Fair Price Committee, reiterated what he had said Friday that a reduction in the price of milk to the consumer must be made. "Just because this thing has been investigated many times before and nothing has been done," said Dr. Copeland, "don't get it into your heads that this committee is not going to do anything. If I know the spirit of this committee it is going to come to some definite conclusion."

Mr. Nathans hastened to explain that it is not the desire of the milk distributors to delay the matter, as had been intimated by Dr. Copeland, but that they wanted to have a comprehensive plan and not a "half-baked" affair when they present a plan. He said that it was the purpose of the dealers to assist Dr. Copeland and the committee in every way possible. He also pointed out that it was Friday afternoon when Dr. Copeland first made his request and that with Saturday, and Sunday intervening there had been no time to work out a plan. If counsel for the Milk Board does not advise against such action a committee from that body will submit a plan for lowering the price of milk within a week.

It was tentatively agreed that there would be another meeting of the Fair Price Committee on Friday morning. Following the examination of several witnesses yesterday afternoon, an executive session was held by the committee.

W. A. Levy, Secretary of the Levy Dairy Company of Nineteenth Street and Avenue B, a witness, said he was paying the producer about 8 cents a quart for milk. The cost of preparing the milk in the creamery was 1 cent and the freight 1 more cent. He estimated the cost at the city line at about 10 cents a quart. He said that he sold loose Grade B milk to the stores for a trifle more than 11 cents, and the stores sold it, he thought, in bulk for 13 cents. Mr. Levy said that if there were no Dairymen's League he thought the farmer would have no trouble in selling direct.

Neil Strohm of Walden, N. Y., who said he was a farmer but was not now producing any milk for sale, declared the Dairymen's League was run for five men. He was a member, he said, but was not selling any milk because the business was not profitable. With the league in operation the farmers would not be permitted to sell direct to the consumer, he asserted. Mr. Strohm was opposed to paying one cent a hundred pounds as commission to the league, but said that some sort of an organization was necessary. He declared that in June, 1918, the County Company of Orange County sold milk in New York for 7 cents a quart when dealers were charging 14 cents a quart.

Sidewalk Blown Up; Three Hurt.

Two men and a boy were injured late yesterday afternoon when a blast underneath the sidewalk at Sixty-second Street and First Avenue, hurled rocks into the air. Those injured were Cornelius O'Keefe of 407 East Eighty-first Street, Harry O'Connor of 421 East Sixty-first Street, and John Barnett of 1,123 First Avenue. They were treated for injuries to their arms and legs and sent to their homes.

The Fifth Avenue Association's drive for 500 new members in a week was opened by a luncheon yesterday at the Hotel Biltmore. Districts were assigned to fifty teams, which will make the canvass. The association has a list of 5,000 possible members doing business in the territory bounded by Washington Square, Fifty-ninth Street, Fourth Avenue, and Sixth Avenue.

The teams will report progress daily between 4 and 6 P. M. at the association's headquarters, 562 Fifth Avenue. Michael Dreier has offered prizes to the three teams which make the best records. Announcement was made that forty-six new members had been obtained since Oct. 1. Among those who spoke were Robert Grier Cooke, President, Gage E. Tarbell, John H. Towne, R. N. Hodges, and W. J. Fedrick, Jr., Assistant Secretary.

HARVARD FUND GROWING.

Subscriptions for Endowment Now Total $9,414,712.

The Harvard Endowment Fund Committee announced yesterday that $9,414,712 had been subscribed in the campaign for $15,250,000 to be used in increasing the pay of Harvard professors. Boston has subscribed $3,747,004, and the total in this city is $3,425,713. The total from all other cities is $2,241,005.

Illustrating the growth of Harvard, the committee yesterday pointed out that in 1772 the General Court of Massachusetts passed "An act for raising by lottery the sum of £3,200 for building another hall for the students of Harvard College to dwell in." The college Treasurer's records show on July 1, 1904, the following amounts had been received from the lottery: 1793, $8,096.13; 1796, $1,191.28; 1797, $568.96; 1800, $355.44, and 1801, $1,208.23.

Students Aiding Mount Holyoke.

A student committee to supplement the work of the alumnae and trustee committees for the Mount Holyoke College $3,000,000 endowment fund has been appointed to raise money for the fund from the student body. Janet Davis of Altoona, Penn., is the Chairman. A store has been opened in the college post office, where notions, candy, and canned goods are for sale; a circulating library will be started this week, with a charge of 3 cents a day for the books drawn; vaudeville performances, dances, and a Christmas bazaar have been arranged to help raise the money.

GOING UP?

St. Peter—Late arrivals complain that the cost of living is soaring sky-high on the planet Earth.

Mr. Mentwell—High! that's mild, it takes at least $5,000.00 a year to reasonably maintain a home and family.

St. Peter—$5,000.00 a year; why that represents a capital of $100,000.00 safely invested at 5 per cent. Do you realize that?

Mr. Mentwell—Yes, I realized it, like millions of others, but—

St. Peter—Well, Mr. Mentwell, now, that your earning power has stopped, did you leave a sufficient amount in cash to yield anywhere near $5,000.00 to support your family?

Mr. Mentwell—No. For years I intended to arrange for a $25,000.00 estate—which I could have easily done without any difficulty—but I kept putting it off.

Greater love hath no man than that he leaves his family so situated that they will receive regularly at least 25 per cent. of the amount he earned annually. And how simply this may be arranged!

You open an account with us and deposit annually, approximately 3⅓ per cent. of this amount, and at a definite stated time you will receive, if living, $25,000.00 in Cash. Should you die before then, we will immediately pay the $25,000.00 to your family.

WILSON SEES CAUSE FOR PRIDE IN WAR

BAKER URGES EARLY PEACE

Daniels Also Touches on Treaty—Lansing Wants America "Great in Peace."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—As darkness fell over the National capital tonight three huge illuminated crosses shown out from the high walls of the War Risk Insurance Bureau Building across Lafayette Square from the White House, and the celebration of Armistice Day, the first anniversary of the cessation of hostilities in the world war, began.

The giant symbols were formed by light pouring from selected windows in the otherwise dark facades of the great structure, and one of them looked directly down on the square where official Washington will join tomorrow in celebrating the new anniversary.

To the country at large formal messages commemorating the day were sent out by President Wilson, members of his Cabinet and General Pershing.

Tomorrow, in the presence of Cabinet officers, Generals Pershing and March and many other officials, two redwood trees will be planted in Lafayette Square to commemorate the day. An army firing platoon will take part in the ceremony, and later engage in mimic warfare.

At Force School, which Quentin Roosevelt attended while his father was President, a tree will be planted to the memory of the young aviator killed in France. In every Government department there will be fitting ceremonies. At the American Red Cross Building the Third Red Cross Roll Call will reach its climax.

The President's Message.

President Wilson's message follows:

To my Fellow-countrymen:

A year ago today our enemies laid down their arms in accordance with an armistice which rendered them impotent to renew hostilities, and gave to the world an assured opportunity to reconstruct its shattered order and to work out in peace a new and juster set of international relations. The soldiers and people of the European Allies had fought and endured for more than four years to uphold the barrier of civilization against the aggressions of armed force. We ourselves had been in the conflict something more than a year and a half.

With splendid forgetfulness of mere personal concerns we remodeled our industries, concentrated our financial resources, increased our agricultural output, and assembled a great army, so that at the last our power was a decisive factor in the victory. We were able to bring the vast resources, material and moral, of a great and free people to the assistance of our associates in Europe, who had suffered and sacrificed without limit in the cause for which we fought.

Out of this victory there arose new possibilities of political freedom and economic concert. The war showed us the strength of great nations acting together for high purposes, and the victory of arms foretells the enduring conquests which can be made in peace when nations act justly and in furtherance of the common interests of men. To us in America the reflections of Armistice Day will be filled with solemn pride in the heroism of those who died in the country's service, and with gratitude for the victory, both because of the thing from which it has freed us and because of the opportunity it has given America to show her sympathy with peace and justice in the councils of nations.

WOODROW WILSON.

The White House,

Pershing Praises the A. E. F.

General Pershing made this statement:

On this first anniversary of the armistice that brought fighting to an end on the western front, we recall with gratification the services of the army and the country in the war. The great army of young manhood known as the American Expeditionary Forces was hurriedly raised, equipped and trained to meet a grave world crisis. Composed of youth, selected for their physical and their mental fitness, it was developed into as fine a body of men as the world has ever seen. This force played a decisive part in the war and demonstrated that, while we are not a military nation, the American boy has in him those qualities that go to make up a perfect soldier. The achievements of our troops on the battlefields of France have become a part of our history and need not be again recounted here. Their patriotism prompted a spirit of self-sacrifice unequalled; their services have preserved our ideals and our institutions.

Our armies have been demobilized and our citizen-soldiers have returned again to civil pursuits, with assurance of their ability to achieve therein the success they attained as soldiers, thus bringing a new asset to the nation. With broadened visions they return, not only with pride in the high standards of American manhood but with a new conception of its relations to the duties of citizenship.

As we pay tribute to our fighting men, we remember that solidly behind them stood the American people, with all our resources and our determination. This common service has welded together our people. These experiences safeguard the future of America and enable us to look forward confidently to the development of a stronger nationality and a deeper sense of the obligations that rest upon us. The exercise by the American people of practical patriotism during the war was an avowal of our firm adherence to the principles of free government that will continue to have great influence upon the progressive thought throughout the world. These are things which make this day significant.

JOHN J. PERSHING, General, U. S. A.

Baker Hopes for Final Peace.

Secretary Baker's message was as follows:

A year ago the terse message came from General Pershing: "In accordance with the terms of the armistice, hostilities on the front of the American armies were suspended at 11 o'clock this morning." We await now the peace that is to come as the fruition of the work of our far-spread forces. Meanwhile, their number has dwindled, and the forces which appeared beyond the seas in numbers surprising friends and foes alike have gone back again to their civilian tasks.

Some of their number, unhappily, remain in France, or will be borne back to America as symbols of the sacrifice that war entails. While we mourn these dead, we are grateful for their achievement and for that of their living brothers, and in the name of both we may hope for an early accomplishment of the terms of peace that shall finally complete their work upon the battlefields of France.

NEWTON D. BAKER.

Secretary Daniels in his message recalled "the exaltation of joy" which swept the world a year ago when the fighting stopped in France. He said:

It is for us in America to say whether the supreme sacrifice of those who died or the equally heroic service of those who lived shall or shall not have been in vain. The eyes of the world are upon the people of the United States. The easy way is to withdraw from the responsibilities which we voluntarily assumed the day the first American fighting man crossed the sea. That way would make the Treaty of Paris as miserable a document as the Treaty of Vienna after the Napoleonic wars.

Secretary Lansing, in his message, said the celebration of Armistice Day was a "fitting commemoration of the admission of defeat by the malignant power which for over four years had devastated Europe. America must be as great in peace as America was great in war. We must go forward today with the same patriotic zeal, the same firm determination to serve mankind and the same unselfish motives as those which animated this republic in the days of conflict, otherwise the victory achieved a year ago will be incomplete and this anniversary of rejoicing without justification or real meaning."

Germany Protests Keeping Prisoners of War in France

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—The German Government has addressed to the Supreme Council at Paris a note protesting against the retention by France of German war prisoners. The note declares that the holding of the men creates a situation which is not only dangerous to Germany's own existence, but is also a menace outside the German frontiers.

More than 225,000 German prisoners have been returned to Germany from English internment camps. It is expected that the 55,000 prisoners yet remaining in England will be sent home before the end of the month.

AIRMAN LOST IN RIVER, BARGE CAPTAIN SAYS

The sinking of a gray airplane and the drowning of an aviator at sundown yesterday in the Hudson River, off Ninety-third Street, was reported to the police by Captain Napoleon Moorsterboght of the barge Frank Dougherty.

Inquiry last night at Mineola, Belmont Park, Governors Island, and the headquarters of the Third Naval District disclosed that no pilots or machines were missing. It was said, however, that the plane reported by Moorsterboght might have been a civilian one. Last night police launches were grappling in an effort to hook up the airplane.

His work over for the day, Captain Moorsterboght was standing in the stern of his barge taking a "breathing spell." A whir that came up with the wind from the south caught his ear and he saw an airplane—light gray, apparently newly painted, with wings of a whiteness that suggested newness. It bore no insignia that was visible. What impressed him, the Captain later told the police of the West 100th Street Station, was the lowness of the craft.

SOUGHT TO KILL KING, HE TELLS DUBLIN POLICE

Lunatic Had Permits to Buy Revolver and to Import Explosives.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A Scotchman with a police permit to buy a revolver, and one from the military to import explosives, was arrested in Dublin because he said he intended to assassinate the King. He was charged in the Dublin courts today with being a dangerous lunatic.

His name is Henry Ferguson, and he says he comes from Waterford. He described himself as manager of the Ardmore mines, which he said were worth £500,000,000 to Ireland.

On Saturday afternoon, according to the evidence, Ferguson was at College Green, and told the constable who arrested him of his intention to go to Buckingham Palace to shoot the King. He also said he had a taxicab waiting to take him to Kingston, where he intended to shoot the manager of the Royal Marine Hotel and his assistants. He was committed to Richmond Asylum.

"WETS" IN OHIO APPARENTLY LEAD

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 10.—The courts may be called upon to decide whether Ohio voters upheld or repudiated the action of the State Legislature in ratifying the Federal prohibition amendment. With an apparent wet majority of nearly 700 against ratification, Manager James A. White of the Ohio Dry Federation tonight made formal demand on the Secretary of State for a recount.

White, however, has not yet admitted defeat of the proposal, contending that it will take the complete official count to decide the result. Hamilton County's official count, including Cincinnati, has not yet reached the office of the Secretary of State.

A reported gain of 764 votes for the wets in the official count of Hamilton County today would turn the dry majority of 120 votes, based on official returns received at the Secretary of State's office and the unofficial count of Hamilton County into a wet majority of 644. Apparent errors gave the wets a slight majority in other counties.

As required by law, a copy of the demand for a recount, made in the name of C. L. Dickey, a taxpayer, will be filed with the Clerk of Courts of Franklin County (Columbus) tomorrow, White said. Should the election be forced into the courts the final result may not be known for weeks or even months.

ALBANIA IN REVOLUTION.

Italian Observer Says Most Albanians Look to Italy for Aid.

ROME, Nov. 10.—The Tempo today publishes correspondence from Avlona saying that Albania is in a state of revolution and being torn to pieces by struggles between Mussulmans, Greeks, and Serbians.

The correspondent says that a majority of the people look to Italy as the only country from which there is hope of assistance and protection for their interests. He concludes by saying that unless Italy acts soon it will be too late.

TO HONOR THE DEAD ON ARMISTICE DAY

SERVICES FOR THE FALLEN

The first anniversary of the signing of the armistice will be observed in the churches and armories here today by services in memory of those who died in the war and by reunions of veterans. Thousands of the veterans, with members of the regiments of the New York Guard, will turn out to aid the membership drive of the American Red Cross, which has set aside Armistice Day to make a special effort in memory of the American soldiers who perished in France.

A period of silent prayer for the fallen has been set aside in some of the services here, on the hour of the cessation of hostilities on Nov. 11, 1918. Although the fighting ended at 6 A. M., New York time, this period of silent prayer here will be at 11 o'clock, the hour at which hostilities ended, in Paris time.

Governors of six States, Oregon, Michigan, Massachusetts, Texas, Minnesota, and Maryland, have proclaimed a legal holiday and exercises are to be held under the auspices of the American Legion and the National Council of Women. Twenty-two other States, including New York, are holding special exercises under the auspices of the States Governments, although no legal holiday has been proclaimed.

By proclamation of King George, the tribute to the dead will be paid in all parts of the British Empire at 11 o'clock in the local time where the ceremony is taking place, and other countries have adopted this idea of honoring the fallen exactly at 11 o'clock, regardless of changes of time. The armistice was signed six hours before fighting ceased, or at 5 o'clock, Paris time, and midnight, New York time.

Throughout the British Empire there will be a complete suspension of normal activities for two minutes at 11 o'clock today, in the respective local time where the observance is taking place. This is the message of the King, as given out here yesterday by the Canadian Bureau of Information:

To All My People: Tuesday next, Nov. 11, is the first anniversary of the armistice which stayed the world-wide carnage of the four preceding years and marked the victory of right and freedom. I believe that my people in every part of the empire fervently wish to perpetuate the memory of that great deliverance and of those who laid down their lives to achieve it.

To afford an opportunity for the universal expression of this feeling, it is my desire and hope that at the hour when the armistice came into force, the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, there may be, for the brief space of two minutes, a complete suspension of all our normal activities. During that time, except in the rare cases where this might be impracticable, all work, all sound, and all locomotion should cease, so that in perfect stillness the thoughts of every one may be concentrated on reverent remembrance of the glorious dead.

No elaborate organization appears to be necessary. At a given signal, which can easily be arranged to suit the circumstances of each locality, I believe that we shall all gladly interrupt our business and pleasure, whatever it may be, and unite in this simple service of silence and remembrance. GEORGE R. I.

A memorial mass for the officers and men of the 107th Infantry and for former members of the 7th Regiment, N. G. N. Y., who lost their lives in the war, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning in the Church of St. Paul the Apostle, at Sixtieth Street and Columbus Avenue. The mass will be celebrated by the Rev. Peter E. Hoey, who was chaplain of the regiment during its service with the 27th Division.

A special mass in memory of the fallen will be held in St. Patrick's Cathedral at 12:15, with sermon and prayers of Thanksgiving. The chimes will play from 12 to 12:30, and the entire service will be finished at 12:50.

The Rev. Herbert Shipman, who was senior chaplain of the First Army, will be the speaker at the noon services in the Calvary Episcopal Church, at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-first Street. This church also will have an Armistice Day service in the evening at 7:15 o'clock, with communion services in the morning at 7:15 and 11:30. The Rev. G. A. Carstenson will be the speaker at the noon service in St. Paul's Chapel.

The Zionist Organization of America announced that an Armistice Day program would be given this evening in Thomashefsky's National Theatre, at Houston Street and Second Avenue. Judge Otto A. Rosalsky will be the speaker.

Regimental organizations and posts of the American Legion will have meetings tonight in armories and in theatres. The veterans of the 107th Regiment will meet in the 7th Regiment Armory. An Armistice Day dinner will be given in the Hotel Commodore tonight, with Benedict Crowell, Assistant Secretary of War, and Major Gen. William T. Menoher as the speakers.

Virtually every post of the American Legion in this city has arranged a meeting for tonight. At the meeting of the Harlem Post in the Great Hall at City College the speakers will be Senator James W. Wadsworth, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, and Senator George E. Chamberlain of Oregon. The Greenwich Village Post will meet in Public School 41, at 36 Greenwich Avenue, after a parade up Fifth Avenue from the Washington Arch to Seventeenth Street, and thence through the village. Henry H. Curran will be the speaker.

FIUME AGREEMENT NEAR, ROME NEWSPAPER SAYS

Understanding with D'Annunzio Also Is Said to Have Been Reached by Gen. Badoglio.

ROME, Nov. 10, (Associated Press.)—A definite agreement on the Fiume question apparently is in sight, according to the Popolo Romano today. This newspaper says that, with the help of the Allies, Foreign Minister Tittoni seems about to achieve an understanding regarding the problem.

It also appears, the newspaper adds, that General Badoglio, the Chief of Staff, has succeeded in arriving at an understanding with Gabriele d'Annunzio by which the poet will not oppose the solution of the Adriatic problem suggested by the Government.

HARRELD'S LEAD IS CUT.

Oklahoma Republican Is Only 484 Ahead.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 10.—The majority by which J. W. Harreld, Republican nominee, was seemingly elected to Congress in the Fifth District in Saturday's election was cut today from 1,300 to 484 by corrected unofficial returns from 238 out of the district's 265 precincts.

Weaver, who was pledged to support the League of Nations and Peace Treaty if elected, refused to make any statement.

Bad roads, due to heavy rains, are preventing precinct officials in the 31 missing precincts from getting ballot boxes to County Election Boards.

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, Nov. 8, on shipments sold out, averaged as follows: Domestic Beef, 15.78 cents per pound.—Advt.

Ask Supreme Court to Speed Dry Law Appeal; Government Fears Confusing Decisions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Steps to secure an early opinion as to the validity of the Wartime Prohibition act were taken today by the Government, which asked the Supreme Court to hear arguments on Nov. 20, in its appeal from Federal Court decrees in Kentucky holding the act unconstitutional.

In asking the court to advance the case Solicitor General King said that unless an early decision of this case could be reached there was danger of variant decisions "creating great confusion in administering the law."

"The questions involved," he added, "are such that the lapse of time and the taking effect of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States may render a decision herein of no avail, and may deny to the plaintiff in the court below the substantial right to be heard."

CARLESS TOLEDO IN FIGHTING MOOD

NEW PLANS PREPARING

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 10.—The City Council tonight went on record, 12 to 2, as opposed to repealing the ordinance ousting from the streets the lines of the Toledo Railways and Light Company.

Leaders of organized labor, bankers, merchants, and representatives of civic organizations, who crowded the Council chamber, jeered a Councilman who suggested a repeal of the ouster ordinance ratified by the voters on Tuesday, and cheered other Councilmen who urged "no compromise."

Mayor Schreiber, in an address, said that the city law director was at work on two new ordinances. Henry L. Doherty, President of the Toledo Railways and Light Company, knew of these, he added.

One of the two ordinances, the Mayor said, was for municipal ownership, although the voters on two previous occasions have voted down such proposals. The other proposal is a modification of the Taylor plan, now in operation in Cleveland. This plan provides for service at cost plus a fair return on the investment. The Mayor said it was his purpose, with the approval of the Council, to submit to the voters both these proposals.

The traction company late this afternoon began to circulate petitions for a referendum on a proposed franchise, offered the city three months ago when the ouster ordinance was adopted by the Council. This includes some details of the Taylor plan, but is "too much company" to suit city officials and others conversant with it. The company seeks 8,000 names for this referendum, and tonight it was stated that after several hours of work the workers were unable to obtain 500 signatures.

Reports show that nearly 90 per cent. of the working men reached their places of employment on time today. There was a huge increase in the number of buses and taxicabs in operation. Many carried passengers gratis. In several instances where bus drivers were found overcharging passengers they were assaulted.

A hard rain with a high wind made it unpleasant out of doors today. But retail merchants said that trade was fairly good, despite the absence of cars.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 10, (Associated Press.)—It was reported today that the city was negotiating with other trolley concerns to supply Toledo with service now that the Doherty Company has withdrawn all its cars.

Mayor Cornell Schrieber, who introduced the ouster ordinance in Council last June, would not confirm nor deny the report.

Frank R. Coates, President of the Toledo Railways and Light Company, denied today a statement credited to Henry L. Doherty of New York, head of the company, that controls the Toledo traction concern, in which the latter was said to have insisted that "Toledo would have to beg hard to get her cars back."

Mr. Coates declared that in his opinion it was the intention of the company to keep the cars in storage in Michigan until satisfactory settlement regarding a franchise was reached.

Every available motor vehicle in the city was pressed into service today to carry thousands of persons to work. All workers of the city were dependent on motor transportation.

The car riders are paying all the way from 10 cents to 50 cents, getting to work this morning in private motor cars. Under the rate of carfare they were riding for 6 cents, with a 2-cent charge for transfers.

FEAR ROMNEY PICTURE WILL COME TO AMERICA

Agitation Against Exodus of Art Treasures Is Revived in Great Britain.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Much anxiety has been expressed in English art circles lest the Duveens' purchase of Romney's portrait of the Beckford children for 52,000 guineas will find a home in America. The Duveens announce that the picture will be exhibited here and in America, but that they have no buyer in view.

It is expected that with the present trend of social forces many other well-known pictures will come into the market, but American competition for the best pictures is meeting with keen opposition from persons in this and other countries who acquired or largely increased their fortunes during the war.

"They are preventing the acquisition of pictures by Americans," said a famous art dealer today, "to the extent of 30 per cent., but when it comes to paying big money American purchasers easily win."

American purchasers are also meeting with active competition from such English collectors as Lord Cowdray, Lord Leverhulme, and Lord Lascelles.

Suggestions were recently revived that measures should be taken to prevent an exodus of British treasures to other countries, either by the Italian method of placing an embargo on their exportation, or by imposing a heavy ad valorem export duty. To these suggestions Robert C. Witt, Vice Chairman of the National Art Collection Fund, replied that careful inquiry did not encourage his society to think that a solution could be found in either plan.

A juster method for preventing an exodus across the Atlantic, he said, would be to secure by purchase from their owners such masterpieces as are imperatively needed to complete British galleries and museums, and with this object in view he appealed—in the absence of Treasury grants, which were entirely cut off during the war—to all art lovers for financial support to the National Art Collection Fund.

$50,000 FILM THEFT LEADS TO ARRESTS

BRONX FUR STORE ROBBED

After arresting three men yesterday on a charge of stealing moving picture films valued at $50,000 from an exchange in Seventh Avenue, near Times Square, the police said that the total thefts of films reported stolen from the theatrical district in the last six months was more than $500,000.

It is the custom of the various theatres and film companies here to employ contractors to transfer the reels of pictures from theatre to theatre, and one of these contractors is Isidore Seider of 729 Seventh Avenue. Seider left his usual load of films on a motor truck in front of the office building on Sunday night, and when he returned to the street both truck and films were gone.

Seider notified the police of the West Forty-seventh Street Station and Detective Sergeant George Ferguson and Detective Thomas Brady were assigned to the case. They found the truck abandoned at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-eight Street and, after following tangled clues all day, they came across several hundred reels of films stored in the basement of a garage in West Thirty-eighth Street. Seider declared that the films were those he had taken to deliver, and asked the police to call in agents of film companies to make positive identification.

Two men who were in the garage, apparently guarding the films, were arrested on a charge of grand larceny. They described themselves as William Brennan of 633 West Forty-seventh Street, and William J. Smith of 500 West Forty-ninth Street. They told the police they were watchmen and they knew nothing about the alleged theft. Nathan Greenfeld, a chauffeur, of 23 East 117th Street, was arrested later on the same charge.

By avoiding burglar alarms carefully thieves broke into the fur store of Louis Brenner & Co. at 1,056 Westchester Avenue, the Bronx, last Monday and stole $17,000 worth of merchandise. The police of the Simpson Street Station suppressed the report of the theft and it became known only yesterday. The store adjoins the house of County Judge Louis D. Gibbs, who is noted for severe sentences in burglary cases.

The neighborhood where Police Commissioner Enright lives was visited on Sunday morning by burglars, who stole money and jewelry from the home of Benjamin Childs, at 1,068 Park Place, Brooklyn. Childs is a clerk in the Kings County Court.

Another cigar store holdup in Harlem was reported yesterday. Two men entered the United Cigar Store at 2,432 Eighth Avenue on Sunday night and, after binding the clerk, took about $100 from the cash register.

RED TAPE AND TRAGEDY IN A PARIS HOSPITAL

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—Your Frenchman loves his Paris streets brilliantly illuminated. Because he does few results of the coal shortage cause more complaints than the lack of light along the boulevards during the hours of nocturnal play. That wounds the Frenchman's sensibility and leads him to demand, a year after the cessation of hostilities, "Who won the war?"

But what a different chord of emotions is struck by the appeal made by a French surgeon in yesterday's Temps, which is taken up today by all the French press. This distinguished man of healing, Dr. A. La Pointe of the Hospital St. Antoine, was in the midst of an operation when the lights went off without notice and without rhyme or reason, as is the custom in French officialdom, where so many things are done at the personal whim of minor officials. Let the surgeon tell his story:

"On Thursday afternoon a young woman, almost dying, was brought into the operating room of the hospital. She had a grave hemorrhage in the abdomen. An operation which was urgent was begun at once by the light of day. But night came on. The electric light was switched on, and then, while the operation was in progress and without any notice, the Western District officials brutally cut off the current.

"See the sombre drama—a woman, pale and panting, under the knife and everything suddenly plunged in darkness while her life blood flowed. Quick, the telephone! 'If you please, a little light. Here is a surgeon trying to save the life of a woman under operation. Give only fifteen minutes of light to save her life.' But the station was without pity. A lack of coal, the eight-hour day! 'We cannot give you any light until 7 o'clock. An operation, a surgeon, what has that to do with us?'

"The operation was resumed by the pale light of several candles, and as he worked the surgeon pondered. Until midnight this evening the cinemas, tango parlors, cafés, and other places will be warmed and lighted brilliantly. And my poor little patient may die. But what matters a human life? Is it not a war of the classes? And so long as the barrooms, tango parlors, and cinemas can go on without restrictions Paris will keep her smile and put her little tribulations into song."

Ex-Service Men Angry Over Election

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 10.—Disappointed at the outcome of the election held last Tuesday, in which five out of six soldier candidates were defeated, ex-service men to the number of 130 tonight petitioned the Board of Village Trustees of Port Chester to remove their names from the honor roll here in Liberty Square. As there was no quorum present the matter was held over until Wednesday night.

REDS ON ALL FRONTS DRIVING FORWARD

KIEV IS AGAIN MENACED

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Authoritative advices on the Russian military situation show that the anti-Bolshevist forces have been compelled nearly everywhere to assume the defensive owing to the increase in the Bolshevist forces.

On the eastern sector the severest fighting continues in the direction of Tobolsk, Yalutorovsk, and Kurgan, where the Reds have reached the Ishim River.

Stubborn encounters are reported on the northwestern front where General Yudenich has been obliged to rearrange his positions.

On the southern front the Bolsheviki are counterattacking along the whole line between the Volga and Dnieper and are generally advancing except southwest of Orel, where General Denikin is attacking.

Occupation of the town of Fastoff, near Kiev, by Soviet troops is reported in a Russian Bolshevist communiqué received by wireless today.

OMSK, Nov. 1, (Associated Press.)—The advance of the Bolsheviki has been slowed somewhat astride the Tiumen Railway, the Siberian First Army holding at present the Ezts River from Mulishinskoe, on the north, to the front of Galishmanova-Kozakova-Dubenkino-Petropavlovsk.

VLADIVOSTOK, Nov. 3, (Associated Press.)—Preparations for the transfer of the Government of Admiral Kolchak from Omsk to Irkutsk are being rushed and many of the Government establishments are already on their way to the latter city, according to an official dispatch from Omsk to the Japanese Press Bureau here.

FRENCH AGAINST A PARLEY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—If the Poles attempt anew to bring about accord by negotiations among the warring factions in Russia, as Lloyd George said in his speech Saturday they might, they will not act through the Peace Conference.

The American delegation has taken the stand that the Russian problem is not one of the problems for the Peace Conference and its members say that they will stand firm.

When it was recalled to them that the Prinkipo invitation was sent by the Peace Conference, it was pointed out that that action was taken by the chiefs of government in Paris, which was a different thing from action by the subordinates, now forming the Supreme Council. If the American representatives hold out against the conference taking a hand in Russian affairs, then it cannot do so.

M. Pichon, French Foreign Minister, has accompanied President Poincaré to London and it is said in French circles that he has gone there to discuss with Lloyd George first as to putting the treaty into effect, second as to what to do if the American Senate finally adopts reservations, and third as to what Lloyd George meant by his speech Saturday with reference to Russia.

The criticism which the British Premier's speech has aroused in Paris is little short of remarkable. The French Government stiffly opposed treating with the Bolsheviki or in making their path any easier. France sees great danger of Prussian Imperialism in Russia if the Allies cease giving aid to the anti-Soviet factions.

French statesmen think that Bolshevism will fail in Russia sooner or later and believe that those who aid in its downfall will have the greatest power in rebuilding Russia. If the Allies do not do this, France believes that the Germans will. Therefore, France wants the Allies to continue to aid those forces that are fighting the Soviets.

The French statesmen do not hide their fears that the Peace Conference is going to adjourn, leaving the Russian problem, which they think the world's biggest problem, still unsolved. If the Peace Conference does not tackle the problem and the Committee of Ambassadors, which will succeed it, does not the question naturally arises as to who will deal with it.

While some European statesmen would like to turn the League of Nations into an anti-Bolshevist machine, there are many difficulties which stand in the way, not counting the despair of many European statesmen that the League will not amount to anything if the Lodge reservations are ratified by the American Senate and adopted by the Allies. It would appear that the Russian problem would be dealt with by the Foreign Offices of the different nations.

One might look for accord between France, England, and Italy in fighting this menace. There is considerable doubt as to what role America would take in this matter.

The French still support Marshal Foch's plan to turn the Poles loose against the Bolsheviki on an enlarged scale, with the Allies supporting the Polish Army financially and morally. The Poles' offensive against the Soviets was curtailed largely because of opposition of the American Peace Delegation, which thought Poland should turn its attention to affairs of peace if it were to establish a strong national organization.

The French statesmen emphasize the difference between Lloyd George's statements on Russia and the statements by Winston Churchill a few days before. They are asking which really represents the purpose of the British Government.

Nov. 9.—The French reception of Lloyd George's speech at the Lord Mayor's banquet ranges from lukewarm to hostile. Many columns are devoted in the newspapers to Lloyd George's statements, but to get a good view of officialdom one may turn to the Temps, which says:

"The Russian Bolsheviki have just sent out their latest proposals for peace. This time they have chosen as messenger Colonel Malone. These conditions are about the same as those Bullitt brought back from Moscow last March. The Bullitt conditions were good only until April 10. It appears that the Malone conditions are good only until Nov. 15. Always the Bolsheviki hold out a menace. If the Allies will not treat with them they will treat with Germany. But as they have ceased to submit to Germany and to lend their influence to Germany their menace is less now than it might appear.

"To be sure, Lloyd George does not propose negotiations with them. That would make Bullitt right, and he has denounced Bullitt's statement as a tissue of lies, and it would be to belie that which makes his Cabinet strong.

"In reality Lloyd George proposed to recommence the experiment of Prinkipo. 'I hope,' he said, 'that the time is not far off when the Allies will be able to renew this attempt with better chances of success.' He says a little later: 'I hope that when the Winter comes the Russian people will reflect anew on the situation and that the great powers of the world will have an opportunity to bring about peace and concord in this great country.' In other words, suffering caused by cold and by hunger will force the Russians to get together."

ACCEPTS EINSTEIN GRAVITATIONTHEORY

SOME SCIENTISTS CAUTIOUS

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 10.—The two expeditions which went out from the Royal Observatory at Greenwich, England, in connection with the total solar eclipse of May 29, accomplished one of the greatest scientific achievements of modern times, Clinton H. Currier, Professor of Astronomy at Brown University, declared tonight in commenting on the results recently announced at the joint meeting of the Royal Society and the Royal Astronomical Society in London.

As the result of the observations made by these scientists in Sobral, Brazil, and on the island of Principe, in the Gulf of Guinea, Professor Currier said, the Einstein relatively theory had apparently been confirmed.

Professor Currier pointed out that, according to Newton's theory, gravitation would not affect the direction of a ray of light. With the development of the electro-magnetic theory of light, however, it was asserted that gravitation would bend a ray of light as if it were a material projective moving at the same rate.

"It was not until 1915," he said, "that the four-dimensional theory of the universe, with time as a fourth dimension, was definitely conceived. This was contained in Einstein's famous relativity theory.

"According to Einstein, a ray of light is deflected by gravitation, the amount of deflection being twice that predicated by the electro-magnetic theory. The only way yet devised to test these theories is by means of stars near the sun at the time of a total eclipse of the sun. At such a time, a ray of light from a distant star passing close to the sun would be bent, according to these theories, causing the star to appear displaced from the position it normally occupied."

This apparent displacement, according to recent dispatches from London, was observed by the scientists last May.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Nov. 10.—Miss Caroline Ellen Furness, Ph. D., Professor of Astronomy and Director of the Observatory at Vassar, says:

"Einstein's theory is one of the most difficult parts of mathematical physics. As yet I have not followed strictly its application to astronomy. Its results are remarkable and are such that they must be accepted. Since it was made from a study of photographs taken May 29, 1919, it ought to be easily verified by study of photographs of previous eclipses. At the time of every eclipse photographs are taken to see if there are any planets between Mercury and the sun. It ought to be possible to use these for this purpose.

"This phenomenon means that light does not travel in straight lines; that a ray from a star passing near another body of matter is slightly deflected from its original course.

"Ordinarily the positions of the stars are not affected by their nearness to the sun. They cannot be seen when near the sun except at an eclipse. The course of a star may be deflected many times, according to the new theory, and the true positions of stars will be confused for a while," Professor Edna Carter of the Department of Physics says:

"This is the first positive proof for Einstein's theory of gravitation. It is of great importance. Einstein claimed that light was constant only when in uniform gravitation, and that when it came in the field of the sun it was deflected somewhat. His theory affects the theory of gravitation with relation to generalized relativity. The proof for Einstein's new theory seems indisputable."

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 10.—John M. Poor, Professor of Astronomy at Dartmouth College, said concerning the Einstein theory:

"If, as reported in the daily papers, Einstein's theory has received confirmation as a result of observations of photographs made at the time of the recent eclipse, it represents another approximation to the ultimate truth which the scientist is continually seeking. The Newtonian mechanics will need modification. That will be a matter which for the present, at least, will concern a student in mathematics and pure science. But what the ultimate effect will be on practical life cannot now be foretold."

Astronomers and physicists and other scientific men in New York are much interested in the news from London that British observations of the total solar eclipse of May 29 bore out the theories of Dr. Einstein, Professor of Physics in the University of Prague, which, in effect, would bring about a revision of Newton's law of gravitation. They are reluctant to express an opinion on the deductions from the observations until they have full information. However, they regard the discovery as important; but one prominent physicist said that he would not regard it as being of such importance as to revolutionize the accepted fundamentals of physics.

Another said that he did not doubt the correctness of the observations, but that he would not be willing to accept the conclusions until it had been more definitely shown that the bending of light from stars passing close to the sun on its way to the earth was not due to the refraction of light gases surrounding the sun. He said that the theory was probably all right, but pointed out that it was one very hard of proof.

STOKES SUIT OPENS.

DENVER, Nov. 10.—The legal battle over the possession of the two young children of W. E. D. Stokes, New York capitalist, was begun in the Juvenile Court here today.

Attorneys representing the father filed a motion asking that the proceedings instituted by the mother, Mrs. Helen Ellwood Stokes of this city, in Judge Ben Lindsey's court be set aside. The motion was accompanied by a demurrer which attacked Judge Lindsey's jurisdiction in the case. Mrs. Stokes appealed to the Juvenile Court here to take the children under its protection.

The line of attack opened today by counsel for the father indicated that the contest will resolve itself into a battle between the States of Colorado and New York for jurisdiction over the children.

POLICY TO RUSSIA UP TO COMMONS

Will Be No Parley with Reds Unless It Approves, Bonar Law Says.

LLOYD GEORGE CRITICISED

PAPERS GENERALLY HOSTILE

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Great Britain has no intention of opening peace negotiations with Lenin and Trotzky until the House of Commons has had an opportunity to discuss the subject, Mr. Bonar Law, the Government leader, assured the House of Commons today.

Mr. Bonar Law made this statement in answering questions with reference to Premier Lloyd George's speech at the Guildhall on Saturday, in which he was supposed to have hinted at an attempt to negotiate peace with the Bolsheviki in Russia.

He said the Premier had simply expressed the hope that there would be some method found of achieving peace with Russia.

Many Liberals for Agreement With Reds

LONDON, Nov. 10.—While Lloyd George made the Russian tangle chief point in his Guildhall speech on Saturday, the general opinion in political circles is that he showed no clear way out of it. His proposal for a new Prinkipo Conference has, of course, roused hot indignation in anti-Bolshevist quarters. On the other hand, there is a strong section of British Liberal opinion which favors some arrangement with the Bolshevist Government, and therefore takes exception to certain passages in which the Premier appeared to approve War Minister Churchill's policy toward Russia, which is the fullest support of Kolchak and Denikin.

Indeed, British Liberals generally feel that in this entire business Britain has been pulling the chestnuts out of the fire for France, and their reluctance to invest further in Russian adventures has been strengthened particularly by documents recently published by the Manchester Guardian tending to show that the repressive measures taken by Admiral Kolchak and General Denikin have been excessive.

The London Times declares:

"The Prime Minister virtually announced that he proposes once again to throw over Kolchak, Denikin and Yudenitch and all the anti-Bolshevist forces in Russia and to come to terms with Lenin."

In a strongly worded editorial the Times condemns "the revival of the Prinkipo policy" foreshadowed by Lloyd George.

"The origin of the Prinkipo policy," it says, "is shrouded in mystery. There are indications that it was conceived by prominent Jewish financiers in New York whose interest in Trotzky and his associates is of old standing. * * * Its failure was marked by an episode of which the significance escaped general attention.

"In its reply to the Prinkipo proposal the Russian Soviet Government announced that it did 'not refuse to recognize its financial obligations to all its creditors, either States or individuals, belonging to the Entente powers,' and that 'in view of the great interest which always has been shown by foreign capital for the exploitation of Russian natural riches, the Russian Soviet Government is disposed to grant concessions upon mines, forests and so on to citizens of the Entente powers.'

"Since nothing had been said in the Prinkipo proposal about the debts of Russia or concessions to entente capitalists this singular reply appeared as an invitation, not perhaps entirely spontaneous, to financiers in the allied countries to use their influence in securing some form of recognition for 'Trotzky and his gang of murderers.'" [This expression was used by Colonel Ward in the Commons.]

The Times points out that in the draft of the Peace Treaty entrusted by Lenin to Bullitt as in that now issued by Colonel Malone, "financial bribes are also offered," and it adds:

"They are in the nature of appeals by the 'dictators of the proletariat' to financiers in allied countries. In the version supplied by Malone the appeal is supported by the 'hope' that it will not be necessary for the Soviet Government to 'transfer this offer with necessary modifications to the Central Powers.'"

Says Premier Is Inconsistent.

The Times accuses the Prime Minister of pursuing a policy of "inherent inconsistency, not to say unmorality," in spending with one hand "nearly a hundred millions sterling in supporting the Kolchak-Denikin Government and friends of the Allies in Russia, while with the other it bestows moral encouragement upon the Bolshevist enemies of these friends."

It speaks of a vain attempt of the Prime Minister's spokesmen to dismiss the Bullitt revelations as "a tissue of lies," and asks, "Can this practice of blowing hot and cold, not merely alternately, but simultaneously, have any other effect than to cause the British name to stink in the nostrils of all patriotic Russians and to neutralize in advance the sacrifices in money and material which the Government on behalf of the country have made?"

The Daily Mail, in an editorial captioned "Shaking hands with murder," says:

"The Prime Minister's excuse for his proposal is that Russia is being devastated in the struggle between the Bolsheviki and those who seek freedom from their cruel tyranny. The same excuse might have been invoked during the great war for surrendering to Germany. It is vital that hereafter our friends in Russia should be able to point to the fact that all that was sound and honorable in Great Britain remained steadfastly on their side and sternly discountenanced any policy of shaking hands with Bolshevist murderers."

The Daily Chronicle, while admitting that some may see in the Prime Minister's speech a suggestion for returning to the Prinkipo policy, does not itself read it quite in that sense. It says a moment's thought will show that the Prime Minister is justified in discerning a certain trend of events in Russia toward a settlement among the Bolsheviki and anti-Bolsheviki to be reached by themselves.

The Daily News welcomes the prospect of the powers making another attempt to bring the warring factions in Russia together, and regards the latest terms credited to the Soviet Government as essentially reasonable. It concludes:

"There is not much in the Prime Minister's record on Russia that does him credit, but he has at least seen the right way more than once. Much might be forgiven him if now he would go further and take it."

The Daily Herald, which is the mouthpiece of the Russian Soviet Government, says:

"The determination of labor to put an end to intervention has at last taught the Premier that labor is to be feared more than the reactionary press."

The Daily Mail's political correspondent says that although it is officially denied at 10 Downing Street that any negotiations are at present taking place with Lenin and Trotzky vague rumors of a new Russian move have been circulating among the M. P.'s for some days past.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ....5¼ p. c. for the best names
Saturday ....5¼ to 5½ p. c. for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

One-third Production Loss.

In a letter to a customer explaining late deliveries, one of the leading manufacturers of clothing states that there has been a loss of 33⅓ per cent. per capita production since 1914. This, it is explained, takes in the reduction of hours from fifty-two to forty-four a week. But the point is brought out that the reduction of working hours is only half the reason for the decrease in production. A more important factor seems to be the loss of output due to other causes.

Clothing Call in Strike Region.

For some strange reason, word comes from clothing retailers in the steel strike region that business took a turn for the better when the trouble started and has been good ever since. These are not merely reports, but are backed up with orders for more merchandise. One explanation offered yesterday by a clothier was that the people affected by the strike have more time to "dress up" now than when they were working, and this has occasioned their purchases.

High Prices Upstairs.

To do their share of business, even the upstairs clothing stores have found it necessary to buy high-priced merchandise. The instance was related yesterday of one such retailer who will start his line next Spring at $50. This is the lowest price in the range, which will go to $75. The bulk of his purchases, it was interesting to note, was not at the $50 level, but took in the more expensive garments. As such stores made economy and low prices their principal appeal, manufacturers consider the increased price ranges in these stores as significant.

Liberty Bonds and Purchases.

A garment buyer, who was advised by a manufacturer not to exceed $90 as a retail price in making his purchases, stated that it was easier to get $100 than $90. For the same reason, he said, $50 is a better price at the present time than $40. The explanation he offered was that Liberty bonds are not only used for the stock speculation that has been hitting a record volume, but that the Government securities were also being turned into merchandise. Thus, any price that is the same as a bond price is a good one to set.

Figures Woolens 20 Per Cent. Up.

Calculating his prices on the cost of yarns out of which blanket samples will be made for the Fall (1920) season, a woolen manufacturer believes prices for the heavyweight period will be about 20 per cent. higher than they are for the present Spring season. The yarns, he said, cost him 8 per cent. more than they did when he was making up blankets for Spring goods. This advance carried on to the finished fabrics means, he explained, that, weight for weight, Fall goods should show the 20 per cent. increase mentioned.

Fur Withdrawals Were Good.

Yesterday was "prompt day" with the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation, and it found from 65 to 70 per cent. of the $7,000,000 worth of furs disposed of at the annual Fall sale withdrawn from the warehouse at 48 Great Jones Street. The nature of the withdrawals showed that practically all varieties of pelts are in fashion's favor at the present time, this being as true of the higher-priced ones. Among the skins that have been most freely taken from the warehouse are Russian sable, marten, lynx, gray, blue, and white foxes, many of the so-called staple furs as of fisher, beaver, fitch, rabbit, muskrat, raccoon, wolverine, and American and Australian opossum. The next sales of the corporation will begin on Monday, Feb. 2.

Burlaps Open Week Quietly.

While there was more or less evidence of a buying demand in the burlaps trade here yesterday, actual business was limited by the amount of goods available. The returned longshoremen are making some impression on the burlaps cargoes piled up in the local port by the strike, but it was said yesterday that it would be some time before the full effect of the trouble's end on the market would be seen. Quotations here yesterday were largely nominal, but for standard 40-inch goods, afloat, they were 13¾ cents for 8 ounce and 17¾ cents for 10½ ounce. The respective prices for the same goods for spot shipment were 13.85 @14 cents and 18 cents. Nothing of particular importance was reported from Calcutta or Dundee during the day.

Reason for High Silk Prices.

One of the potent reasons for the high prices that are now being asked for manufactured silks, it was said here yesterday, as well as for the still higher ones that may soon have to be quoted, is the extent to which the American industry is dependent on Japan for raw material. Recent figures received here, it was pointed out, showed that during the first four months of the current raw silk season, or up to Nov. 1, exports from Japan totaled 112,600 bales, against 90,933 bales in the same period of 1918. Of this amount all but 2,600 bales were shipped to the United States. With Japanese raw silks now at record levels, and tending higher, not much more has to be said.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

The downs and ups of cotton yesterday did not stop traders in the local gray goods market from doing a pretty fair volume of business in one way or another. Both first and second hands were sellers, the latter chiefly so when the goods were for immediate or nearby shipment. The printcloths sales made during the day included spot Eastern 38½-inch 64-60s at 19¼ cents and January-February shipments of the same goods at a quarter of a cent less. Eastern makes of 38½-inch 60-48s brought 16¼ cents for November delivery, while for the same delivery buyers paid 23 cents for 39-inch 68-72s. The sheetings sales embraced January-February 5-yard goods at 17½ cents and January-March 48-square 4-yard sheetings at 20¼ cents. Thirty-five cents was the figure paid for standard 40-inch combed lawns. In the sales of the so-called clothing styles were further lots of 64-104, 4.20-yard sateens at 36 cents.

Will Not Hurt American Sales.

No serious injury to the American fur sales is looked for here as a result of the forming of a corporation of prominent Canadian fur men in Montreal with the idea of holding raw fur auctions on a large scale in that city. The first of these sales, according to information that has reached here, is to be held some time in January. By men fully conversant with the fur situation in this country and Canada it was asserted yesterday that the chief factor militating against the success, in a large way, of the sales in project is the 7½ per cent. duty levied on raw skins brought into the Dominion. This would have to be paid on all consignments of American furs for disposal in Montreal, as well as on pelts sent there from foreign countries. Another thing favoring the American sales, particularly those held in this city, is the premium at which New York funds are held. This means, it was pointed out, that furs shipped to Montreal would have to sell quite a little higher there than in this city in order for the shipper to get an even break.

TELLS HOW TO AID EUROPE.

Benjamin Guinness Says Only Credit Can Bring Rehabilitation.

Benjamin Guinness, member of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., who returned yesterday on the White Star liner Baltic after three months abroad, said Central Europe and Russia were commercially bankrupt.

"They may be said to be financially solvent but commercially insolvent," said Mr. Guinness. "Their assets, that is, railroads, mines, manufacturing plants, &c., are far greater in value than their debts. There is always in any great nation an asset other than its tangible wealth, which is the commercial organization of peoples trained to production. This asset is greater in value than all of a nation's material wealth. It is this great asset that is being slowly destroyed in the stricken countries and leading to an inevitable disaster.

"The one supreme need of the nations, including England, who are the great producers of raw materials, coal, iron and food, is to provide credits for the stricken countries, including Germany and Austria, so as to enable those countries to import the raw materials necessary to set their commercial organizations in motion, give profitable employment to the people and create the means to pay their debts.

"These temporary credits will have to be on a scale so large that they cannot be financed by the bankers of the world without the creation of securities suitable for the investing public of investing countries. Such securities cannot be created without the co-operation of the leading nations. The future prosperity of the United States depends absolutely upon whether she has the courage to accomplish this on a sufficient scale."

Peddler and Wife Asphyxiated.

Morris Segal, 65 years old, a fruit peddler of 157 Orchard Street; his wife, Rosa, and a boarder were overcome by fumes from a pipe attached to a gas stove near the peddler's cot, which, apparently, became accidentally disconnected Sunday night. The peddler and his wife were found dead yesterday. A pulmotor resuscitated the boarder and, although he was still unconscious when taken to Gouverneur Hospital, some hope was held out for his recovery.

Stocks Fall Again Under Bank Credit and Strike Outlook—Call Money Up.

Additional facts in regard to the current underlying position of the credit structure united with a disturbing angle of the coal strike yesterday to cause a decided disturbance of the speculative situation in stocks. Last week's decline of the Federal Reserve Bank's ratio of cash to note circulation and deposit liabilities to 46¼ per cent., the lowest figure since the bank went into operation, told its own tale of large borrowings of member banks, and suggested a reason why the Reserve Bank officials increased the discount rates. Further than that, the detailed report of the Reserve system had disclosed in the Sunday newspapers a decline from 47¾ per cent. to 46¾ per cent. in the combined reserve ratio. The local Reserve Bank's report came in for closer study, probably, than the composite totals of the twelve institutions, for the week's rediscounts here had reached a surprising total considering those based on Government paper, and it was no surprise to anybody that the renewal rate for call loans was again 12 per cent., from which level the quotation was bid upward to 18 per cent. before the Stock Exchange closed for the session.

Industrial stocks opened lower than at Saturday's close, later recovered somewhat, but were pressed down sharply in the afternoon. The selling was extremely heavy at times. In the final lineup of prices losses running from three to more than six points were general among shares recently the favorites for the rise, while the railroad group lost distances extending from large fractions to more than a point. Liberty bonds were under pressure again, especially the Third and Fourth 4¼s. The day marked the end of the period allowed for final payments on the Victory Loan, but it was considered improbable in banking quarters that this had any especial weight to the demands upon the money market, inasmuch as the bulk of the funds due the Government had been turned in previously.

Either the tight market for bank credit or the coal strike outlook would have been enough to depress speculative sentiment. Coming together, the effect on stocks was to precipitate considerable selling by the more conservative traders who are not easily moved to relinquish their position. In fact, the temporary recovery in the second hour seemed to disclose a stubborn opposition by bullish interests who have not been greatly concerned over strike developments. Quite likely the recurrence of a 12 per cent. renewal rate for demand loans was the impelling force behind a lot of liquidation that had been held off until sufficient evidence was gathered that, for a time at least, there was slight hope of return of moderate carrying costs for margined stock.

An important occurrence of the day was a rise in the price of silver to $1.28½ per ounce under open market bidding, a new high record price for the movement, and one which carried the bullion value of the silver dollar above the coinage parity. The exchange value of the metal was quoted at $1.27, compared with $1.21¾ at the end of last week, which followed the unusual advance from 67 to 68½d for silver in London. It will be recalled that last Friday the British Government ruled that hereafter the metal could not be exported except under supervision, and the advance at the British centre told of the strong demand that existed in home sources. China is bidding for silver wherever it may be obtained, our export figures showing that since last May, when wartime restrictions of shipments abroad were removed, the movement to this Far Eastern point has been steadily on the increase.

Foreign exchanges displayed a tendency to go lower. This was particularly the case with lire, the rate for checks reaching 11.80, far and away a new low record.

Sharp Break in Market.

Prices declined precipitately during the last hour yesterday, following a weakness that was in evidence throughout most of the day. In the second hour of trading there appeared to be the foundation for a rally, but this was nipped by the opening of money at a 12 per cent. renewal rate. This was destructive of any forward move, and prices caved off, with heavy liquidation during the final hour of trading. The news developments of the day were far from being as encouraging as might have been expected as a sequence to those of Saturday and combined with the money situation is causing the sale of stocks. When the day closed prices were in some cases off 12 points, and there was only here and there an issue which had developed the strength to fight its way against the marked trend and register a gain.

High-Priced Issues Suffer.

The decline was especially marked in the case of high-priced issues which have been soaring continually to new peaks. In some of the breaks which have come during recent weeks it has been noticeable that the issues of this sort were affected little as compared with some of the standard issues which had enjoyed no commensurate rise. The situation was decidedly changed yesterday, for such stocks as Baldwin, General Motors, South Porto Rico Sugar, Stutz Motors, and a number of others slipped back without much opposition to the pressure which was exerted against them. The decline which began several days ago has caused recessions of large proportions. The following table shows the high for the year which was recently made by four high-priced issues and the close yesterday:

	High for the Year	When Made	Close Yesterday.
Texas Company	345	Oct. 30	316¼
Baldwin Locomotive	156½	Oct. 23	129½
General Motors	408	Nov. 5	379½
Republic Iron & Steel	145	Nov. 1	115½

Steel for Export.

The ban on steel for export has been lifted by the United States Steel Corporation, according to a statement made by one of the officials yesterday. It held in force only during the strike along the water front. There had been erroneous reports that the ban on export orders in many finished steel lines would hold until the first of the year, and perhaps longer. With domestic demand as heavy as it now is and with production on a lower scale than normal, there will be little overflow for export without stinting home consumers.

The Leasing Bill.

It is expected that the leasing bill will shortly become a law, in which case there will be a comparatively unrestricted opening up of oil lands which heretofore have been under a governmental ban. Both houses of Congress have passed the leasing bill, and it is now in conference. Its provisions will mainly affect California and Wyoming.

Over-the-Counter Stocks.

In the outside market there was little of the depression felt that held sway over the general list on the big board. This was in large part due to the fact that there are few stocks carried on margin in that investment field. In certain instances stocks showed gains over their Saturday closing. Among the Standard Oil issues, for instance, there was little evidence of liquidation.

Rising Prices for Steel.

A Belgian order for open-hearth billets was placed yesterday at a substantial increase over the current market price, the advance apparently being in the nature of a premium for early delivery. Such advances are becoming more numerous and are laying the foundation, apparently, for a general forward movement in steel prices. Many mills are already sold out for first quarter (1920) delivery.

Rails No Exception.

The railroad shares, which have been features of recent uncertain declining market sessions in which they moved forward as a group, were no exception to the general trend toward lower levels yesterday. In some quarters this was attributed in large part to the financial district's first interpretation of summaries of the Esch Railroad bill, but in others it was not believed that this had any particular effect. On the contrary there were those who called the movement "purely sympathetic and due to the unimproved labor outlook." Losses ranged from fractions to more than 2 points.

Gains Made on Small Business.

In the majority of instances the issues which closed yesterday with net gains were those which were traded in to the extent of only a few hundred shares each. Among them were B. R. T., Butte & Superior, Seaboard Air Line, Maxwell Motors second preferred, Jewel Tea, Manhattan Shirt, and Denver & Rio Grande. An exception to this rule was Transcontinental Oil, which on heavy buying closed with a fractional net gain at 60¾. Earlier in the day the stock was sold to a new high record at 61¾ from which there was a reaction on profit-taking sales. Autosales, a comparative newcomer on the big board, also gained more than a point.

Shipping Shares Reflect Uncertainties.

As a group the shipping shares declined yesterday, with the higher-priced issues showing the heaviest losses, but this was not generally attributed to the labor outlook so much as it was to the uncertain outlook for remedial legislation which will directly affect the position of the American merchant marine. Of course, it was admitted that the labor question undoubtedly had some bearing on the decline, but a great deal of importance was attached in some quarters to the suspension of work on Shipping Board vessels. Shipowners want a definite expression of a final Government policy on the merchant marine and apparently the stock market would welcome the same thing.

Bond Average Lower.

The average price for forty representative bonds on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday showed less of a decline than had been generally expected at 74.29, as compared with 74.39 on Saturday. The railroad issues showed the greatest decline, the average price dropping to 71.11, from 71.25 on the previous trading day, while the average for eight representative industrial issues advanced .01, to 95.04.

Reserves But No Money.

After Saturday's bank statement, showing an excess reserve of $94,801,250, many brokers expected call money to be reasonably cheap yesterday. But they were disappointed, for the rate renewed at 12 per cent., and in the afternoon it advanced to 18 per cent., and even at this high figure there was little to be had. Not that the Street exerted itself unduly in bidding for accommodation—it didn't—but the supply was unusually small. Money brokers said after the close of the market that most of the money offered on the board yesterday was out-of-town money and that the big local institutions were conspicuous absentees.

Explanations.

Naturally, with the situation what it appeared to be, an abundance of excess reserves and no noticeable offerings, there was talk of "bank profiteering." But those who indulged themselves thus failed to take into consideration the big increase of borrowings at the Reserve Bank and the fact that yesterday the final installment on the Victory Loan was due. One banker, in discussing the money situation, said that his institution was extending greater accommodation now than it had at any time since the expansion started, and gave it as his opinion that others were in the same position. Further, he insisted that call money might be expected to go higher before it goes lower.

SILVER AT HIGHEST PRICE SINCE 1872

CAUSED BY CHINA'S BUYING

Silver bullion yesterday sold at $1.30½ an ounce, thus going under the "16 to 1" ratio to gold for the first time in nearly fifty years. At that price the ratio was 15⅞ to 1. The so-called parity of silver is $1.2929 an ounce. This is arrived at by the fact that in 1,000 silver dollars of full weight there are 859⅜ ounces of silver of the 9-10 fineness of American coin, or 773 7-16 ounces of fine silver, and at $1.2929 an ounce this would be worth $1,000.

Yesterday's price was the highest reported since 1872, when the metal sold at $1.32½ an ounce, shortly before silver was demonetized by international agreement. The highest price on record is the 62½d figure which was reached in London in 1859. That price, translated at the rate of sterling exchange then prevailing, $4.87 to the pound, was equal to $1.37½ an ounce here in New York.

In London yesterday silver sold at 68¼d, a new high record for that market for all time, and with sterling exchange quoted at $4.14 this gave an American equivalent of $1.27. Had sterling been at $4.87 to the pound yesterday's price in London would have been equal to $1.5100 here. And that, in reality, is the present value of silver in the London market.

The present advance in the metal is said to be due to enormous demands from China. From the Summer of 1918 until May 5 of this year there was an embargo on the export of silver coin or bullion out of the United States except on license from the Federal Reserve Board, and that body granted few licenses except for export to European Allies, chiefly England and to British India and Hongkong. That arrangement was part of the administration of the Pittman act, which provided for the melting of some $400,000,000 in American silver dollars and the export of the bullion to allied countries and India.

Lay Advance to China's Demands.

In the ten months from July 1, 1918, to the end of April this year total exports of silver out of the United States amounted to $259,967,587, of which England, Canada, India, and Hongkong got $233,652,081, and of the balance $16,179,121 went to China, normally the greatest silver consuming country in the world. This interruption in the export of silver to China reduced the ordinary stocks of the metal in that country considerably, as also did the British and Indian purchases of silver in China. Since the lifting of the embargo, China has become the most persistent bidder in this market, and dealers report that recently Chinese interests have shown willingness to outbid all other sources of demand.

Exports of American silver since the lifting of the embargo last May, to the end of August, the last month for which there are detailed figures, show that China is taking more silver than all other countries combined. Unofficial figures for September and October, furthermore, indicate an expansion in the Chinese demand rather than a contraction, and at present it is said Chinese agents are willing to buy upward of 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 ounces a month.

In detail, the figures of exports of silver, showing the takings of China, those of England, Canada, India, and Hongkong, and the total amount for the period from July 1, 1918, to Aug. 31, 1919, follow:

	China.	Eng., Can., India, Hongkong.	Total.
June	6,903,264	4,328,330	12,608,359
July	5,194,753	2,012,911	8,262,147
Aug.	10,911,987	2,198,605	13,808,877

These figures show how China is making its demand felt. The Government, it is understood, has stopped melting silver dollars, thus throwing the market back for its supply on the ordinary production of American mines, and this source of supply has been curtailed since the copper production of the country has fallen off. Partly to offset this, there has been an increase in Mexican silver production, which last year ran at about 40,000,000 ounces and this year is expected to equal 50,000,000 ounces.

The demand for silver has caused England and France to prohibit export out of those countries. This was done because the price of the metal has reached a point where it is profitable to melt down British and French coin for the bullion contained. The silver content of the British shilling, for example, is worth at the rate of 66d per ounce, whereas yesterday's quotation was 68¼d.

Bullion dealers said yesterday that at $1.30 an ounce, American silver coin might profitably be melted for the silver bullion value, although, they added, this was doubtful because of the fact that many coins are "short weight," due to abrasion, and also to the cost of accumulating coins in sufficient numbers to make the cost of melting a nominal factor.

London Losing Its Supremacy.

London silver market, which formerly was the primary market of the world, has lost much of its old power and, according to dealers in the metal, is in danger of losing all its potency because of the movement of silver to the Orient. In normal pre-war days the stocks of silver held in warehouses in London ran between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000 ounces, and occasionally more.

Now, with most of the American production going to the Orient, and with the old London stocks reduced by the high cost and the heavy demand, the amount held there is thought to be virtually nil. If the export movement to China continues, it is believed, the London market will shortly cease to be the prime market, and will be replaced by the New York market.

Dealers of long experience yesterday recalled that in 1859, when silver went to the highest figure ever touched, conditions were rather similar to those obtaining now. The Crimean War of 1854 and 1855, had caused England to incur heavy debts in the Far East, and the Indian Mutiny of 1858 had further complicated the situation, necessitating heavy advances to the East India Company, which were made almost solely in silver. That need of the British Government forced the price up from around 58½d to 62½d.

That advance was not nearly so sensational as the advance which has taken place here since the embargo on exports was lifted. On May 6, silver sold at $1.01 an ounce, or at the ratio of 20.42 to 1 of gold. On May 12, it had shot up to $1.20 in the open market, but it reacted to $1.09 on July 17. This reaction was followed by an advance to $1.15 on Aug. 27, which was the highest price reached until the latest advance started two weeks ago.

Surety Agreement with Express Co.

William B. Joyce, President of the National Surety Company announced yesterday that an agreement had been entered into with the old American Express Company whereby the branches of the latter in various parts of the world will be able to execute bonds and guarantees for National Surety Company clients. When business firms in the United States wish to have surety bonds executed in foreign cities, the National Surety Company will ask the American Express Company to cable its manager in the foreign city to execute the bond. The same arrangement will apply to the adjustment of claims.

STEEL BOOKINGS LARGER.

Corporation Reports Unfilled Orders for 6,472,668 Tons.

A gain of 188,030 tons in unfilled orders on the books of the United States Steel Corporation as of Oct. 31 was reported yesterday, the orders amounting to 6,472,668 tons, compared with 6,284,638 tons at the end of September. At the close of the corresponding month last year the forward bookings were 8,353,293 tons. The October figures are the highest reported for any month this year, with the exception of January, when there was still a goodly proportion of Government orders that had been canceled but which had not been written off. The peak of unfilled orders was reached at the close of April, 1917, when they amounted to 12,183,083 tons. Following that month there was a steady decline, which was not checked until June of this year, when an upturn began. The increase since then has been more than 2,000,000 tons.

The increase during June, July, and August averaged about 600,000 tons. During the two following months it was about 180,000 tons. Unfilled tonnage during October was affected by the strike.

	1919	1918	1917
February	6,010,787	9,288,453	11,576,697
April	4,800,685	8,741,882	12,183,083
July	5,578,661	8,883,801	10,844,164
August	6,109,103	8,759,042	10,407,049
September	6,284,638	8,297,905	9,833,477
October	6,472,668	8,353,293	9,009,675
November	....	8,124,663	8,897,106
December	....	7,379,152	9,381,718

The demand for steel products is heavier now than at any time since the signing of the armistice and it was predicted yesterday that the unfilled orders of the Steel Corporation would be substantially higher by the end of the year.

DOWNWARD TREND IN COTTON MARKET

PRICES OFF 15 TO 85 POINTS

There was a good deal of irregularity in yesterday's cotton market and, for the most part, the bears had decidedly the better of the argument. The unsettled labor situation and the fears of what might happen, as well as the knowledge of what was happening in the stock market, upset a good many bullish calculations among the so-called Wall Street houses, and before the day had gone far precipitated a deluge of selling orders from this quarter. The trade also sold some contracts on the early prices and the hedge sellers from the South came into the future market here, but not as buyers. Rather, they sold along with the rest and with this accumulation of pressure the market first faltered and then broke.

Starting from a level which was 30 points up for December, 15 points up for January, and about on a parity with Saturday's closing for the later months, the market cracked badly by midday, the near months going off about 55 points and July losing all of 80 points before the decline was checked. Then, in the middle of the afternoon, the market rallied, but only regained a portion of its earlier losses. The best recovery of the day was made by December, which got back to within 15 points of where it had closed last week. The others, beginning with January, which closed down 25 points, were strong out in substantial losses, ranging to as much as 80 points in July and 85 points in September of the 1920 crop.

The break yesterday was due entirely to influences not directly concerned with the market. The technical position, which probably is not as strong as it might be, would hardly have accounted for any such break as was seen yesterday. But the unsettlement outside of the market, especially the developments in securities markets, proved too much for the ordinarily bullish factors to overcome.

Reports from the belt spoke of a continuance of bad weather over Sunday. In the western and central parts of the belt the weather was especially unfavorable, and under ordinary circumstances this might have turned out a pronounced bullish influence. But yesterday, with the outside news so bad, weather conditions were generally overlooked.

PLAN OIL COMPANY MERGER.

Commonwealth Petroleum and the Union of Delaware to Unite.

Arrangements are being made to consolidate the Commonwealth Petroleum Corporation and the Union Oil Company of Delaware. Details of the plan have been worked out by a special committee representing the boards of both companies, and an official announcement will be made within a week or ten days. It is understood the basis of exchange will be not less than one and one-fourth shares of Union Oil Company for each share of Commonwealth.

The companies have been closely associated for some time. The Union of Delaware recently took over a substantial interest in the Union Oil Company of California at a price said to be $160 a share. This issue is now selling in San Francisco in the neighborhood of $220 a share.

HOUSE WILL RUSH RAILROAD BILL

Blanton Denounces Omission of Anti-Strike Provisions as a Fatal Defect.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The Railroad bill will have the right of way in the House tomorrow, with the final vote set for Saturday, under an agreement reached tonight by leaders. Action on the bill will be followed immediately by adjournment of the special session of Congress, the agreement provides, consideration of the measure by the Senate going over until the regular session, beginning in December.

Under a rule adopted tonight, the House agreed to meet two hours earlier than customary and to begin night sessions immediately. General debate will end on Wednesday.

The House program was framed after Representative Mondell, Republican House leader, had been informed by Senator Lodge that Senate leaders hoped to dispose of the German Peace Treaty by the end of the week.

In the formal report on the House Railroad bill, made today by Chairman Esch of the Interstate Commerce Committee, it was revealed that the measure contained a mandate to the carriers to apply for general increases of rates within sixty days after their return to private operation. Unless such applications for increases are made to the Interstate Commerce Commission, the bill will deny them the guarantee, including continuance by the Government of their standard return for six months and their privilege of obtaining Government loans.

Simultaneously with the report on the House measure Senator Cummins, Chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, submitted a report expressing his individual views on the Senate plan of permanent railroad legislation. Defending the anti-strike provision of the Senate bill, Senator Cummins declared that "strikes by railway workers must cease," and that the arbitration boards created by the bill would "give justice to all," even assuring the unions that they could accomplish more through the boards than by strikes.

Anti-strike legislation is not a part of the House measure. Chairman Esch said that the committee had decided that such provisions were unwise and had adopted plans for conciliation through voluntary arbitration of disputes.

The committee in its report said it did not attempt to adopt new and untried plans, but had built on a foundation already in existence. Government ownership was rejected, it was explained, because of the President's announced intention to return the lines to private operation at the end of the year, the desire for such action by the carriers and the widespread demand among the people that Federal control cease as soon as suitable legislation could be enacted."

The Plumb plan was also rejected, the report said, because its provisions were "so radical and the principles so foreign to the fundamental principles of our Government that it was considered by the committee as impossible."

Opposing creation of a transportation board, as proposed in the Senate measure, the report said such an organization to advise the Interstate Commerce Commission would be a needless and expensive burden, more subject to political influence than the Interstate Commerce Commission.

His report provoked the first attack on the House bill, Representative Blanton, Democrat, of Texas, contending that the measure gave the public "no guarantee, or even promise, against continued tie-ups of Government industries."

See Good Points in Both Bills.

Local railroad executives were inclined to be cautious yesterday in discussing the Esch Railroad bill as it was summarized in news dispatches from Washington. While it appeared that the measure, as reported, was a disappointment in some quarters, in others it was accepted as a step in the right direction. Summarized, local railroad sentiment leaned to the belief that the good points in the Esch bill and those in the Cummins bill would be merged into a temporary railroad measure which would allow for the return of the carriers to private control at the close of this year.

The proposal contained in the House bill that loans be made to the roads which were in need of funds to maintain a proper service to the public, and that such loans be extended for a reasonable period by the Treasury Department, was also received variously. Some railroad heads seemed to think that more time than was proposed in the bill should be allowed for the roads to pay off any such loans as might be advanced.

The provision for the settlement of labor disputes as suggested in the bill met with disapproval in some quarters, where it was characterized as "a surrender to organized labor," while in others decision was reserved pending the receipt of the full text of the bill.

While there was a difference of opinion on the measures reported upon, there was general approval of the news that the bill would go to the House today and would be debated for the remainder of the week. This was due to the realization that no time should be lost in the framing of remedial temporary laws which would bring about the return of the railroads to private operation at the beginning of the year. Another point which met with general approval was the proposal that the $900,000,000 standard return guaranteed to the carriers by the Government be continued for six months after they were turned back.

The provision contained in the House bill which proposes to require the Interstate Commerce Commission to consider "the interest of the public, the shipper, the reasonable cost of maintenance of operation, including the wages of labor, depreciation and taxes and a fair return upon the value of the property used or held for the service of transportation," and the continuation of rates initiated by the Railroad Administration until such time as they might be changed by authority of law, did not cause particular comment.

EGGS.—8,628 cases. The week opens with light receipts and a scarcity of new laid qualities, with a firm market for all stock showing a good to large proportion of such. Prices still tend in sellers' favor on the highest qualities, otherwise the trade is quiet and market in rather unsatisfactory condition owing to the continued liberal accumulations of stock for which there appears to be no satisfactory outlet. LAWTON BEQUESTS PUZZLE OFFICIALS

ASK RULING FROM PALMER

Settlement of the $500,000 estate of Mrs. Eliza Mackintosh Clinch Anderson Lawton, daughtes of General Robert Anderson who fired the first shot in defense of the Union in the Civil War, at Fort Sumter, hinges upon acceptance or rejection by Attorney General Palmer of $48,000 in bequests which Mrs. Lawton's novel will gave to the "Government of the United States."

This was disclosed yesterday when it was ascertained that United States District Attorney Francis Caffey was still awaiting word from Washington as to his further course in the matter. Mr. Caffey has put in an appearance in the will probation, but will take no other action until Mr. Palmer has given an opinion as whether the Government can assume the burden of the bequests.

Mrs. Lawton died in this city Aug. 22, and her will, naming Supreme Court Justice Edward R. Finch and the Union Trust Company as executors and trustees, was filed Oct. 8. It was probated Nov. 3. The will was dated July 13, 1917, and was witnessed by Harlow Brooks of 5 West Ninth Street, James W. Sears of 37 Fifth Avenue, and John B. Pine of 24 Gramercy Park.

After providing for the erection of a monument in the cemetery at West Point, the will continued:

"As memorials of my father, General Robert Anderson, I give and bequeath to the Government of the United States of America:

"1. The sum of $5,000, or so much thereof as is necessary, to be applied to the cost of a stained glass window, of a design to be approved by my executors, to be placed in the chapel at Fortress Monroe;

For Statue in Fort Sumter.

"2. The further sum of $15,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to provide a set of chimes for the chapel at West Point, and I request that my intention in respect to such chimes may be carried out under the direction of the Rev. H. Percy Silver, or the chaplain for the time being;

"3. The further sum of $25,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be applied to the execution of a statue of my father, of a design to be applied by my executors, to be placed in Fort Sumter, Charleston, South Carolina. Should I accomplish any or all of these purposes in whole or in part during my lifetime, in accordance with my wish and intentions, or should I make any payment on account thereof, I direct that the legacy which I have left for such purpose or purposes shall lapse or abate proportionately.

"5. I give and bequeath to the Government of the United States the sum of $5,000 to be held as a permanent fund, and the income expended by the Quartermaster of West Point for the purchase of flowers to be placed on the graves in our family plots in the West Point Cemetery on Memorial Sunday and 'All Saints' Day, and for the care of such plots."

Additional bequests showing Mrs. Lawton's desire to perpetuate the memory of her father were the gift of $25,000 to Teachers' College, to endow a scholarship to be known as the General Robert Anderson Scholarship. This, under the terms of th ebequest, is to be awarded annually by the Committee on Scholarships of the Daughters of the Cincinnati.

Mrs. Lawton also left $5,000 each to the Anderson Camp, No. 107, Sons of Veterans, and to the Ladies' Auxiliary connected with that camp. The sum of $500 each was left to Robert Anderson Post, No. 394, G. A. R., and to the Anderson Zouaves to defray the expenses of visits to General Anderson's grave on Memorial Sunday.

Bequest for Christmas Trees.

Other bequests amounted to about $160,000. Among them were two that threaten to cause as much legal trouble as the gifts to the Government. One was a $1,000 fund to the Washington Square Association for a Christmas tree every year in the Square, a gift not yet accepted. The other was for a $3,000 fund, the income of which was to be devoted "to relief of suffering caused by the war."

At the office of Coleman, Stern & Gottheld, attorneys, at 60 Wall Street, counsel for Mrs. Lawton, it was said that it probably would be necessary to ask the courts to determine how the interest of the fund should be apportioned to persons suffering from the war—"to those who are suffering from rents caused by the war, or to crippled veterans, or to whom?"

One of the largest beneficiaries under the will was Grace Church. One item left to the church was $3,000, the income from which was to be devoted to the purchase and importation of palms from Cuba for distribution on Palm Sunday.

TELLS OF GAS CO.'S LOSSES.

Figures showing that the Consolidated Gas Company is losing $18,000 a day, including a 7 per cent. dividend, were submitted yesterday by A. W. Teele, an accountant, who testified before A. S. Gilbert, the Special Master appointed to take testimony in the company's suit to have the 80-cent gas law declared unconstitutional.

According to the witness it cost the company $8,204,782.11 to make the 12,253,567,000 cubic feet of gas it made during the first eight months of the current year and $2,504,715.84 to distribute it. Including taxes and other costs, the company, during the eight-months period, lost $1,171,928.33. It was also stated that it would cost each consumer only an additional 2 cents a day to enable the company to pay dividends and all operating costs.

UPHOLDS RATE INCREASE.

Federal Court Backs Missouri Commission in Kansas City Case.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Appeals of Kansas City officials from decrees of the Missouri Supreme Court upholding orders of the Missouri Public Service Commission increasing car fares in that city to 6 cents were dismissed today by the Supreme Court.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 10.—The franchise of the Kansas City Railways provides for a 5-cent-fare without reservation or modifying clauses. In 1918 the Public Service Commission fixed the fare at 6 cents. The Missouri Supreme Court held that when the Legislature created the Public Service Commission it restored to the State the power formerly vested in cities by charter to fix rates in public utility charges within the State.

The city appealed to the Federal Supreme Court, setting up that a contract franchise was sacred under all conditions and the State had no power to abrogate it.

Creating Good Will in Canada

DURING the twelve months ending September, 1919, Canadian imports from the United States decreased $125,000,000. This was due partly to the high premium demanded in Canada for American funds, partly to the fact that a fluctuating rate of exchange made the future profits of Canadian importers of American goods problematical.

Individually American exporters cannot hope to affect the factors governing the situation in the Canadian exchange market. They can, however, mitigate its effect on their Canadian customers by protecting them against fluctuations in exchange at the time they contract to ship goods. This can be done in a number of ways. The officers of the New York Agency of the Union Bank of Canada will be pleased to suggest methods best suited to special needs.

Why not protect your Canadian business by serving your Canadian customer?

Forging A Revolution

DURING the past ten years we have been quietly and steadily forging a revolution in American investment methods, just as the development of credit rating systems forged a revolution in mercantile business half a century or more ago. Our organization undertakes to RATE bond and stock investments on the same principle that mercantile agencies rate the credit of merchants and business men.

HOW this movement has developed and what it has come to signify in investment channels, will be brought out in a series of "Short Talks to Investors" which will appear in subsequent numbers of this publication.

WATCH for these "Short Talks" and also send to us today for a copy of our booklet, entitled "Forging a Revolution." If you are an investor, large or small, you certainly will never regret an investigation of our proposition at this time.

NEW LABOR-SAVING DEVICES

How to make a hotel as much like a home as possible is the chief thing that will be demonstrated at the Fourth Annual National Hotel Men's Exposition, which opened yesterday at the Grand Central Palace. Fully 15,000 men interested in hotels in every section of the United States as well as Canada, Belgium, France and South America, have come to New York to this exposition, it was stated, for the main purpose of learning the best means of making a hostelry more comfortable than the best regulated home. And to this end are exhibited devices without number.

Of all these ingenious devices, the one which will probably create the most interest is the automatic hat boy. This contrivance is intended by its inventor to do away with a tipping nuisance which, according to the most conservative estimate, brings the cost of an ordinary hat to somewhere near a hundred dollars before its owner is finished with it. The automatic hat boy is a machine in appearance not unlike the old hat rack familiar in the front halls of the homes of bygone days. No money will have to be expended by men or women who wish to leave their hats or coats in a safe place during a hasty meal when this device becomes, as hotel men say it will become, a part of every hotel dining room.

Other features of this let-the-hotel-be-your-home campaign include a card file, made in duplicate or triplicate, for the use of the various departments of a hotel, to indicate the preferences of different guests. For example, this file will show at an instant at what time Mr. Brown, in Room 461, wishes to be called each morning, what newspaper he reads, and even whether he likes his eggs turned or not. It was declared by hotel men yesterday that attention in such small matters made the difference between what the guest regarded as a mere sleeping place and a home.

In opening the exposition, Edward M. Tierney, Chairman, dwelt on the necessity of developing labor-saving machinery for use in the hotels in case of strikes or other labor disturbances.

"It behooves every wide-awake hotel man," said Mr. Tierney, "to apply the 'safety first' principle to his business by installing the latest approved labor-saving devices and machines in his hotel, so that he may feel assured he has protected himself against a complete 'tie up' when the menacing hand of a strike among his employes confronts him."

The delegates to the exposition were entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Park Avenue Hotel by its proprietor, George C. Brown. The luncheon was termed "Colonial," and to carry out the effect even the lighting was by candles, each stuck in an empty champagne bottle. The bottles bore this inscription: "Alack and alas, there was a time when I lit them in the good old way."

During the exposition and in conjunction with it at the Palace, the chefs, organized in the Société Culinaire Philanthropique of New York, are holding their fifty-first Salon of Culinary Art. Every day will see a contest to determine who can make the most delicious bread, cake, French pastry, as well as prepare fancy dishes of fish and fowl.

The exposition and salon will close Saturday night.

"When I was ready to enter business I decided that the occupation I chose would have to have a future in it for me. The pay should be good and be increased at reasonable intervals. The organization into which I went not only must provide an opportunity for me to advance myself but must show willingness to help me get ahead. The work must be clean and interesting and devoid of unpleasant influences. It had to be done in clean, well-ventilated rooms. The working hours had to be reasonable. If I became sick during employment I felt that I should be protected against loss of pay. I wanted to be assured that my employer would look after my comfort and convenience both when at work and when off duty. And if the business I entered required preliminary training I felt that my employer should pay me for that preparation.
"Telephone operating met every one of my requirements. So I have this message for young women 16 to 25 years of age who seek steady, worth-while employment: Find out about telephone operating and do it today."

The Belvedere bids you to Santa Barbara California

YOU may even have gone to Mentone in search of natural beauty, yet Santa Barbara gains in comparsion for it is known as "the American Mentone"—and America has learned that it has a right to be proud of many things and places purely American.

Nowhere else does the sea curve in more lazily or the hills and mountains encircle a picturesque town more fondly than at Santa Barbara.

There Is No Winter Here

And here, while most of North America resists winter's rigors, guests of The Belvedere live perfect days amid luxurious flowers and fruits—with roads that tempt one out along the ocean shore, among the foothills, into the mountains, or through avenues shaded by walnut and lemon and canyons softened by great oaks and sycamores. Nearby is the Santa Barbara Mission, ancient in aspect but still in use as a training school for Franciscan novitiates. Other beauty spots too numerous to mention are all around.

The Belvedere is Santa Barbara's favorite hostelry. It is now a full fledged Linnard hotel, which means that here you will find the height of hospitality. There is in connection with the Belvedere an excellent school beautifully situated in a 32 acre park amid tropical foliage. At the Belvedere you can play golf every day in the year, or motor over thousands of miles of perfect boulevards.

R. S. V. P. — The Belvedere invites you to Santa Barbara. Will you write or wire for accommodations? You are sure to be glad that you came.

CHARGES RUSSIANS DID NOT HELP ALLIES

Declares People Protested That They Were Deserted, Yet Did Not Aid in the Fighting.

Captain William Prothero of the Cunarder Royal George, which sailed last night for Havre and Southampton with passengers and mails after being twenty-four hours in port, was in command of the chartered Russian steamship Czar carrying American and British troops from England to Russia.

The Captain made his first trip to Archangel in May, 1918, when he had to break his way through twelve feet of ice, and the Czar was the last ship to leave Archangel on Sept. 27, 1919, carrying the remainder of the British naval and military forces.

"When we left there," said the Captain, "Archangel was like a city of the dead, and the inhabitants, with a look of utter despair in their eyes, were the mourners. The Russians said that the Allies had forgotten the steam roller which had saved France and England from being overwhelmed early in the war by the enemy and were leaving them to their fate. We left them plenty of ammunition dumps, guns, motor cars, artillery, airplanes, and stores of all kinds with which to carry on the war against the Bolsheviki, and they said that they would do it, but the enemy outnumbered the Russians three to one, so that the chances were very much against them.

"The feeling against the Allies was so intense when the Czar left Archangel that General Ironsides, the commander of the allied forces, gave orders that the bridge and steering apparatus of the transport should be protected by sand bags in case the Russians opened fire upon us in their despair at seeing their last hope for protection vanish. Hundreds of the sorrow-stricken inhabitants were at the piers to see the ship leave, but not a gun was fired.

"In spite of their charges that the Allies had deserted them, the Russians did not help the Allies in the fighting in the north when they arrived. Had they done so the Bolsheviki might have been driven out of that section of the country. The British troops who came back with us to England on the Czar, numbering 2,000 with the naval contingent, had to fight their way, foot by foot, from the Dvina River to the coast and many lives were lost. We brought the American troops to Brest on the previous trip."

Capitalizing Your Ability

THE man who really capitalizes his ability as an executive spends his time, not in running the business, but in building it so that it will run.

He recognizes that the business that can "get along" without the trained assistance of the Certified Public Accountant is not likely to be as well founded as the one that openly recognizes the NEED for him.

It is the Certified Public Accountant who is the business counselor and advisor of today. He is continually solving inside problems through outside experience. He is a material factor in capitalizing the executive's ability.

LODGE IN DILEMMA, HOLDS UP VOTE ON ARTICLE X.

BORAH SEIZES HIS CHANCE

McCUMBER GROUP DOUBTFUL

They May Bolt the Committee's Reservation if Drastic Modifications Are Made.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Threat of the defeat of the Foreign Relations Committee majority's reservation on Article X., relating to the guarantee of territorial integrity and political independence of members in the League of Nations, kept the majority forces in the Senate today from hurrying it to a vote. At the end of the day the reservation was still before the Senate after seven hours of debate.

The unexpected situation that caused the majority leaders to fear that the reservation might not prevail, if forced to an immediate vote, came as the outcome of the amendment to the reservation offered yesterday by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, under which all nations in the League of Nations would be released from obligations imposed under Article X., the United States also declining to participate in proceedings of the League Council in any matters coming up under the provisions of the article.

The majority forces, scenting a trick of the minority to achieve the defeat of the committee's reservation through making it so drastic that the middle-grounders among the Republican Senators could not support it, found themselves confronted with the possibility of the Walsh reservation being accepted through the votes of a group of radical Senators.

This difficulty caused Senator Lodge and his associates in the majority leadership to doubt the wisdom of allowing the Walsh reservation, which was pending, to come to a vote. Senator Walsh had offered his reservation, which would have the effect of eliminating Article X. from the treaty so far as the United States was concerned, after a conference with Senator Hitchcock and other minority leaders. Under its provisions, if it were adopted as a part of the committee's reservation, the United States would decline to be a party to any of the obligations imposed under Article X. and also relieve other nations of the slightest obligation toward the United States.

When the Walsh amendment was offered some eight or nine radical Republican Senators, it developed today, seeing an opportunity to eliminate Article X. as affecting the United States, hurriedly agreed among themselves to support it. Only a motion to adjourn, offered by Senator Lodge at the end of a prolonged debate, saved the amendment from being voted on yesterday.

Fears Middle-ground Defection.

Over night Senator Lodge and other majority leaders conferred with the radicals, urging them not to support the Walsh amendment. The likelihood of middle-ground Senators, led by McCumber, voting to reject the Lodge reservation if the amendment were attached to it, so as not to leave a "killing" reservation in the treaty, was urged upon the radicals.

When the Senate convened today four or five radicals had swung back to the Lodge program, it was stated. But there were not enough of these assurances to warrant Senator Lodge in allowing the amendment to reach a vote. Senators La Follette, Norris, and Gronna were named among those still bent on voting for it.

In the meantime, the middle-ground Senators declined to give Senator Lodge assurances that, if the Walsh amendment was voted into the committee's reservations they would support the latter. It is understood that Senator McCumber, as well as two or three others of the middle-grounders, informed Mr. Lodge that if the amendment won they would be forced to vote against the reservation. That the Administration forces would vote against the Lodge reservation with the Walsh amendment in it was admitted by their leaders. They simply wanted to make the committee's reservation impossible of support by the middle-ground Senators.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—For the first time since he returned from the West, ill from overwork, President Wilson today sat up in a wheel chair in his room at the White House.

The President remained in his wheel chair for an hour with the consent of his physicians and is declared to have been none the worse for his experience.

The President had planned some days in advance to have his sickbed today as in some measure his own commemoration of the significance of Armistice Day, and reposing in a wheel chair was able to hear part of the program arranged by the singers in his honor.

The President asked to be permitted to sit up for a while after he heard the firing of shots from Lafayette Square, where a salute was being given as part of a celebration of Armistice Day. The President inquired about the firing and when he learned that Armistice Day was being celebrated he informed Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, his physician, that he was unable longer to remain in bed with such a celebration in progress.

PRINCE GREETED BY WASHINGTON

Marshall and Other High Officials and Diplomats Welcome Nation's Guest.

STATE DINNER IN HIS HONOR

Prince Cites American-Canadian Amity as Portending the End of Militarism.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The Prince of Wales arrived in Washington today to become the guest of the nation. Murk and rain greeted him as he drove up Pennsylvania Avenue, the same broad thoroughfare through which his grandfather's carriage rolled nearly sixty years ago.

But despite the rain, the avenue and Sixteenth Street were lined with people, waiting to see the royal visitor. The Prince, affable and pleasant, bowed and saluted from the window of his limousine, and his pleasing and unaffected manner won the crowds.

It had been expected that he would see the President today, and he went to the White House soon after he arrived here. But after a ten-minute call on Mrs. Wilson and Miss Margaret Wilson, it was announced that the visit to the President would be paid next Thursday. Mrs. Wilson this afternoon invited the Prince to an informal tea Thursday afternoon, and Rear Admiral Grayson, the President's physician, decided that at that time the Prince would be admitted to the President's bedroom for a short time.

The Prince's Greeting to the Nation.

The Prince this evening gave the press the following message to the American people:

"I am very glad to take advantage of the invitation of the National Press Club to send a few words of greeting to the American people on my first arrival in their beautiful capital. It would have been a very great regret to me had the President's illness unhappily prevented me from fulfilling my keen desire to visit the United States this year, and for this personal reason, as well as for much wider ones, I rejoice in his steady improvement.

"I know that you gentlemen of the Washington press are very highly trained critics of public writing and public speech, and I am not at all your equal in that respect; but, happily for me, what I want to say to you is easily said. It is to tell the American people through you with what pleasure I recall my visits to their gallant forces in Europe last Winter, and how glad I am now to be making acquaintance with the great people from whom those forces came. I was able to visit several of your divisions in France and Germany, and also the very smart 6th Battle Squadron which you sent to join the Grand Fleet in the North Sea. The spirit of your soldiers and sailors, officers and men, appealed to me very strongly and made me wish to know their country and their kin. The rapidity of your organization, moreover, enabled me to realize with what devotion and what strength this mighty nation can espouse a noble cause.

"Now that I am really here in the United States I feel that my anticipations will be completely fulfilled. Your institutions, your ways of life, your aims are as democratic as ours, and the atmosphere in which I find myself is the same invigorating and familiar atmosphere which I have always noticed in my American friends.

"I thank you, gentlemen of the press, who command so vast a public and who

I. W. W. TAKEN AND HANGED

SERVICE MEN INTERFERED

Mob Lynches One Assailant.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 11.—About 8 o'clock tonight the mob surrounding the Centralia Jail succeeded in getting one of the I. W. W.'s arrested out of the jail and into an automobile, rushing him away before the guards could prevent it, telephone reports here said.

At 7:30 tonight the city's lights suddenly were cut off and a volley of shots rained down Pearl Street. It was during this period that the prisoner was taken from jail and spirited away. He was rushed toward a nearby wood, and at last accounts the crowd had disappeared with him.

According to a report telephoned to The Associated Press tonight from The Centralia Chronicle, the mob took the alleged I. W. W. from jail, escorted him to a point just outside the city limits, and hanged him on a bridge on the old Chehalis military road.

"The man's body is now hanging on a rope under the bridge about ten feet from the water," the message said. "The I. W. W. whom the mob lynched was the one who shot Dale Hubbard during the fight in the river bed."

CENTRALIA, Wash., Nov. 11.—Four former soldiers, members of the American Legion, were killed, two other service men were probably fatally wounded, and several other soldiers were less seriously hurt when members of the Industrial Workers of the World fired on an Armistice Day parade today as it passed the I. W. W. Hall.

The marching veterans raided the hall, seized supposed snipers to the number of eight, according to one account, and sixteen, according to another, and escorted them to jail, protecting them from a mob that tried to seize them.

Early tonight a meeting to discuss the situation was held at a local club, and soon afterward the city's electric lights failed. In the darkness one man was removed from the jail. Apparently he was placed in an automobile, waiting in readiness, and, flanked by six other cars filled with men, was hurried into a wood near the town.

Reports say that the prisoner was hanged to a bridge. There seems to be no doubt that he was lynched. It became known tonight that the victim was Britt Smith, Secretary of the I. W. W. local here.

Rumors of more violence to come were current late tonight. More than one citizen remarked: "There will not be any I. W. W.'s left in the jail by morning."

The victims of the sudden attack by the Reds, which has infuriated the town and surrounding country, were as follows:

Dead.

McELFRESH, ARTHUR E., Centralia.
CASAGRANDA, Ben, Centralia.
GRIMM, WARREN C., Centralia.
RUBBARD, DALE, Centralia.

Wounded.

WATT, JOHN EARL, Centralia, probably fatally.
FRIBCUB, ——, Chehalis.
WATT, ——, Chehalis.

The shooting began when the parade drew abreast of the Industrial Workers of the World Hall, according to witnesses, the bullets going over the heads of the crowds watching the parade. Onlookers say the shots came from every direction and that snipers in the upper windows of the I. W. W. headquarters building fired into the line.

McElfresh was killed instantly. Grimm, who formerly was a Lieutenant, was leading a platoon in the parade and fell at the second burst of fire, fatally wounded. He was an attorney and once a football star at the University of Washington. The death of this athletic idol especially angered the populace.

Casagranda, who was a real estate agent, received a fatal wound in the first fire.

A rifle bullet struck him in the body. "They got me this time," he said, as he doubled up and fell in the street.

North Dakota Seizes Mines Under Rule of Martial Law

BISMARCK, N. D., Wednesday, Nov. 12.—Governor L. J. Frazier early today announced that he had proclaimed martial law in North Dakota and that the State would take over the lignite coal mines at once, following failure of miners and operators to come to an agreement last night as requested by the Governor.

The Governor's action was taken following receipt of word at the Capitol late last night that the miners would return to work under Governor Frazier's orders, but not because the national strike had been officially called off.

Governor Frazier said that the State would run the mines and supply the people with coal until the operators and miners were able to run them.

The credit and banking situation, with especial reference to conditions brought about by speculation in the stock market, were discussed at a special meeting at the Federal Reserve Bank yesterday, at which W. P. G. Harding, Governor, and Albert Strauss, Vice Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, were present. Mr. Harding and Mr. Strauss came from Washington particularly to attend. Benjamin Strong, Governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, also attended; but the names of local bankers who were present were withheld.

Following the meeting Governor Harding said he saw nothing to be alarmed at in the situation of the moment. He added that the situation was rather grave, and explained that he and Mr. Strauss had come to inform themselves at first hand. He intimated that the liquidation of loans was progressing fairly satisfactorily, and was inclined to discredit rumors that the Reserve Banks are likely again to increase rediscount rates. Mr. Strong said there was no basis for rumors that the Directors of the local Reserve Bank would increase the rates of discount at their meeting today.

It was learned that bankers and officials, here and in Washington, are displeased with the wide-spread speculation in securities and commodities, and are considering steps to check the movement. The attitude of some leading officials, it is understood, is that the speculation in stocks here is more conspicuous than speculation elsewhere, and that its continuation will have a decidedly unfavorable effect psychologically on the country and on the banking and credit situation. It also is felt that the curbing of stock market speculation automatically will tend to curb the others.

Following the conference it was learned that the Reserve Board members will not personally visit other so-called "centres of speculation." Conditions obtaining in speculative centres other than New York will be taken up at the conference of the Federal Reserve Advisory Council in Washington next Wednesday and at the conference of Governors of the reserve banks, which is scheduled for the day following.

Meanwhile the credit situation here became more acute yesterday. Call money on the Stock Exchange opened and renewed at 14 per cent., the highest renewal rate recorded thus far, and in the afternoon call loans were negotiated at as high as 25 per cent., the highest rate on the Stock Exchange since the panic days of 1907. About $1,000,000, it was learned, was loaned at the maximum figure. During most of the day, while the demand for funds was not as heavy as on many recent days, the supply was commensurately below normal, and at times the money brokers were without funds.

The stock market, supremely influenced by the high call money rates and by the general unsettlement over the credit situation and other unfavorable developments in the day's news, was weak throughout the session. Some stocks broke badly. The highly speculative industrial shares suffered most severely, with issues like American Tobacco, Cuba American Sugar, General Motors, Mexican Petroleum, and United Fruit sustaining declines of 10 to more than 30 points. At the low prices many stocks were down 20 to 30 points from the high prices of last week, when the decline started.

Inquiry among the banks disclosed that many institutions are reducing their loan commitments, and it was said none of the banks was inclined to expand its loan positions. Not only has the stock market speculation absorbed a vast amount of credit, but other influences are at work which make it essential that new commitments be entered into only in extreme cases.

The recent shipping strike and the subsequent congestion in the port have tied up vast quantities of what should be liquid credit, it is said. It has forced more than a few banks to refuse to extend further accommodation for foreign business. Yesterday one leading institution said it had more than $50,000,000 tied up in credits extended to cover shipments abroad, and had been brought to a position where it would not venture further to extend itself. Estimates of the total amount tied up around New York run as high as $500,000,000, with some authorities placing the figure much higher.

OLD DEMANDS DISCARDED

SEE SETBACK TO RADICALS

Miners' Decision Believed to Have Surprised Compers and Federation Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Prompt action by the Federal Government today in taking steps to bring together the coal miners and operators for a settlement of their differences followed the decision of the United Mine Workers' leaders to recall the strike order.

After a meeting of the Cabinet, Secretary of Labor Wilson called both sides in the controversy to meet here at 11 o'clock next Friday morning. The mine workers accepted, and, although no formal reply has come from the operators so far, Secretary Wilson was advised unofficially that they would comply.

Before Secretary Wilson issued his summons Thomas T. Brewster, Chairman of the Coal Operators' Association in the central competitive field, had telegraphed to Acting President Lewis of the mine workers proposing a conference for Monday. In reply Lewis notified Brewster of the acceptance by the miners of Secretary Wilson's invitation. It is fully expected that the meeting will be held on Friday, as requested by the Secretary.

It is believed that when the miners and operators meet a letter will be read to them from President Wilson in which he will make plain his position in the controversy and will urge a just settlement of all matters in issue. No word relative to the outcome of the strike controversy came from the White House beyond the brief statement that the President was delighted at the patriotic stand taken by the officials of the miners' organization.

Secretary Wilson sent three telegrams calling the operators and miners in conference here. The telegrams to Brewster and Lewis were almost identical. In order that the conference might be national in scope, Secretary Wilson also wired Harry N. Taylor, President of the National Coal Association, to designate representatives of all the operators to come to Washington for the conference.

That the conference will assemble with both sides ready to talk business and, if necessary, meet each other half way, is the opinion in Washington.

Government Seeks Just Agreement.

The Federal Government will be deeply interested in the work of the conference and, if necessary, it will seek to secure for the miners a wage and hour schedule that will meet the present high cost of living. This statement was made at the Department of Justice this afternoon. Attorney General Palmer, it is said, fully realizes that the miners have just claims and, now that they have met the Government's demands in the situation, it will be the pleasure of the Government to assist them in every way possible. That the operators are also anxious to reach an agreement that will satisfy everybody concerned is known and it is considered certain that the new contract to be entered into will grant the miners a substantial increase in pay.

The assertion of the miners that they have not been able to put in a forty-eight-hour week since the armistice was signed is borne out by statistical data on file in the offices of the Geological Survey. Since the fighting ceased, the average work week in the bituminous coal fields has been only thirty hours. In April last it was less than twenty-three hours, in May about twenty-six hours, in June twenty-eight hours, in July thirty-one hours, in August thirty hours, in September thirty-four hours, and in October about thirty-six hours. As the miners are paid by the hour they have said that they have not had sufficient work to meet the increased cost of living.

There was much talk today regarding the stand taken by the executive officials of the Federation last Sunday, and there were many persons, some in official life, who were of the opinion that Mr. Gompers and his associates who issued the defiant statement had lost much prestige by their action. By many the statement of the Executive Council of the Federation at that time was considered as an indirect invitation to the miners to refuse to obey the law and to continue on strike.

"As a matter of fact," was the way one official expressed it, "Mr. Gompers and his associates jumped into the radical pot, whereupon Mr. Lewis and his colleagues, taking a different view of the situation, jumped out."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, after a special meeting today, issued this statement:

The Executive Council notes the fact that in the statement issued by Attorney General Palmer, which beyond doubt was called forth by the statement issued by the Executive Council at its meeting Sunday, Nov. 9, and published in the newspapers Monday, Nov. 10, the Attorney General evades in the main not only the declarations of principle involved in the restraining order and the mandatory features of the injunction issued by Judge Anderson, but that Mr. Palmer wholly ignores the assertion made by the Executive Council that a pledge was made by the Government officials and by members of Congress that the Lever act was never intended to apply to the activities of wage earners engaged in any strike or lockout relative to wages, hours, and conditions of employment, and that the Lever act could not be applied by the Government to wage earners engaged in such activities.

The Attorney General evades and ignores the broken pledge and bad faith of the Administration in respect to these facts.

When the Federation Council's statement was shown to Attorney General Palmer he made no comment. One of his assistants, however, pointed out that the statement was answered yesterday when Mr. Palmer announced that the records of the Department of Justice showed no record of such an agreement as is asserted by Mr. Gompers and his associates to have been made, and that Congress specifically refused to exempt labor from the provisions of the law, after such exemption had been urged by Senator Hollis of New Hampshire.

DRASTIC PENALTIES PLANNED FOR REDS

A SCORE OF RADICALS HELD

Twenty-four radicals held in bail ranging from $3,500 to $5,000 each to answer a charge of anarchy, and completion of preliminary deportation hearings for eighty-two radicals held on Ellis Island were two results yesterday of the working of American law to protect American institutions.

Convinced that all agencies are determined to make the present campaign against sedition a final one, agitators of all types and nationalities have begun an exodus from here to Canada or Mexico, said officials. None of the men wanted by the authorities, however, will escape this way, because both borders are being watched. In addition there are to be more raids in New York City.

Proof that Lenin himself had dictated the Bolshevist operations in this city was said yesterday to be in the hands of agents of the Lusk Committee. It was stated that among the documents obtained by the State investigating body in its recent raids were some signed by Lenin personally. These will be offered in evidence in due time.

While no official would confirm the statement, it was intimated that the radicals caught in the raids might be tried under State rather than Federal law. It was explained that the New York law fitted the circumstances of the charges better and also admitted of more drastic punishment.

First Prisoner a Youth.

The first of those arrested by the raiders was Irving Potash of 220 Roebling Street, Brooklyn. He is eighteen years old, slender and of the "student" type. He was before Magistrate O'Neill at the morning session of the Bridge Plaza Court. On his arraignment the police charged that Potash was the Secretary of the Communist organization at 208 Grand Street, Brooklyn. He was arrested there on Saturday night while distributing what the police charged to be anarchistic literature. Potash entered a plea of not guilty, and Magistrate O'Neill fixed bonds at $5,000.

Following the arraignment of Potash before Magistrate O'Neill, five others charged with criminal anarchy were brought into court. They were Michael Zawarich of 66 South Sixth Street, Taft Noyack of 104 North Portland Avenue, Robert E. Fried of 205 South Sixth Street, B. Goldberg of 107 Forsythe Street, and Julius Janushky of 93 South Second Street. They were held in $3,500 bail for examination tomorrow.

Eighteen others who landed in police hands through raids were arraigned before Chief Magistrate McAdoo shortly after 3 o'clock. Charles Recht appeared on behalf of the prisoners, while Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger and Archibald Stevenson of the Lusk committee appeared against them. The charge against the prisoners, which they must answer tomorrow morning before Magistrate Alexander Brough, is criminal anarchy, in that they are alleged to be members of the Communist Party, which advocates the overthrow of the United States Government.

The eighteen were lined up before Magistrate McAdoo and put up their right hands as their names were called. These are the names they gave: Louis Shapiro, 327 South Fifth Avenue, Yonkers; Nathan Schector, 347 Monroe Street; Moses Zimmerman, 135 For-

MINERS RESPONDING TO LEADERS' ORDER

SOME FIELDS MAY HOLD OUT

Workers in Kansas and Iowa Are Reported Determined to Continue the Strike.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 11.—The 42,000 striking mine workers in District No. 17, which includes the greater part of West Virginia and a section of Eastern Kentucky, were ordered back to work by C. F. Keeney, District President, in telegrams received at district headquarters of the United Mine Workers here tonight from Indianapolis. The telegram said:

"Strike order rescinded. Order men back to work."

More than a score of miners from outlying sections who were waiting at headquarters for the news immediately started out to notify the men. The order was relayed also by telephone to the various local presidents.

Mr. Keeney, District Secretary of the mine workers, said that it would "at least be three days" before all of the striking miners would be back at work. He said that many of the more than 400 sub-districts could not be reached by telephone and would have to be notified by mail.

When asked if the miners would obey the order to return to work Mr. Mooney said: "I can't tell you, for I don't know."

"Many men have reported to headquarters that miners in their sections will refuse to obey the order," said Mr. Blizzard, "but I feel confident that we can get them back to work in a few days."

Preparations are being made by army officers here today to protect every mine in the district should radicals seek to prevent union miners from obeying the order of their leaders.

At the same time it was announced that Major Gen. Leonard Wood, commanding the Central Department, would arrive here tomorrow to inspect the 1,000 Federal troops on duty in the strike region.

Intelligence officers reported the presence of a number of well known radicals in the district, and learned that a movement is under way to "prevent men from returning to work."

Topographical maps, showing the location of every mine in West Virginia have been made by the military for possible emergency and coal operators have provided a list of mines where "trouble is anticipated," as one of them expressed it.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 11.—The miners in District 5, United Mine Workers of America, were waiting today to hear from their local President, Philip Murray, who had not returned from Indianapolis late tonight, but it is known that they are ready to resume work at a few hours' notice.

At the office of the local President it was said tonight that the representatives of the union at the different mines could be reached in a very short time, and it is believed that work will be resumed in full by Thursday morning.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 11.—As soon as official advices are received from Indianapolis the coal miners in the Alabama district will return to work, according to Secretary J. L. Glen of District 20, United Mine Workers of America, who said tonight that the miners are law-abiding citizens and

RESCIND STRIKE IN TIME SET

Insist on Their Americanism and Assert Patriotism Alone Led Them to Recall Walkout Order.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 11.—A way for the adjustment of the controversy between the bituminous coal operators and the United Mine Workers of America, which resulted in a strike of 425,000 union miners and action by the Government in the Federal Court, appeared in sight tonight, according to the view here.

While the representatives of the miners, who early in the day after an all-night session had agreed to comply with the mandate of Judge A. B. Anderson of the Federal District Court, and late today mailed an order rescinding the strike, were discussing the future policy of the organization, telegrams were received from W. B. Wilson, Secretary of the Department of Labor, and Thomas T. Brewster, Chairman of the operators' Scale Committee, by John L. Lewis, acting President of the miners, inviting the miners' representatives into a conference.

Mr. Lewis, on behalf of the mine workers, accepted the invitation of Secretary Wilson to meet the bituminous operators in Washington Friday morning, and replied to Mr. Brewster, who requested a meeting of the Central Competitive Scale Committee with the operators of the district in Washington Monday "to negotiate a contract to be in force upon the termination of the contract now in effect," that the miners had already accepted the invitation to Mr. Wilson.

In commenting on the telegram from Mr. Brewster, Ellis Searles, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal, and other officials of the organization, who were under the impression that Mr. Brewster's message was sent after he received Secretary Wilson's invitation, declared that they saw in the operators' offer an attempt to entrap the miners into a tacit acknowledgment that the Washington wage agreement was still in force. The miners have contended throughout the controversy that the wage contract has expired.

"It was a neat little political move on the part of the operators," said Mr. Searles. "They believed we would accept their proposal and in doing so admit that the Washington wage agreement was still operative. The miners, however, accepted the offer of Secretary Wilson to meet him in Washington Friday and merely wired Mr. Brewster to that effect. Mr. Wilson's message was also timed one hour earlier in filing than Mr. Brewster's. We have maintained all along that the Washington contract died with the war activities and that at present the mine workers have no contract with the operators of the central competitive field."

Orders Off Within Time Fixed.

It was said at the international headquarters of the organization here that practically all the copies of the order which called off the nation-wide bituminous coal strike were in the mails before the time limit set by Judge Anderson, 6 o'clock this evening. The recall order had previously been submitted to Judge Anderson, who characterized it as a "good faith effort" to comply with the court's mandate. This was after the General Committee of the miners, composed of international officials, district Presidents, and members of the Executive Board, and Scale Committee, had been in session approximately eighteen hours, and at 4:10 this morning decided to comply with the mandate of the court.

After the General Committee, which went into session at 2 o'clock this afternoon as a policy committee, had decided to accept the invitation of Secretary Wilson and refuse that of Mr. Brewster, the committee adjourned at 5 o'clock, and many members began to make preparations for their homeward trips, those going to Washington for the Friday meeting making railroad reservations.

The Wilson invitation was not limited to the Scale Committee of the mine workers, as was the Brewster proposal. William Green, Secretary-Treasurer of the Union, explained that every district in the United States would be represented at the conference Friday, from Washington State to Maryland. The miners who will attend the meeting will include the international officers, district Presidents, or whomever the districts choose to send, members of the Executive Board and of the Scale Committee, practically the same make-up as the General Committee which has been meeting here.

Although the strike has been called off, court action in the strike case has not been completed. The miners' attorneys are preparing their writ of error with a view to appealing the case to the Circuit Court of Appeals and expect to file their petition within a few days. The attorneys stated that they expected to carry the case to the highest tribunal of the country if the Government was upheld in all lower courts.

From the standpoint of the Government the miners themselves are not absolved from further obedience to the court's injunction through withdrawal of the strike order, and unless the case is dismissed injunction writs served on more than sixty of the United Mine Workers' officials are returnable before Dec. 2.

Thirty-one officials of the organization were served with copies of the temporary restraining order issued Oct. 31, returnable Nov. 20. About twenty-five others were served during a session of the conference yesterday with copies of the temporary restraining order issued Saturday.

There was much speculation here tonight as to how the notice of withdrawal of the strike order would be received by the miners in the fields. In some quarters it was believed that the men would return almost as a unit on orders from their union chiefs. However, there were indications in some districts that a feeling against obeying the order to resume work existed. Delegates to the conference who were questioned on this subject would make no predictions.

Present Recall Letter to Court.

A few minutes before 10 o'clock this morning Mr. Warrum, G. L. Grant of Fort Smith, Ark., and Fred C. Huebner of Albia, Iowa, attorneys for the Mine Workers, went to the Federal Building with the recall letter. The Federal Government was represented by L. Ert Slack, United States District Attorney, and Dan W. Simms, Special Assistant United States District Attorney, appointed to look after enforcement of the temporary restraining order and the temporary injunction. Before the matter was presented to Judge Anderson Mr. Warrum handed the recall letter to the attorneys for the Government. The letter read:

Dear Sirs and Brothers: In obedience to the mandate issued on Nov. 8 by the United States District Court, District of Indiana, Judge A. B. Anderson presiding, the undersigned hereby advise you that the order of Oct. 15 directing a cessation of mining operations in the bituminous coal fields of our jurisdiction is withdrawn and cancelled. Yours fraternally,

JOHN L. LEWIS, Acting President.
WILLIAM GREEN, Secretary-Treasurer.

The attorneys for the Government compared the letter with the strike call and when Judge Anderson entered the room Mr. Simms handed it to the Judge.

"That complies with the order, as I take it, doesn't it?" said Judge Anderson after reading it.

"Now let me see the strike order," he ordered, and after reading it also, he observed:

"I think this is a compliance with the order. I think it is a good faith compliance."

The attorneys for the Government agreed that it was.

"That was the intention," said attorneys for the miners.

Mr. Warrum then said the letter would be printed at once and that many copies would be in the mails before 6 o'clock this evening as the court order required, but that it might not be possible to mail all the copies by that time.

"A good faith effort will be compliance," said the court.

Asked for Early Negotiations.

After Mr. Warrum had talked with Mr. Simms suggesting that statements be made by both advising an early meeting of miners and operators to negotiate a new wage agreement and asking cooperation of the Federal Government to this end, Mr. Warrum dictated the following statement:

"The operators have repeatedly declared that they were ready to enter into negotiations with the miners if this strike order were withdrawn. The Government has taken the position that in the vindication of its own supremacy the strike order must be withdrawn before they would take any steps to compel the resumption of such negotiations. The issue has been submitted to the court and in compliance with the court's ruling the strike order has been canceled and withdrawn.

"It seems to me that good faith on the part of the operators requires them to meet the miners' representatives at once for the purpose of negotiating a settlement of the wage controversy, and that good faith on the part of the Government requires it to see that such a resumption of negotiations is had at once and concluded without delay."

Acting President John L. Lewis of the mine workers, in announcing the decision to obey the court order, said:

"We will comply with the mandate of the court. We do it under protest. We are Americans. We cannot fight our Government. That is all."

Mr. Lewis glanced at his watch and announced that the decision was reached at 4:10 this morning. The conference, after an all-day and an all-night session, adjourned at 4:15 this morning.

Green Assails the Government.

Just before the miners convened this afternoon William Green, Secretary-Treasurer of the Miners' Union, issued the following statement:

"The United Mine Workers' representatives decided to obey the mandate of the Federal court, but in doing so they feel a great injustice has been done them. No attention has been paid to their grievances. The power of the Federal Government was united with the coal operators for the obvious purpose of forcing them to work under intolerable conditions and against their will.

"One may reasonably ask if forcing men to work against their will and without a contract is not involuntary servitude? It is surprising, indeed, that such a condition would be tolerated in America, where involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, is prohibited by the Federal Constitution. Evidently the Government determined that the miners must be compelled to work regardless of their grievances, their protests, or their constitutional rights.

"What must be the state of mind of the miners who, while smarting with a sense of injustice, are driven back to the mines over their protest and against their will by the very Government which they supported and served so loyally during the war with Germany?

"What must be the feeling of these men when they realize that the Federal Government chose to protect the coal operators who profiteered during the war and to crush the miners when they are striving for decent tolerable conditions of employment and a higher standard of life?

"In fairness to the miners, the Government ought to have directed its legal and moral force toward compelling the operators to meet the miners in joint conference for the purpose of negotiating an agreement and for the settlement of just grievances.

"In behalf of the Mine Workers' Organization, I protest against the gross injustice which the Federal Government has inflicted on the mine workers of America."

Says Patriotism Actuates Miners.

Patriotic devotion to the Government and American ideals and institutions caused the United Mine Workers of America to comply with the order of the United States Court to withdraw the strike order, according to a statement made tonight by Ellis Searles, editor of The United Mine Workers' Journal. The statement follows:

"When the officials of the United Mine Workers of America announced that they would comply with the order of the United States Court and obey its mandate, they simply followed the historic policy of the union of patriotic devotion to the Government and American ideals and institutions. The United Mine Workers will not fight the Government. It is their Government just as it is the Government of every other citizen. It is their Government just as it is the Government of the coal operators.

"So far as their dispute with the coal operators is concerned, the miners contended all along and still contend that their cause is just, and that they are entitled to higher wages and better working conditions. So long as it was a controversy between the miners and the operators, the miners were determined to wage their battle for the things which they believed then and now they were entitled to.

"But when the Government entered the case and proceeded to make a fight against the miners, the entire situation was changed. They felt that the Government was wrong in taking this position, and they contested in the courts the right of the Government to do so. But the court ruled against them and laid down the law, and the miners accepted the mandate of the court because they are good Americans who believe in law and order, and who always have insisted on lawful and orderly methods of procedure.

"There is nothing new in this attitude of the coal miners. In every instance where Americanism was needed, in every emergency where American citizens had to come to the aid of their country, the coal miners of America have led the way.

"Eighty thousand members of the United Mine Workers of America entered the military service in the world war and more than $3,000 gave their lives in that struggle. The United Mine Workers and its members bought more than $10,000,000 worth of Liberty bonds out of their small earnings. They contributed hundreds of thousands of dollars to the Red Cross, the Salvation Army, the Knights of Columbus, the Y. M. C. A., and every other war relief fund. The nation asked the coal miners for a maximum output of coal during the war and they produced more coal than ever before in the history of the world.

"The coal miners believe in observance of the law of the land. When their Government speaks they obey, regardless of personal sacrifices. Naturally, then, when the Government told them to call off the strike they responded patriotically and loyally.

"Now, what will the operators do?"

LEADERS WORN OUT BY ALL-NIGHT DEBATE

Many Fall Asleep in Chairs After 17 Hours of Deliberation—Refuse to Talk of Session.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 11.—With the attention of the whole country focused on their deliberations the leaders of the United Mine Workers of America battled all day yesterday, all last night until early this morning to decide on the course that the 400,000 members of their organization should take in the face of the Federal Court mandate that the strike order be recalled.

The decision to recall the strike order was only reached at 4:10 o'clock as morning dawned after nearly seventeen hours of discussion in which the mine workers' attitude toward the stand taken by the Government on the strike was thrashed out from every angle.

The full story of that dramatic and stormy session cannot be told for it was held behind closed doors and the participants are reluctant to tell all that transpired.

It is understood that both Mr. Lewis and Mr. Green counseled compliance with the court order, though both have felt that the attitude of the Federal Government has been unjust and unfair to the mine workers.

It was a battle between radicals and conservatives, between the impetuous and the sane, between defiance and obedience to the order of the court.

No Restriction on Speeches.

Evidently no restriction was placed on the length or number of the speeches. That was held to be the best policy, as many of the conferees came to Indianapolis asserting the justice of the strike and advised by the miners to stand firm by the Cleveland convention's instructions.

By 2 o'clock in the morning, however, many of the conferees had wearied of the debate and they walked out in the hotel corridors and chatted in little groups while the others continued the discussion.

On one point the conferees, regardless of whether they were for obedience or defiance to the court order, were unanimous, it was asserted by various members, and this was in intense resentment against the course taken by the national Administration.

"We don't blame Judge Anderson so much," said a conferee. "He was up against the guns. We blame those fellows in Washington who put him up against it."

The resentment, said to have been expressed by speaker after speaker, was to this effect:

"The Federal Government charges a conspiracy in violation of a wartime act, although the war was over months ago, and tries to make us out a lot of lawbreakers, lacking consideration for the welfare of our country, while the fact is that there was no more loyal organization in the war than the miners. The mine workers stood firm for their country and against any disloyalty in the membership, and now they resent from the bottom of their hearts the light in which the Federal Government seems to place them."

Sane Counsel Prevails in the End.

The view which finally resulted in the decision to obey the court order was that neither the miners nor any other American organization can afford to set at naught a court order, that defiance would not only be unlawful, but unwise, as it would solidify public sentiment against the miners and delay or prevent a wage settlement in the future, when, as obedience, even under protest, would regain the lost of public opinion and would put the miners in a position to make clear to the country the justice of their demands for a higher wage and better working conditions.

Some assertions which were leaked through the closed doors were:

"It would be a violation of law to defy the order of the court."

"Posterity will be affected by our decision."

"If we violate this injunction we are in a fight against the Government and in a revolution against the United States."

"I want to ask you, if we give them one of the hardest fights they have ever had in the United States, will not the Government respect the workingmen?"

"If they're going into the course we are going to have to make the fight sooner or later.

"We can win by orderly processes. I think it would be unwisdal to defy the courts and institutions."

Farrington Agrees to Compliance.

It is reported that he said he gave his consent to the rescinding of the strike order with the understanding that he doubted the right of the conference to undo what the Cleveland convention had ordered to be done; that he would explain to the miners of Illinois the reason for his action, and leave it to them to decide what course they should pursue; that he denies any personal political ambition in the policy he had pursued, his only aim being to serve the best interests of the miners; that he denied any rivalry or jealousy between himself and other leaders; that he said the Federal Government believed the strike was an officers' strike into which the miners were led, while the "truth was that the strike came from the rank and file of the miners themselves, and that he denounced an article, written by one who has been "fostered and fed" by the United Mine Workers of America, which had attributed the strike largely to internal politics and Farrington's ambition.

GREGORY DENIES PROMISE.

Never Agreed to Except Labor from Lever Act, He Declares.

Former Attorney General Gregory denied in a statement here today that he had given assurances to labor leaders that the Lever act would not be enforced against their organizations in attempts to better working conditions, as asserted by officers of the American Federation of Labor.

"While Attorney General I did not at any time give assurances to any one that any law would not be enforced against any class of citizens," he said. "I gave no assurances that the Government would not seek to enforce the Lever act against workers."

BOMB OUTRAGES CAUSE TERROR IN DONORA

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 11.—The residents of Donora, about twenty miles up the Monongahela River, are terror stricken over the frequent bomb outrages and are clamoring for more police protection. Last night a daring attempt was made to dynamite the tracks of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad, and the home of a foreigner in Gilmore Terrace. The State Constabulary is working on both cases and has discovered clues which they believe may lead to arrests.

The effort to blow up the tracks of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad was made at the Webster end of the Donora-Webster bridge. A stick of dynamite was placed between two box cars and exploded. Only a small section of the track was damaged and traffic was not hindered.

Half an hour earlier the kitchen of a Gilmore Terrace house, a one-room addition to the dwelling, was completely shattered. Members of the family in other parts of the house were badly shaken up and shocked. State troopers took up the trail of two men who were seen to flee from the vicinity of the Donora-Webster bridge.

Four persons narrowly escaped death and Fayette City was rocked a second time within a few hours when a charge of dynamite virtually wrecked the residence of Michael Sulak at 3:30 this day. The explosion followed by a few hours the explosion which wrecked the powder house at the Arnold No. 2 mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company. The police and detectives are without a single clue. Sulak is employed at the plant of the Pittsburgh Steel Products Company, where a strike has been in progress for some time.

that they will obey the order of the courts to resume their jobs.

Organizer William L. Harrison gave out a statement tonight in which he bitterly criticized the Government for its action, but he agreed with Secretary Clem that the men would return as soon as they were instructed by their chiefs to do so.

Coal operators assert that they are ready to resume operations at all mines as soon as the men return to work.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 11.—Bituminous coal miners of Texas will obey instructions of their national officers to return to work as soon as the formal order is received, according to a statement made by Ed Cunningham, a State miners' official.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 11.—Representatives of the thirty-six Washington locals of the United Mine Workers will meet as soon as possible to make plans for returning to work, Ernest Newsham, State District Secretary of the mine workers, said here today.

"We will abide by the decision of the court and the National Workers' Committee," he said.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Soft coal miners in the Blossburg, Penn., field were quoted as saying today that they were glad to return to work as soon as the order was received from their union chiefs. Word from Blossburg, where there are about 1,000 miners, was that both citizens and miners were well pleased with the decision of the miners' leaders to obey the court mandate.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 11.—Coal mines in Oklahoma and Arkansas are making preparations to resume full operations before the end of the week. Peter R. Stewart, Commissioner of the Southwestern Interstate Coal Operators' Association, announced this evening that at many of the camps whistles would be blown tomorrow morning. It is not thought that many will respond to the call until the official report has been received from Indianapolis calling off the strike. In their resentment of the action of the Government in stopping the strike by injunction the miners are joined by virtually all labor men in the mining district.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 11.—Iowa miners will not return to work in spite of the rescinding of the strike order, in the opinion of Joseph Morris, Vice President of District No. 13, United Mine Workers of America, expressed here today. J. C. Lewis, District President, is expected back from Indianapolis tomorrow.

"The men are determined to stay out until the strike is legally stopped," Morris said. "The national officers have not the authority to call off the strike and I feel certain that this order of revocation of the strike order, issued because of force, will have no effect on the local situation."

PITTSBURGH, Kan., Nov. 11.—In the headquarters of the Kansas district there was silence among the officials of the coal miners, but out in the camps there was bitter denunciation of the court action which forced the cancellation of the strike order.

Up to late this afternoon the word had not come from Howat, who is District President, and attended the conference at Indianapolis.

But out in the field the miners were not silent. An extra edition of an afternoon paper was issued early this morning, carrying the news of the decision of the miners' officials to obey the Court's mandate, and at noon a man brought a bundle of the papers into the newspaper office, to which was tied a note which said:

It was signed "Bunch of Ringo Miners."

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 11.—Illinois coal miners are in a defiant mood tonight and declare that they will pay no attention to the order issued today by National President John L. Lewis calling off the strike, and that they will not return to work.

While there is no official statement to this effect, State President Farrington, State Vice President Pistrick, and Secretary Treasurer Nesbitt are in Indianapolis and there is no one to speak for them. Officers of local unions here and individual miners declare they will not return to work.

One hundred miners from all parts of the State are in the city taking the State mine examination for mine managers, mine examiners, and hoisting engineers. They say that President Lewis has no authority to call off the strike.

"The Government can arrest us and fine us and that is the end of it," they declare.

JOLIET, Ill., Nov. 11.—The order declaring the miners' strike at an end was received with little enthusiasm here in Coal City and the Wilmington fields. Among the rank and file of the workers the general sentiment indicated that the men are not anxious to return to work until some increase in wages is granted. Joe Harron, Treasurer of the Miners' Union, said: "The chances are that the miners of Illinois will not go back to work."

REDS SHOOT DOWN VETERANS IN PARADE

suing a supposed I. W. W. According to ex-service men, Hubbard's party caught the man they were chasing on the banks of the Skookumchuck River, a small stream which runs through the town. Hubbard and the man grappled, and the supposed I. W. W. fired into Hubbard's body.

George Stevens, another of the party, kicked the pistol from the I. W. W.'s hands, and a rope was thrown about the man's neck, put over the crossarm of a telephone pole, and he was hoisted into the air. The police persuaded the crowd to let the man down, and he was taken to jail nearly dead. It was this man, according to reports, that was taken from jail tonight and hanged.

T. C. Rogers, Mayor of Centralia; A. H. Green, Chief of Police, and other citizens addressed the crowd in front of the jail tonight, asking the citizens not to attempt to lynch the prisoners.

Bullets Poured Out on Soldiers.

The whole city had turned out to celebrate the anniversary of the suspension of hostilities, and a large parade was formed, headed by the city's boys who had helped bring about the glad day a year ago, wearing the uniforms that sheltered them in the trenches of France and on the picket lines of the German border.

As the column swung around the corner of Tower Avenue and Second Avenue, the band struck up a patriotic marsh. Then bullets came into the ranks from an unseen enemy. Men fell to the pavement and tiny rivulets of blood showed the spectators what had taken place, the crack of the rifles of the assassins having been drowned by the blare of the band.

Tiny puffs of smoke from the roof of a near-by building indicated whence the bullets had come, and the rearmost of the I. W. W. hall led to the quick decision that the victims had been slain from ambush by radicals who opposed the American system of government. The marching soldiers did not await the order to fall out, but rushed into the near-by structure and made their way to the roofs. The snipers had disappeared (but the service men searched the highways and byways for all suspicious persons, and then sent parties out into the timbered country around the city.

The service men soon stripped the hall of all furniture and documents and arrested about a dozen men. These were marched to jail, while they were guarded by the former soldiers to prevent their escape and at the same time to protect them from lynching. A mob seeking the prisoners was fought back by the overseas men.

A quantity of arms and ammunition was seized when the I. W. W. headquarters was ransacked. The people broke down the building front and threw into the street and burned all of the organization's literature and property which could be found.

Meanwhile wives, daughters, and sweethearts of the paraders, after a momentary pause from the sudden terror of the situation, had rushed to the aid of the fallen.

Tonight a mob carrying ropes surrounded the Centralia Jail, but it was still guarded by former soldiers. Other former soldiers were going picket duty tonight in all parts of the city and searching for other suspects.

Farmers from surrounding points and citizens of nearby towns, including Chehalis and Olympia, are pouring into Centralia tonight. Many of them are offering their services.

Troops Called from Tacoma.

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 11.—Company F, Third Regiment National Guard, stationed in Tacoma, was ordered mobilized immediately for duty at Centralia by Governor Hart tonight. Captain Thomas Shirtleff, commanding the company, seventy strong, immediately started the work of mobilizing. The troops will move at once, Brig. General Moss, Adjutant General of the State, said that whether further troops would be sent would depend upon the situation at Centralia after the arrival of Company F.

Centralia Reds Sought Revenge.

SEATTLE, Nov. 11.—Officials here tonight expressed a belief that the attack on the armistice parade at Centralia today was a counter move by radicals against Centralia business men.

According to a story published in a Seattle labor organ on Oct. 24, Centralia business men, meeting under the auspices of the Citizens' Protective League, started a campaign to drive every radical from the city. Several lumbermen were prominent in the move, the story said. Every I. W. W. was to be listed and expected to leave the city, the article said.

Charges were made here by radicals that Centralia citizens "kidnapped" the Centralia agent of a Seattle labor paper.

GERMAN COAL CRISIS IS STILL ACUTE

RUHR OUTPUT INCREASES

With 186,000 Cars at Their Disposal, Mines Rush Coal to South Germany.

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—Despite the stoppage of passenger traffic on the railways throughout Germany to allow the coal reserves to be increased as important centres and food supplies to be transported more abundantly, the situation appears to be growing worse than ever. Ministers may make optimistic statements, but the fact is that the coal supply is decreasing every day, and the Minister of Railways may soon find himself compelled to seize coal wherever he finds it.

There is some talk of households being limited to a ration of one briquette each per day. All freight cars belonging to private firms have been commandeered by the Government, with a view to speeding up transport generally. In the Hanover district the coal supplies for locomotives are quite exhausted. On some lines from Berlin freight traffic has been greatly reduced, and such places as Hamburg and Stettin are suffering from an almost complete suspension of freight traffic.

Berlin's potato supply has been reduced by 50 per cent. in the past few days. It is also announced that the milk ration will be cut down tomorrow from half a liter to a quarter, while there will not be enough to allow the usual ration of a quarter of a liter for invalids.

BERLIN, Nov. 11 (Associated Press).—The first tangible results of the Government embargo on passenger traffic have been reported from the Ruhr coal fields of West Prussia, where approximately 100,000 freight cars were placed at the disposal of the mines last week. This represents an increase of 20 per cent. over the previous week. The deliveries of rolling stock apparently were larger than the mines were capable of accommodating, and as a result there has been a drop in the number of cars called for during the past few days. The Ruhr coal deliveries, which are expected to show a heavy increase this week, are being diverted chiefly to South German cities.

More than 7,000 cars daily were placed at the disposal of the Upper Silesian coal fields last week. This being also an increase of 25 per cent. over the previous week and more than sufficient to meet the daily output of the mines.

The Prussian Minister of Railways, Herr Oester, threatens to confiscate all visible supplies of coal unless the Imperial Coal Commissioner comes to his rescue with promised deliveries.

The Coal Commissioner has informed Hert Oester that the present difficulty of a shortage of coal is a result of organic shortcomings of the Railway Administration and lack of co-operation by both departments in their failure to exploit the canals to their full limit in the movement of coal.

The Prussian Railway Ministry has published a statement saying that its fears that freight traffic could not be maintained, notwithstanding the cessation of passenger service, are proving to be correct. The statement says in the Hamburg district that coal supplies are exhausted, making it impossible to move even freight; that the lines from Halle to Berlin are similarly tied up, and that Altona, Stettin and other centers are complaining that freight cannot be moved.

BRITAIN TO CUT COAL PRICES

London Chronicle Reports Unions Agree to Greater Individual Output.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The Chronicle's labor correspondent in pointing out that there is a prospect of coal becoming cheaper here says: "It is understood that the Government is prepared to agree to a reduction in the price providing it does not involve any burden on the Exchequer. The reduction must be based on an increase of the individual output of coal per miner, and the Government will require an undertaking from the miners' leaders that the output shall be increased."

The correspondent adds that the leaders will inform the Premier tomorrow that the output will continue to increase and will claim that an immediate reduction in the price of coal is possible.

The correspondent also says that the Parliamentary Committee of the Trade Union Congress will hold an important meeting tomorrow to discuss the question of the formation of a "labor cabinet" to represent all the trade unions of the country.

BARS FEDERAL LABOR FROM STRIKING UNIONS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Affiliation of Government employes' organizations with any union or federation which advocates strikes as a means of settling disputes would be prohibited under an amendment to the bill providing increased pay for Washington police, which was passed tonight by the Senate and sent to conference.

The amendment was proposed by Senator Myers, Democrat, Montana, and was adopted by viva voce vote. Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, opposed the amendment, declaring it was too far reaching and would affect not only postal employes but also Government workers in navy yards, munitions plants and even on the railroads while they are under Government control.

SEIZE 60 IN PORTLAND.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 11.—Police tonight raided headquarters of the Household Workers, Soldiers' and Sailors' Club and took sixty men into custody.

The police acted following a report that those in the club were meeting to protest against "persecution" of the I. W. W. at Centralia, Wash. The men were taken to the police station for investigation.

Garfield Sees Patriotic Stand.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Nov. 11.—Federal Fuel Administrator Harry A. Garfield, when asked tonight if he had any comment to make on the decision of the coal miners to return to work, said: "It is very gratifying that men have taken the position that their country is ahead of the union and that as good American citizens they intend to obey the laws."

rank and file of the mine workers will obey the orders of their leaders and that before the end of the present week most, if not all, of the union mines will be working full time. This is the view of Attorney General Palmer, who, it goes without saying, was very happy as a result of the turn affairs took at Indianapolis this morning.

"The strike order having been withdrawn," said the Attorney General after the Cabinet meeting, "the Secretary of Labor will immediately ask the operators and the officials of the United Mine Workers of America to come to Washington for the purpose of resuming negotiations for the adjustment of wages, hours of work, and such other matters as are now matters of issue between the miners and the owners of the coal mines.

"I have assumed from the beginning that the miners, as good citizens, would obey the law and I am very happy that my assumption was correct. The way is now open to a settlement by the peaceful processes which should always be employed in settling such disputes, without injury to the public."

Secretary of Labor Wilson was all smiles as he left the Cabinet meeting. For more than twenty years he was an official of the United Mine Workers of America. One of his colleagues said only yesterday that the Secretary was almost broken-hearted over the turn affairs then seemed to have taken in the coal controversy.

Surprise to Gompers Council.

The action of the officials of the United Mine Workers in bowing to the authority of law and order caused great relief in all official Washington. Some officials of the Government have maintained all along that when the time came President Lewis and his associates would obey the mandate of the United States court, but there were others, and they were perhaps in the majority, who felt after the issuance of the statement of the American Federation of Labor on Sunday night, in which the Federation assumed a defiant attitude in the controversy, that Lewis and the other officials of the miners' organization would refuse to recognize the mandate of the court and would go to jail rather than cancel the strike order.

While no one in the Federation of Labor Building would admit it, there is every reason for the assertion that the action of President Lewis and his colleagues came as a complete surprise to the members of the Executive Council of the Federation. That it was the general belief among the Federation officials that the strike would not be called off is the opinion of practically every one who has kept in touch with the coal situation during the last few days.

It was recalled that only last night, a few hours before the officials of the miners' organization voted to obey the law, Samuel Gompers, speaking at a dinner to the delegates to the International Labor Conference, intimated that it was honorable to go to jail in defense of what he termed the cause of justice and democracy.

That the decision of the officials of the United Mine Workers is another telling blow against radicalism in the ranks of American labor is a view that many officials in Washington take. It is well known here that the radical elements have exerted a powerful influence in the steel strike and that to a lesser extent they have sought to have a controlling word in the bituminous coal situation. Lewis, the head of the miners, has always been considered one of the conservative forces in American labor councils. He is against nationalization of the mines, and is known to have no sympathy with the ultra-radical groups that have tried to "bore from within" in the American Federation of Labor.

Senator Kenyon of Iowa, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, has known Lewis for many years. A few days ago, while in conversation with THE TIMES correspondent, Senator Kenyon referred to Lewis as one of the most conservative men in the labor movement. On that occasion Senator Kenyon predicted that if the strike developed into a contest between law and order on the one side, and the labor organizations on the other, Lewis would take his position on the side of the law.

"Whatever else you may say about Lewis," said Senator Kenyon, "he is an American above everything else. He has no sympathy for the Bolshevist element, and they will get scant comfort when it comes to dealing with him."

In the halls of Congress the action of the miners was commended on all sides, and members were of the opinion that Mr. Lewis and his associates had greatly strengthened their position by placing their Americanism ahead of everything else and bowing to the authority of the courts.

Text of Calls to Conference.

Thomas T. Brewster,
Chairman, Coal Operators' Association,
Fullerton Building, St. Louis, Mo.

The officials of the United Mine Workers of America having this day withdrawn the strike order, I request that you and associated representatives of coal operators from the different fields involved in the present strike, including the scale committee of the Central Competitive Coal Field, meet me in the City of Washington in the Auditorium of the new Interior Department Building on Friday, Nov. 14th, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of negotiating a basis of settlement. Will you immediately communicate this request to your associates and urge upon them the importance of their presence?

I have sent the same request to Mr. Harry N. Taylor, of the National Coal Association, and also requested Acting President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America, and his associates, to meet me at the same time and place.

WILLIAM B. WILSON,
Secretary of Labor.

The officials of the United Mine Workers of America having this day withdrawn the strike order, I request that you and associated representatives of coal operators from the different fields involved in the present strike meet me in the city of Washington, in the auditorium of the new Interior Department Building, on Friday, Nov. 14, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of negotiating a basis of settlement. Will you immediately communicate this request to your associates and urge upon them the importance of their presence?

I have sent the same request to Mr. Brewster of the Central Competitive Field and I have also requested Acting President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America, and his associates, to meet at the same time and place.

WILLIAM B. WILSON,
Secretary of Labor.

The invitation to Mr. Lewis was:

"The officials of the United Mine Workers of America having this day withdrawn the strike order, I request that you and associated representatives of coal operators from the different fields involved in the present strike meet me in the City of Washington in the auditorium of the new Interior Department Building on Friday, Nov. 14, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of negotiating a basis of settlement. Will you immediately communicate this request to your associates and urge upon them the importance of their presence? I have sent the same request to Thomas T. Brewster, Chairman of the Coal Operators' Association, and also requested Acting President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America and his associates to meet me at the same time and place."

I have sent a similar telegram to Thomas T. Brewster, specifically applying to the Operators' Scale Committee of the central competitive coalfields. I therefore make a similar request that you and associate representatives of the United Mine Workers of America from all districts involved in the present strike meet me for the same purpose in Washington in the auditorium of the new Interior Department Building at 11 o'clock A. M. on Friday, Nov. 14, 1919, as set forth in the telegram to Mr. Harry N. Taylor.

WILLIAM B. WILSON,
Secretary of Labor.

Prompt resumption of negotiations imperative in the public interests. Will you and your Scale Committee meet the Scale Committee of the operators of the Central Competitive Field Monday, Nov. 17, to negotiate a contract to be in force upon the termination of contract now in effect?

THOMAS T. BREWSTER.

Old Demands to Be Dropped.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11. (Associated Press.)—When the conference of miners and operators is held here Friday, instead of there being present representatives of miners and operators only from the central competitive fields, embracing Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, and Western Pennsylvania, the conference will include miners from all fields involved in the strike, stretching over more than twenty States. Secretary Wilson's action in broadening the scope of the wage negotiations was a surprise to operators, but the larger plan of representation was adopted because of the desire of men from other fields to have a voice in the deliberations.

The meetings will not be public, but Mr. Wilson will sit with the two groups, as he did before, and urge them to settle their differences and quickly reach a new agreement. All of the former demands, including the five-day week, the six-hour day, and a 60 per cent. increase in wages will be dropped from the slate and a new start made.

Investigation of the strike was proposed today in a Senate resolution introduced by Senator Jones, Republican, of Washington, after press reports of the miners' decision to recall the strike order had been read at the request of Senator Pomerene, Democrat, of Ohio. The resolution was referred to the Senate Labor Committee, which recently completed an investigation of the steel strike and which will determine whether a coal inquiry is advisable.

The resolution would give the committee authority to suggest any measures for Federal action to prevent recurrence of similar strikes. Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, said that the resolution also should be broad enough to authorize investigation of Judge Anderson's injunction order.

In presenting the reports of the miners' action Senator Pomerene said that he believed the miners were entitled to some wage increases and that he could see no reason why there should not be an amicable adjustment of the controversy.

Officials gave the first intimation of the reserve coal stocks after hearing that the strike had been called off. Director General Hines estimated that the coal held under the supervision of the Central Coal Committee aggregated about 15,000,000 tons. This, together with coal in storage, and at tidewater bunkering stations, constituted what was estimated to be a thirty-day's supply for domestic consumption.

The daily production during the strike augmented this supply somewhat. Figures for the bituminous output on Nov. 4, the only day for which the production was made public, showed that approximately 484,000 tons were loaded from mines. The normal daily production before the strike was estimated by Railroad Administration officials at 1,867,000 tons.

PETLURA'S ARMY TO YIELD TO DENIKIN

YUDENITCH RALLIES AGAIN

LONDON, Nov. 11.—A wireless dispatch received today from General Denikin, the anti-Bolshevist leader in South Russia, says 30,000 Galicians (Poles?) have joined the volunteer army and that as a consequence General Simon Petlura, head of the Ukrainian forces, intends to lay down arms. [The advent of the Galicians seems to indicate that Petlura's forces have been taken in rear and surrounded.]

The loss of Uriupinskaya, where General Denikin claims to have captured 1,000 prisoners, is admitted in a Bolshevist communication received here today.

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 11, (Associated Press.)—General Yudenitch is counterattacking with an offensive against Gatchina, according to a communiqué issued by the Northwest Russian army Sunday. Attacks on the right and left flanks of Yudenitch's army, the statement says, were repulsed with great loss.

It is reported that General Yudenitch has evacuated Yamburg and that large Bolshevist forces are approaching the Narva line, which the Esthonians are strongly holding.

The belief is expressed here that the Bolsheviki are planning a military demonstration in order to influence the negotiations now in progress between the representatives of the Baltic States at Dorpat.

REVAL, Nov. 10, (Associated Press.)—The outlook in Northwestern Russia is regarded as hopeful, notwithstanding recent reverses. The optimism is apparently based on the taking over by France of the duties of the British military mission, with the appointment of General Niessel in command. He is expected to arrive in the next few days, and it is hoped that unity of command will be established and sufficient supplies assured.

The evacuation of Yamburg is extremely difficult as the town is crowded with refugees and the hospitals are filled. Communication with Narva is bad, owing to the lack of rolling stock.

OMSK, Nov. 5, (Associated Press.)—General Diedrichs has resigned as commander of the Western armies of the Omsk Government. He is succeeded by General Sakharoff, former commander of the Third Army. The resignation of General Diedrichs was the result of lack of accord with Admiral Kolchak, head of the Omsk Government, over the question of transferring the capital eastward.

General Sakharoff, said to be a plucky officer and a strict disciplinarian, was an intelligence officer in the Russian Imperial Army and later had charge of an officers' training school at Vladivostok.

Evacuation of Omsk by civilian institutions, hospitals, Government offices and civilians continues in perfect order. There is a continuous stream of carts and trucks loaded with all conceivable articles on the way to the station, but there is no undue haste and no panic.

Freezing weather, accompanied by a considerable snowfall, makes severe the plight of the civilian refugees and the sick and wounded, who mostly are obliged to resort to unheated or partially heated box cars. The American Red Cross has removed a portion of the hospital patients to awaiting trains. It is hoped complete evacuation of the hospital will be accomplished within two days.

The railway personnel and the Red Cross personnel, with the exception of doctors and nurses who accompany the sanitary trains, will leave Omsk aboard the train of Earnest Harris, American Consul General, should conditions become acute here. The American hospital is going to Irkutsk.

Admiral Kolchak yesterday informed Consul General Harris of his intention to continue the struggle against the Bolsheviki, saying he was not discouraged by the present prospect. He expressed gratitude for American assistance and particularly emphasized his appreciation of the work of the Red Cross, without which, he declared, it would have been impossible to maintain the sanitary department of his armies.

The Admiral was most complimentary in referring to the work of Consul General Harris during the past year. He said his cordial co-operation had been a source of comfort and encouragement.

It has been reported that an effort is being made to secure further military assistance from Czecha now in Siberia, but Admiral Kolchak admitted repatriation of the Czechs would continue in accordance with the Paris plan. He declared he was not counting on outside military assistance.

BALTIC CONFERENCE ON.

DORPAT, Livonia, Nov. 10, (Associated Press.)—Delegates of the Baltic States, summoned to meet here, held conferences yesterday and again this morning. The first general meeting, with representatives of Finland, the Ukraine, and Poland in attendance, was held this afternoon. White Russia also was represented.

So far there has been only an exchange of views on the questions of an armistice with the Bolsheviki and the formation of a border States league.

At a luncheon today M. Pilp, Chief of the Esthonian delegation, who presided, expressed the hope that the conference would result in the bringing of peace to Eastern Europe.

Bolshevist representatives, who probably will be Maxim Litvinoff, former Ambassador to London; George Tchitcherin, Foreign Minister, and M. Krasin, Minister of Commerce and Trade, are expected to arrive in Dorpat Monday to discuss with the representatives of the Baltic States the question of the exchange of prisoners of war, on which further negotiations are conditioned.

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 11, (Associated Press.)—The correspondent was informed today that the conditions for an armistice with the Bolsheviki have not been fixed at the Baltic conference in Dorpat, but that the representatives of the Baltic States have agreed on a neutral zone and decided to ask the Allies to supervise it. The Allies are not represented at the Dorpat conference, but are being kept fully informed as to its progress.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 10.—The Lithuanian Agency learns from Kovno that through the mediation of American, British and French representatives the Lithuanian Government has agreed to participate in a conference with a view to settling differences between Lithuania and Poland.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 10.—The head of the British Red Cross here tells me that some 330 British prisoners of the Bolsheviki are in a terrible state of hunger and destitution at Moscow. An attempt to get two tons of food supplies through to them via Finland, being so far blocked at the Finnish frontier. He added that unless exchanged speedily none would survive the Winter.

Opinion here outside of socialist circles appears unanimous that there will be no industrial peace in the world until the Russian Soviet Government is eliminated. Asked what he thought of M. Scavenius's assertion that Red propaganda was aimed rather against the workman's leaders than the employers, a member of a great transatlantic company said:

"There is no doubt whatever that this is the case. The dock strike here, which was proved beyond question to have a Bolshevist origin, affords a close parallel with recent troubles in New York in that the aim was to cause rioting and military intervention, which would intensify the cleavage between the easily manipulated labor masses and their more conservative organized chiefs."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The present crop of Louisiana sugar, estimated at approximately 100,000 tons, will be offered to the retail trade at about 18½ cents a pound, officials of the Department of Justice announced tonight in making public the approval of Attorney General Palmer to the maximum price of 17 cents to the refiner which recently was agreed upon by refiners and the United States District Attorney at New Orleans.

The price of the Louisiana crop, the official pointed out, in no way changes the fixed retail prices on other grades of sugar.

FEARS LOSS OF PRESTIGE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—Today, one year after the roar of cannon has died down along the line, which stretched from Switzerland to the North Sea, peace has not yet come to the world. When the Allies were united in the common cause of world justice, now, according to opinion here, they are divided by their personal interests.

Backstair politics and intrigue, it is felt, have halted the work of the Peace Conference until it stumbles along day after day and gets no nearer the solution of the problems that confront it. Common faith has been replaced by common suspicion, and war of diplomats has split Europe into many more parts than the war of armies did.

A year ago Europe looked to America as a saviour and guide. Today, ready for peace and needing peace, Europe fumes and frets at America because the Senate withholds action on the treaty, and the uncertainty of the Washington situation reflects itself over here in indecision and confusion over what should be done. The Allies dread going ahead with the treaty enforcement without America, and they fear America will not give the help they counted on.

It was France that paid the biggest price in the winning of the war, and it is France that pays the biggest price in waiting for peace. France needs most the fruits of victory and of the resumption of normal life in Europe. Having paid the price of nearly two million men to gain victory, France finds herself today crippled, financially and economically.

The spirit of France, the spirit that won the war, is being adulterated with the poison of Bolshevism. Strike follows strike in monotonous consistency. Silent factories and darkened streets and stilled tramways and shivering thousands mark the fuel shortage. Mounting prices that never cease climbing strain the economic situation day by day.

Lausanne Sees Victory Lost.

Stephane Lausanne, editor of Le Matin, has written for publication today a solemn warning to his country. A strike in the newspaper printing establishments prevented its wide circulation.

"A year ago at 11 o'clock in the morning," he writes, "the tumult which had filled four years of history stopped suddenly. Blood ceased to flow.

"To the sudden silence upon the battlefield there was the answer of the great shouting of joy in the cities. People kissed one another, they danced, they sang in all the cities.

"It was joy like no other joy. It was joy mixed with tears, for the people who had succeeded in hiding their grief since 1914 let themselves weep. It was a joy which seemed to mark the end of an era, to change a people of conquered into a people of conquerors, and which should repay France for all her sorrows.

"Today we do not celebrate the anniversary of victory.

"The Government has not wished to do so.

"Does it fear to emphasize the disillusionment of a people which no longer believes in its victory?

"On the eleventh of November, 1918, the pound sterling was worth 26 French francs. On the eleventh of November, 1919, it is worth 38. The American dollar was worth 5 francs 40. Now it is worth more than 9 francs.

"The 11th of November, 1918, France was the first nation of the world. She seemed to gather a civilization around her and to resume her historic mission, which was always to mark the road for the peoples of the world.

"Had not her soldiers at the Marne saved the world? Had not she supplied the chiefs who had just led the Allies to victory?

"There remained for her only after having succeeded in the strategy of war to succeed in the strategy of peace. It seemed she was prepared by her history for this. She is the country of equilibrium and balance.

Says Her Prestige Has Vanished.

"She had the prestige that the defeats of 1814, of 1815, and of 1870 could not destroy, that victory of 1918 had just renewed.

It was her revolution, it was her code, it was her art which had renewed, refreshed, and charmed the universe. Her inventions had nourished all sciences, her ideas had served all free intellects, there was not upon earth a summit where she had not played her rôle, not a Calvary whose steps were not marked with her blood.

"And here she is the year after alone upon the Rhine, having solved neither the Russian problem, nor the Turkish problem, nor the Balkan problem, nor her own problem, since she awaits still the first reparations from Germany, since she is yet in ignorance of the sum which will come to her from the first twenty-five billions, which should be paid before 1921 by Germany to the Allies."

"There is something sorrowful in this incertitude," writes Louis Berthou. "Yes, because our troubles increase. And one asks—if we were not able to obtain our rights day after day when our allies were upon our territory, before our wounds still open, of what account today are the declarations of Ministers who promise us our rights tomorrow when international agreement shall have been reached, less bloody but almost more pitiless than the war?

"For, if this day inclines to meditation on that degree, it inclines us to despair.

"Yes, a year ago life was more hopeful than today. But wasn't it more hopeful seventeen months ago. On the eleventh of June, 1918, the Germans were at Chateau-Thierry, nearly to Amiens, were threatening to open a way to Paris. One could believe that he could see the last days of France.

"Today's peril can be compared with that peril. On condition that we have industry, on condition that we have quickly some national method, on condition we have confidence in each other, on condition that we organize ourselves we will get something out of the victory.

"If these conditions are not realized it will not have been worth while to win the war. Social systems in the future will be lined up against one another as were the armies of yesterday. What country will best develop its production? What country will achieve the greatest national harmony?

"On the answer depends the future. If the right answer is not found the victory will have been in truth only an armistice."

WANT TO SUSPEND PEACE WORK DEC. 1

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—The American peace delegation persists in its determination to quit Paris by Dec. 1. This determination is shared by the British delegation. The French and Italian Governments wish either to continue the Peace Conference or to establish some other strong central authority to continue to regulate affairs in Europe.

The Italians and French make the point that in opposing a continuance of the centralized allied machinery in Paris Americans are opposing the cardinal principles of the League of Nations. The official American reply to this is that the delegates to the Peace Conference were charged with making peace and not with governing the world. They argue that there is a wide difference between the Council of the League of Nations undertaking the duties laid upon it and the establishment in Paris of a body not provided for in any international covenant.

The Americans make it quite plain that they are not going to maintain indefinitely a branch office of their State Department in Europe, but will conduct their international business at headquarters in Washington. They favor leaving to a committee of Ambassadors only the few specific tasks which may remain undone at the end of the Peace Conference. They insist that these duties for the Ambassadors' Committee shall be distinctly laid down before the Peace Conference adjourns and that the Ambassadors' Committee shall go no further than these tasks.

Therefore the Americans, and the British with them, say the Peace Conference must end by Dec. 1.

BRAZIL RATIFIES TREATY.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 11, (Associated Press.)—The war between Brazil and Germany is officially ended. Armistice Day was celebrated in Brazil by the ratification of the Treaty of Versailles.

The Chamber of Deputies last week voted in favor of ratification. The Senate after a short discussion today took similar action. Late this afternoon President Pessoa affixed his signature to the measure of ratification.

CONDEMN ORGANIZED LABOR

Demands Leading Toward Revolution, Agricultural Men Say.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Organized labor and its demands for shorter working hours and higher pay were excoriated as unpatriotic, greedy, and un-American in resolutions passed at the annual meeting of the National Association of Commissioners of Agriculture at the Auditorium today.

The representatives of the farmers of every State in the Union warned that "the radical demands of labor are leading straight toward a revolution and to a Government not of the people but of one class, many of whom are unable to speak our language or understand the spirit of our American institutions."

David F. Houston, Secretary of Agriculture, the principal speaker of the day, predicted that the high prices of American food would disappear as England began to draw upon her Colonies for sustenance.

The resolution condemning labor was only one of several which denounced the profiteer, indorsed the Farm Loan act, deplored strikes and lockouts of all character and urged the farmers to join one central association for the protection of their interests.

HELP PROMISED BY RUSSIA

Industries Which Could Not Be Held Against Troops Were to be Destroyed.

BERLIN, Nov. 11 (Associated Press).—A Communist program, entitled "Preparations for Civil War," which was captured recently at Karow, near Weimar, by troops of Minister of Defense Noske, contains sixteen instructions to Communists, as follows:

"(1) As a preparation for unified dealings, it is necessary to inform only reliable men, such as have had the closest connection with the combined executive councils of the Communists and Independents and are considered reliable by the Council.

"(3) The creation of armed groups in individual industries.

"(4) Strike leadership will not be given over to officials of industrial councils.

"(8) If an industry can no longer be defended, all construction and boilers must be exploded.

"(9) The occupation of all food bureaus.

"(10) A general organization is to be created within twenty-four hours.

"(11) The several guiding orders and directions will come from Berlin.

"(12) The supporting points of the organization are Bremen, Leipsic, Halle, Stuttgart, and Berlin.

"(14) Specialization of strikes on railways, transportation of food, and in other industries will be stopped.

"(16) It is to be reported immediately how many and what kinds of weapons are on hand and what organizations already have been formed."

Berlin Plans Exposed.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—The military authorities yesterday discovered and raided the Spartacide revolutionary headquarters where they found detailed plans regarding the seizure of public buildings and arsenals of the so-called Citizens' Guards which usually are at police stations. According to these plans a number of Spartacides in each police precinct were to pretend drunkenness and resistance to the police and get themselves arrested. When inside the police stations they were to overwhelm the few officers present and take possession of the stations and arsenals.

DRASTIC PENALTIES PLANNED FOR REDS

Mr. Recht waived the right of jurisdiction and consented to the arraignment of the prisoners tomorrow. He then appealed to Magistrate McAdoo to reduce the amount of bail.

"These men are poor and cannot raise the money," he said, "and they have been maltreated as prisoners, left without food for hours and not permitted their rights under due process of the law, and I ask the officers of the court to respect the law and be lenient with them. The bail should be reasonable and the law should not be violated by officers of the State.

"The prisoners were not maltreated," rejoined Mr. Berger, "and there was no improper action on the part of the authorities. In view of the seriousness of this crime I say that the bail is quite lenient."

Magistrate McAdoo asked the Deputy Attorney General for a copy of the constitution of the Communist International Party, of which the prisoners are alleged to be members. Mr. McAdoo read the document through carefully.

"It is quite evident," he said, "that the Communist Party is intended to destroy organized government. It appeals for class hatred. The Communist Party is an organized conspiracy against the United States Government and the Government of the State of New York, and each member of the party is guilty and responsible for the acts, writings or savings of each and every member. This point of law was embodied in the decision handed down years ago in the famous Lord George Gordon case following the 'No-Popery' riots in London, in which each member of the mob that followed him through the streets was held guilty.

"I hold that the Communist Party has declared a state of war against the United States and the Government of the State of New York, and that the establishment of the Communist Party in the State of New York is the highest crime known to our law, and I will not reduce the bail one dollar."

Magistrate McAdoo asked who had organized the Communist International Party, and Mr. Stevenson was delegated to reply.

"It was organized," he said, "last May in Moscow by a joint manifesto issued by Lenin and Trotsky, calling on the workers of the world to unite and overthrow capital."

"The Communist manifesto is based on the writings of Karl Marx and there have been many interpretations of it," interrupted Mr. Recht.

"We do not recognize the Government of Russia," responded Mr. McAdoo, "and to the United States, Russia is in nothing but a state of chaos and anarchy."

The attorney shrugged his shoulders.

"I don't know," he said.

"Well," said the Magistrate, "it was the Soviet Guards of Russia. Now let's get back to the law."

Recht did that quickly, making a plea that the bail in the case of Moses Zimmerman be reduced, as he "is an ex-service man."

Zimmerman was interrogated by the Magistrate, and said that he had been drafted but served only eleven days because his heart was weak, and he was discharged on account of his physical condition.

"Give me a man who volunteers to serve his country," said the Magistrate, declining to reduce the bail.

The eighteen were then led away to lodge in the Tombs until they obtained bondsmen. After their departure Magistrate McAdoo decried the belief of some persons that the men were held merely "because they hold membership cards in the Communist Party." He declared that "when these men joined that party they entered recruiting barracks being maintained in this city, pledging themselves to aid in the overthrow of this Government." The Magistrate, discussing a copy of the Communist Party's constitution, pointed to a clause which read, "the objective is the conquest by the proletariat of the power of the State."

"Big Jim" Larkin and Benjamin Gitlow, now under bail of $15,000, will be arraigned today before Magistrate McAdoo. Their hearing, however, will be at the same time as their eighteen co-defendants.

The hint that the State might take over the prosecution of the radicals was contained in reports of the outcome of a conference between Assistant United States Attorney James W. Osborne, Jr., and Assistant District Attorney Alexander I. Rorke. It was stated that an effort might be made to prosecute the prisoners under Section 200 of the State law, which makes the advocacy of criminal anarchy a crime punishable by a maximum imprisonment of ten years.

In connection with the hearings conducted on Ellis Island throughout the day, it was said last night that Anthony Caminetti, United States Commissioner of Immigration, had not yet reached this city. It was stated that he might remain in Washington and supervise the hearings from there.

A number of Russian workers gathered in front of Beethoven Hall, in Second Street, just off First Avenue, last night and started a demonstration because a meeting there had been called off. The proprietor said that a committee had hired the hall to celebrate the thirty-second anniversary of the Chicago Haymarket riot, but had cancelled it yesterday. Apparently ticket-holders were not advised. It was these who gathered last night, got angry and then cooled off and went home when policemen walked up.

ANARCHISTS URGE STRIKE.

"Workers' Battalions" Invited to Open Jails and Seize Foodstuffs.

A 1,500-word "proclamation" issued by an organization calling itself the "American Anarchist Federated Commune Soviets," urging workers to a general strike, was distributed through the mails in this city last night. The document advocated, in so many words, the overthrow of the Government through formation of "Workers' Battalions."

The document assailed President Wilson and Samuel Gompers. It then went through its own interpretation of the strike of steel workers, and the strike of the miners, and concluded thus:

"The Government is the upholder of the present capitalistic system. It represents not the 'people of U. S.' but the exploiting manufacturers, skinning middlemen, and robbing bankers. You, the working class, are the people of U. S., and the Government is your real enemy! No matter what obstacles the watch dogs of your exploiters the Government will put in your way, ignore and disobey all their laws invoked against you! Continue your struggle, until victory will be yours!

"We call upon you workers, of every industry in the country, to go on a general strike, in order that the miners' strike shall not be crushed by the capitalistic Government, but shall instead be the greatest victory that you workers here have ever achieved. We urge you miners, steel workers, and workers of all other industries, who will go out on the general strike, to be prepared! When your most active spokesmen are imprisoned, do not sit idle by, but unite in workers' battalions, smashing the jail doors and freeing those imprisoned. In order that you do not starve while the battle is on, we urge these workers' battalions to take possession as soon as possible of all the food stores, for it is yours the workers, who have produced it, and it will only be taking possession of what you have been robbed of.

"War has been declared on you, the mine workers, this declaration means you, the workers of the entire country! We therefore call upon you, the workers of America, to go out at once in a general strike. Workers, you must either face the most horrible defeat imaginable, which will turn you into servitude, or you must meet the challenge of capitalism's war declaration, and fight its protector, the Government, with any weapon you can lay hold of, and turn this war into a social revolution, then in its place build the new society based on the right of every human being to enjoy all that each one produces. The Free Commune Society, The Anarchist Society.

"It is up to you workers, to decide which course to choose to remain slaves of the present system, or to arise and fight until you become free men of a free society, not in name only, but in reality."

ALDERMEN TO ACT ON LEE MILK PLAN

PROMPT ACTION EXPECTED

The Board of Aldermen consented unanimously yesterday to the request of Alderman Algernon Lee, the Socialist leader, that his resolution providing for the municipalization of the milk business be reported out from the Committee on Rules, so that action may be taken next week or the week following.

Alderman Lee denounced the recent advance in milk, and said that a small group of distributers stood between the 60,000 milk producers and the 1,200,000 consuming families in this city. He also said that milk was 100 per cent. higher today than three years ago and denounced specifically the recent rise of 2 cents, effective on Nov. 7.

"That means $40,000 a day piled on to the families of this city, or $14,500,000 a year. A recent report of the Department of Health says that malnutrition prevails among 10 per cent. of the children of this city. Of the recent rise of 2 cents in the price of milk only one-fifth of a cent goes to the farmers. I hope that the Board of Aldermen will act favorably on my resolution."

"Resolved, By the Board of Aldermen of the City of New York that a special committee of seven members be elected, whose duty it shall be to prepare and report to this board, not later than the first meeting in December, a plan for the municipalization of the business of buying, transporting, handling, selling, and delivering milk products for use of the inhabitants of the city, together with a draft of such legislation as may be necessary to ask from the State Senate and Assembly in order to put such plan into effect."

The New York Milk Conference Board, Inc., which represents the distributers, will meet at the headquarters of the organization in the Flatiron Building this morning at 10 o'clock, when consideration will be given to the request of Health Commissioner Copeland, as chairman of the Governor's Fair Milk Price Committee, that the distributers work out some plan by which a material reduction will be made in the retail price of milk.

The Conference Board has asked its attorney for advice, and the members expect to have before them this morning his opinion as to the advisability of the Conference Board undertaking to comply with the request of Dr. Copeland.

As a protest against the increase of two cents a quart in the retail price of milk, a consumers' strike on milk distributers was declared last night by the City Parliament of Community Councils of National Defense at a meeting held in the Aldermanic Chambers at City Hall, with upwards of two hundred delegates present from the various local councils. The strike will be put into effect on Monday of next week and will be in full operation for three days. It is planned to carry on the strike for three days each week until the effect of the boycott has made itself felt in a form of reduction in prices.

The leaders in the Community Councils believe that there will be a wide response from the housewives of the city. An effort will be made to extend the boycott to include non-members of Community Councils. The strike is to be carried out under the direction of the local councils, which have thousands of members distributed throughout the five boroughs.

Dr. Albert E. Shields, the new director for developing Community Councils, pointed out to the meeting that the proposed strike was the first protest of the kind by the middle class, that up to the present had paid the bills while capital and labor made war upon one another.

LODGE IN DILEMMA, HOLDS UP VOTE

tain from the point of view of the majority, up to the time of adjournment tonight, the majority leaders expressed the belief that the difficulty would straighten itself out over night and that when the Walsh amendment came up it would be defeated.

Owing to the long debate, the minority forces were unable to carry out a plan to force the Walsh amendment to a vote.

The minority leaders took delight in the tangled situation brought about by their projection of the Walsh amendment into the fight. This is but one of a series that the minority has in store in an effort to divide the forces of the majority and upset its prearranged program. By offering amendments that will appeal to the radicals or middle-ground reservationists, the minority hopes to cause defections in the majority ranks.

The outcome of the effort involving the battle on the Walsh amendment will determine whether Senator Lodge is to control his forces up to the end of the struggle. The crucial test is expected to come tomorrow, when the Walsh amendment, and after that the committee's reservation, will be voted on if today's plans are carried out.

An appreciable part of today's debate was taken up by Senator Reed of Missouri, in a three-hour speech, in which he sought to show the inconsistency of President Wilson in urging that the United States keep out of the European war, up to early in 1917, and later urging that America join European nations in a "League of the World." Senator Reed quoted from speeches and messages of the President, up to 1917, in which the President, as the Senator alleged, "did what he could to keep the United States from engaging in the European struggle." He accused the President of having led the country into a false position in arguing that the United States had no part in the "quarrels of Europe," and after the war was over, of having "tried to foist a League of Nations on the country." Senator Reed talked up to nearly 6 o'clock, when he stopped, saying that he would have "more to say tomorrow."

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, in reply to Senator Reed, accused him of having "deliberately misrepresented" the attitude of the President, and also Senator Hitchcock. He quoted from a speech of Senator Lodge in the Senate last December, in an effort to show that the Massachusetts Senator agreed with the President's position that the United States had an obligation to weak nations which had gone into the war on the assurance that the United States would help them in their efforts to set up independent Governments.

Senator Lodge replying to this, said that the view he held last December as to the obligation the United States owed the small nations was inspired by the promise to aid them in settling no matter points against Germany.

"We promised to help them only the same," said Mr. Lodge. "When I expressed the view that we owed something I never contemplated that they would have handed to us a document that would for all time bind us to their policy. It appears that Senators on the other side of this chamber make no distinction between time and eternity.

"This treaty does not fulfill the promises we made to Poland for an outlet to the sea, nor have we carried out our promises to France so as to get it obtained possession of the left bank of the Rhine. We have put our dummy hand on the Italian situation, making a serious difficulty over Fiume. And the last blunder we have made, through our representatives in the Peace Conference, is to take Thrace away from Greece.

"The sooner we get our hands out of this meddling in the affairs of Europe the better will we be off. That is the attitude I take on this treaty."

Earlier in the day the Senate had a debate on the question of whether President Wilson's Fourteen Points were embraced in the treaty. Senator Penrose brought the question up when he remarked that, although the President had promulgated the Fourteen Points as the basis for peace before the armistice was signed, he had later abandoned them.

Senator Owen, Democrat, of Oklahoma, challenged the Pennsylvania Senator's statement, said all the Fourteen Points but that relating to the freedom of the seas had been "embodied in the treaty." The freedom of the seas question, Mr. Owen said, was settled by the Peace Conference, because of "conservatories related to it."

Senator Lenroot, Republican, of Wisconsin, said it required a microscope to find any of the Fourteen Points in the treaty.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, while expressing regret that all of the Fourteen Points were not "ere definitely expressed in the Peace Treaty, said that the failure of the President is practically unavailing due to the neglect of the Senate to back them up. The Senate, he said, derided the Fourteen Points when the President went to Paris to negotiate the treaty.

"Well, the Fourteen Points were the idea of one man," replied Senator Norris of Nebraska, "and the treaty was the work largely of the same man. If President Wilson had wanted to, he could have got his Fourteen Points in the treaty."

Bacon for a long time was almost exclusively the food of the Roman patricians, or nobles. It was considered too great a luxury for the plebeians, or common people.

RAIL CONFERENCE MAKES NO HEADWAY

REOPENS OLD QUESTIONS

Time-and-a-Half Overtime Demand Up Again—Union Leaders Are Insistent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—After a four-hour conference today, agreement between the railroad administration and the four railroad brotherhood leaders apparently was as far away tonight as at any time since the brotherhood demands for time-and-a-half overtime in road service and revision of working conditions were laid before Director General Hines several months ago.

Conferring with the Director General were Timothy Shea, President of the Firemen and Enginemen; L. E. Sheppard, President of the Conductors; W. G. Lee, President of the Trainmen, and J. J. Corrigan, acting for W. S. Stone, President of the Engineers. When the meeting adjourned, it was stated the session would be resumed tomorrow, officials explaining that little had been accomplished at the initial meeting.

The conference reopened a series of moot questions, including the old one of establishment of the time-and-a-half overtime principle in road service, which has come up in every wage scale preference held during the period of Government control.

While union leaders were understood to be insistent in their demands, it was indicated that throughout today's meeting all discussions were amicable. The brotherhood men were said to realize the force of Director General Hines's argument that he could make no agreement which would further increase pay because of the short time before the termination of Federal control. The brotherhood chiefs set forth strong arguments for changes in working conditions which they held work an injustice to certain members of their craft.

PRESSMEN RESCIND PROMISE TO RETURN

SOME ARE GOING TO WORK

The members of Pressmen's Union No. 51, who voted last Friday night to cease their secession movement and return to their international union and thus pave the way for the ending of the tie-up in the printing industry which has affected New York City for the last six weeks, completely reversed their action at a meeting held yesterday afternoon at Beethoven Hall, 210 East Fifth Street. More than 2,000 men were said to have attended the meeting, which was closed to reporters. There were only 2,300 members in the old union, and the international officials say that 1,700 of these have already come over to the international. The explanation of Bernard Nolan, President of the old union, is that the men now realize that they acted under a false impression on Friday, and that the subsequent action of the feeders, paper handlers, and compositors in standing firm for their original demand for the forty-four-hour week has caused them to change their minds.

Despite this new turn in the situation the employing printers express themselves as being pleased with the situation. They say that the men are coming back, that some of their presses are running, and their confidence in their ability to control affairs was evidenced by an ultimatum which they sent to Typographical Union No. 6 refusing to continue further negotiations with their officers until the men returned from their "vacations." Reports from the various printing establishments yesterday indicated that the number of compositors who had returned to work was extremely small, and in several cases, where a large percentage of the normal number had returned on Monday, not one appeared yesterday.

The letter of the Printers' League to Big Six follows:

Dear Sir: Your letter of Nov. 10, 1919, inclosing copy of letter of same date to President Charles Francis of the Printers' League, requesting further conferences with our special committee, is received.

On Sunday, Oct. 5, 1919, Typographical Union No. 6 passed by a practically unanimous vote the following resolution:

The Executive Committee, after listening to the report of President Rouse on the present controversy between No. 6 and the employing book and job printers, in which the members of the union have peremptorily quit their jobs without sanction of the officers, recommends that the union, in meeting assembled, disavow the action of those members herein referred to and order said members to return to work in their respective chapels.

In view of this resolution and the fact that the members of Typographical Union No. 6 refuse to return to work, the committee is forced to draw one of two conclusions: Either the officers of Typographical Union No. 6 have lost control of their organization, or the resolution quoted above was not passed in good faith. The committee, therefore, declines to hold further conferences with representatives of Typographical Union No. 6 until the "vacationists" return to work as evidence of good faith that the union is a responsible body and that their own vote means what it says.

The committee again repeats, as it has done throughout the whole controversy, the offer of fair arbitration.

Very truly yours,

WILLIAM GREEN,
Chairman Special Committee Printers' League Section, Association of Employing Printers.

At the meeting of Pressmen's Union No. 51 yesterday afternoon, the special committee of three which had been appointed to confer with George L. Berry, President of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union, reported upon the agreement they had made with him for the return of the seceding pressmen to the international union. The members immediately voted to discharge the committee and to reject its report. A strike committee made up of Charles Stewart, John L. Moore and Frank Reynolds, was then appointed in its stead.

One of the factors in the change of spirit in No. 51 was the statement made during the meeting by George Crowe, representing the Philadelphia pressmen's union, to the effect that that union would make a weekly contribution of $7,500 if the New York union would remain out on strike. The Chicago pressmen are said to have promised $5,000 weekly and the employes of the Curtis Publishing Company in Philadelphia $2,500 a week.

After a two-hour session of the Printers' League at the Hotel Astor yesterday morning it was announced that twenty more shops had resumed work since Monday, making a total of 180 shops now operating.

MRS. GOTTHOLD FREED

Jury Finds Woman Who Killed Daughter Not Guilty.

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Nov. 11.—Mrs. Hanna Gotthold of Philadelphia was found not guilty late this afternoon of the murder of her eighteen-year-old daughter, Mildred, at the Hotel Calvert, 129 South Virginia Avenue, Atlantic City, on July 2 last. The jury deliberated thirty minutes before returning their verdict to Supreme Court Justice Black.

Mildred Gotthold was found dead, lying across a bed in her room, with a bullet in her head from a revolver in the hands of her mother. At the time of the shooting the police, after an investigation, were convinced that Mrs. Gotthold, suffering from a temporary nervous breakdown, had accidentally pressed the trigger of the revolver as she leaned over her sleeping daughter to kiss her good-bye before carrying out a plan to end her own life.

County Physician Souder and Police Surgeon Beckwith, who examined her after the killing, testified that in their opinion she was not responsible for her actions at the time of the shooting because she was suffering from a nervous breakdown and acute melancholia.

Two Kinds of Economy in the Post-War Maxwell

Maxwell

More miles on tires

THE Post-War Maxwell inherited from its 300,000 predecessors two traits that captivate the person who likes continuous, uninterrupted, comfortable and low cost mileage.

One is its freedom from repairs. It runs on and on. Give it gas, oil, grease and water and it will deliver an amazing amount of mileage.

Such kinds of economy came from years of study and the experience which 300,000 previous Maxwells have taught.

The notable improvements and refinements to be found in this car have caught the attention of many who figured that high efficiency meant high price.

The public has served notice that it does appreciate value.

That is why 40,000 persons will have to go without a Post-War Maxwell this year though 100,000 are being built.

RED CROSS DRIVE ENDED BY SOLDIERS

HAVE NOT REACHED GOAL

Insufficient Number of Workers Stated as Reason — Three Divisions to Continue Canvass.

The First Brigade, New York National Guard, with five infantry regiments, artillery, cavalry, signal corps, field hospital and ambulance corps, swept the city from the Battery to the Harlem River yesterday afternoon and last night in aid of the Third Red Cross Roll Call. Members of the American Legion, the Grand Army of the Republic, Veterans of the Spanish-American War, and Red Cross workers also participated in the demonstration.

The movement was divided into two periods—one from 5 P. M. to 7 P. M., and the other from 8:30 P. M. to 11:30 P. M., when all of the columns converged on Times Square and invaded the theatre district to solicit Red Cross subscriptions. The movement was prescribed by Brig. Gen. George R. Dyer in General Orders No. 10.

All of the columns were accompanied by bands and by flanking parties, who covered the sidewalks and took subscriptions. At different points throughout the city the march was halted for meetings.

The demonstration marked the official close of the Red Cross drive, although the membership campaign will be continued for another week. Brig. Gen. Dyer decided last night that, although the results of the campaign had been disappointing, he felt that the campaign must end officially. However, the Industrial and Mercantile Divisions, it was announced, would keep up their campaign in offices, factories and other mercantile establishments, and the District Division would continue its canvass of the residential sections. The canvass by the booths and in the streets ended last night.

An insufficient number of workers was said to be the reason for the failure of the campaign to obtain the desired membership. There has been a rush of subscribers to the different headquarters and many of them have said that they have not found canvassers in the streets. The Metropolitan Committee set 1,000,000 members as its goal, and it was said last night that they were far from that figure, although the totals were not available and those in charge of the drive could not give even an approximation of the membership until further reports are received. Final figures will not be completed until next week.

TELLS SAD PLIGHT OF JEWS.

Felix M. Warburg Says They Were the Worst Sufferers in War.

Felix M. Warburg, Chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee of American Funds for Jewish War Sufferers, who returned several days ago from a trip to Europe for that organization, made public yesterday some of his findings.

"The successive blows of contending armies have all but broken the back of European Jewry," he said, "and have reduced to tragically unbelievable poverty, starvation and disease about 6,000,000 souls, or half the Jewish population of the earth.

"The Jewish people throughout Eastern Europe, by sheer accident of geography, have suffered more from the war than any other element of the population. The potential vitality and the capacity for self-help that remains to these people after the last five years is amazing to me."

The people are deeply moved by the help given them by America, Mr. Warburg said, but it would be fatal to lessen the emergency aid now while millions are in tragic need. The $30,000,000 spent by his committee, he said, has fed and clothed more than a million children and has renewed the hope of five million parents and elders.

"For more than four years," he said, "the war on the Eastern front was fought largely in the congested centres of Jewish population. A straight north and south line from Riga, on the Baltic, to Saloniki, on the Aegean Sea, will touch every important battle area of the Eastern war zone and every centre of Jewish population. After the cataclysm of the last few years it is too much to expect this Jewry to become self-sustaining in a short twelve-month."

Mr. Warburg is concerned over the program soon to be started for the discontinuance of emergency relief. This plan, he said, calls for the formation of a $10,000,000 reconstruction corporation.

"This organization," he said, "would afford facilities for constructive aid to Jews abroad in the way of loans and credit at nominal interest rates. The value of this sort of assistance as a substitute for pure charity is apparent."

Other relief projects recommended by Mr. Warburg include the establishment of an express company to forward money and packages from Jews in this country to relatives and friends abroad; the distribution of $120,000 worth of fuel in sections of Poland where destitution is greatest; the purchase of $200,000 worth of cloth in the belt whereby unemployed workmen of Poland may get raw material, and a plan to reunite those Jewish families that have relatives in the United States and those who have become separated abroad.

DUTCH INDIES NEED OUR GOODS.

An Educational Value, Too.

Youth is a formative period. Every moment should be full of useful experience. The ending of school should be the beginning of further education.

To succeed, organizations—like individuals—must be thorough. An institution gets its character and effectiveness from its individual members. Industrial executives are reminded by the times that they must again be teachers and leaders. In this store we are trying to fulfill that obligation.

Even though an employment here may be looked upon as temporary, our methods should make women better home makers, particularly as we try to develop personality and teach the value of method and system.

Think of this, and you or those in whom you are interested may decide to come with us.

NEW JERSEY TRIES ZONE FARE AGAIN

GOES INTO EFFECT SUNDAY

Five Cents for First Two Miles, a Cent a Mile Thereafter, and a Cent for a Transfer.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 11.—The Public Service Railway Company today filed with the Public Utilities Commission a temporary acceptance of the modified zone fare system proposed by the commission after the company had asked permission to abandon the system as first tried because it proved a failure. Acceptance is tentative, and is to go into effect next Sunday, for the purpose of further experimentation. The new rate is 5 cents for the first two miles, 1 cent for each mile thereafter, and 1 cent for a transfer.

A statement issued by the company, after reviewing the earlier trial of the system, its reluctant conclusion that it could not succeed, its recommendation for its abandonment, and the commission's proposal of a modified zoning plan, continues:

"The company has no pride of opinion in this matter, and for whom, out of deference to the expressed opinion and recommendation of the board, as set forth in its last two reports on the subject, to continue the trial of the present zone plan for a limited time, with the modified rate of fare recommended by the board. The company takes this position in the hope that the board, the public, and its employes will all co-operate with it in this further trial of the zone plan, so that there may be no difference of opinion about its success or failure. The company agrees to this plan and these rates, in accordance with its understanding of the board's intentions, only as a trial for a limited period."

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 11.—This city, which put up a most stubborn fight against the zone fare system as first tried, is expected to prove just as inimical to the modified plan proposed by the Public Utilities Commission and agreed to for purposes of experiment by the Public Service Railway Company. Shipyard workers whose boycott of the lines was so violent it forced virtual suspension of service for some days, appear to be just as reluctant to permit trial of the new plan and Camden officials and citizens express themselves as extremely displeased with the proposed solution of the transit difficulties.

In the absence of Mayor Charles H. Ellis who led the fight against the zone system, Counsel E. G. C. Bleakly, also active in the struggle, issued this statement:

"The trolley riders have won a great victory. The trolley company has been forced to accept reduced rates of fare. Here in Camden we agree with the trolley company that the zone system is a failure. I think the people have always been willing to give any system a fair trial, but the people in the suburbs were not willing to pay fare in excess of the commutation rates on steam trains. Now, if the trolley company will go only one step further and introduce the sale of strip tickets from ticket offices at rates reduced below cash fares, I feel another step forward will have been taken toward inducing the trolley company's patrons to again patronize the lines. I am sure all the people of Camden will work together with the trolley company in its effort to have its present zone system done away with."

2,000 OFFICERS HAVE QUIT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—On the first anniversary of the armistice, the War Department today announced that the 2,000 mark in resignations of officers of the regular army had been passed. During the past year more officers have resigned from the regular army than ever before in the whole history of the army up to Nov. 11, 1918.

The rapidity with which regular army officers act, leaving the service is shown by the latest edition of the monthly Army Directory. Between Aug. 23 and Sept. 23, 1919, 275 resignations were accepted, including those of 1 Lieutenant Colonel, 3 Majors, 23 Captains, 116 First Lieutenants and 120 Second Lieutenants.

Efforts have been made to keep up the strength of the West Point Cadet Corps, and in 1918 there were 787 cadets appointed. In that year 125 cadets resigned. A number equal to 16 per cent. of those were appointed. To Oct. 15 of this year 480 cadets had been appointed and 44 resignations received.

CALL FOR A SOVIET TO RULE ENGLAND

CHEER TROTZKY AND LENIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—At a meeting held in London last night under the auspices of "the British Socialist Party" to celebrate the second anniversary of the Russian Soviet Republic the speakers included Tom Mann, General Secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers; Robert Williams, Secretary of the Transport Workers' Federation, and John MacLean, Bolshevist Consul for Glasgow.

The speeches were frankly revolutionary. The names of Trotzky and Lenin were cheered, while those of Lloyd George, President Wilson, and Clemenceau were received with groans.

Mann expressed entire approval of the soviet system and his readiness to go as far in this country as the Bolsheviki have gone in Russia. He rejoiced because Russia was showing the way of true peace so effectively.

MacLean said conditions in the industrial centres here were ripe for revolution. He referred to the imprisonment of three of their comrades—Billy Watson, Jim Larkin, and Eugene Debs—and said they must secure the freedom of those who had been fighting for the rights of world classes. He explained that the aim of Bolshevism was world-wide revolution, and he welcomed the evidence of revolution in America.

Other speakers talked about the early creation of a Soviet Republic of Great Britain with a sister republic in Ireland. There were other references by speakers to getting guns and even machine guns for the revolution, while a Mr. Hodgson endeavored to scare the audience by telling them the Government had created a special force in the R. A. F. for bombing crowds during strikes or a revolution. This speaker was sure the coming revolution would be a bloody one and the workers would need to be armed.

After hearing these sanguinary speeches the meeting carried a resolution congratulating the Russian Soviet Government "on its resistance to the combined forces of world capitalism," and rejoicing in the continued military successes of the Red army. The resolution also condemns the British and Allied Governments for the help given to the "Czarist Generals and counter revolutionary capitalists" and calls upon the organized workers to enforce the raising of the starvation blockade of Russia and the establishment of diplomatic relations with the Soviet Government.

The Daily News lobby correspondent states that yesterday a deputation of Irish transport workers tried to get in touch with the Government to urge that a passport should be issued to Larkin to enable him, if possible, to return to Ireland. These efforts so far have not been successful.

What Are YOU Worth to Yourself?

LEARN to live, to do, to be—so that you may get, have, and hold.

In your personality there is Power. Its development is in your own hands. No matter what your walk in life, your present occupation, or your sex, it rests with you to fix your own capitalization.

A day laborer, earning $19.23 a week, has been capitalized at $25,000 by a noted executive, because his salary is 4% on the given principal. How will you capitalize yourself—at $50,000, at $100,000, at a million? Your capitalization only depends on how successful you are in developing yourself!

"What do I do, how do I go about it to develop my personality and better myself?" you ask. "How to improve my position, my standing in the community? How to win worthwhile friends? How to make more money, that I may enjoy more of the good things of Life?"

Show, to begin with, that you sincerely long to get ahead; that you have more than a mere lazy wish for good things; that you have an active Will to succeed, by reading this announcement through carefully.

An able, new work, "Personality," by Harry Collins Spillman, formerly Specialist in Commercial Education for the Federal Board for Vocational Education, has just been published.

"Personality" consists of studies and lessons in personal development. It teaches men and women how to develop their latent powers—how to increase their earnings—how to make friends who count—how to get more out of life. It puts plain truths before you in a simple, understandable way. It gets right down to rock-bottom in explaining the first principles of success in terms that all can understand and profit by.

This book shows how to achieve a winning personality. It will teach you self-survey and control—show you how to realize your ideals—how to achieve the conquest of happiness.

Easily used tables and self-questionnaires will help you to develop yourself—help you to sell yourself to yourself and to others at an increased valuation. You will find unlisted assets in your own self that you had never known of and that you can learn to realize on.

There is nothing involved, nothing difficult about this great course of self-development. It is a liberal education—a university of life—in which Greek and the higher mathematics are not necessary. Its cost is nominal. Only $2.

Study will show you how personality succeeds. A short time ago the Chase National Bank of New York went up into New England and brought back Eugene V. R. Thayer, then only 36 years of age, and made him President of one of America's biggest financial institutions. When Chairman Wiggins was asked why he had selected the young man, "personality" was the first word that fell from the great financier's lips. As you follow the histories of successful men of all ages, you will find that they have conquered obstacles and capped the climax of ambition by expression of their personalities.

This quality of personality is not always a gift of the gods, but may be an acquired asset. Alexander H. Revel, one of Chicago's noted merchants, says: "I believe that personality is largely a matter of cultivation. A man may have certain abilities and characteristics which are useless because he has not trained them to work for him."

Your development, your success are up to you, and you alone.

'WETS' WIN IN OHIO BY MAJORITY OF 641

ERRORS FOUND IN RETURNS

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 11.—Ohio last Tuesday voted against ratification of the Federal Prohibition Amendment by a majority of 641, according to complete official returns received today by the Secretary of State. The vote was: For ratification, 499,879; against, 500,520. Secretary of State Smith announced that some errors are apparent in the complete official vote and that the official returns from nine counties will be sent back to county election boards for correction. He also announced that the official figures from thirty-four counties would have to be verified.

James A. White, Manager of the Ohio Dry Federation, has asked for a recount of the vote.

A copy of the demand will be filed with the clerk of Franklin County court here some time today. The action will complete compliance with the Ohio law in such matters, thereby paving the way for future action, according to dry leaders.

Early today the "dry's" had a lead of 120 votes, but this, it was said, would be turned into a wet majority of 644 if official results in Hamilton County substantiated "wet" claims that an error of 704 votes had been discovered.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 11.—The latest unofficial returns today from 252 out of 265 precincts in the Fifth Congress District, placed the majority of J. W. Harreld, Republican candidate for Congress in Saturday's special election at 712 votes. The vote in the returns to date from 252 precincts gave Claude Weaver, Democrat, 10,839, and J. W. Harreld, 11,551.

HARD CIDER ALLOWABLE.

Boston Revenue Official Makes Thanksgiving Apple Juice Ruling.

BOSTON, Nov. 11.—The manufacture and sale of pure apple cider whether fermented or not, is permissible under the prohibition regulations, Andrew J. Casey, Acting Collector of Internal Revenue, announced today. The statement was in response to inquiries about the use of apple juice for Thanksgiving.

Cider, either sweet or hard, Mr. Casey said, may be sold at the present time without regard to alcoholic content, although nothing can be sold that is to increase the percentage of alcohol. After Jan. 16, 1920, however, cider can be manufactured and sold commercially only when the alcoholic content is under one-half of 1 per cent.

SUPREME COURT TO HEAR DRY LAW SUIT NOV. 20

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Nov. 20 was set by the Supreme Court today as the time for hearing arguments on the Government's appeal from a Federal Court decision in Kentucky holding the wartime prohibition act unconstitutional. The Government had asked that the case be expedited.

The suit was instituted by the Kentucky Distillers and Warehouse Company. It attacked wartime prohibition on constitutional grounds, and alleged that under its terms about 60,000,000 gallons of whiskey, worth approximately $75,000,000, in various bonded warehouses were about to be permanently removed as a domestic commercial commodity.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 11.—On the eve of arguments in a suit to test the constitutionality of the wartime prohibition law and the Volstead enforcement act in the Federal District Court, W. V. Gregory, United States District Attorney, announced today that he tomorrow would resist attempts to secure the hearing prior to adjudication of much the same issue in a previous action fixed for argument in the United States Supreme Court on Nov. 20.

The case on the calendar here was brought on behalf of Louisville distillers. It primarily questioned the validity of wartime prohibition and sought eventually to prevent interference with the sale of nearly 1,000,000 gallons of tax-paid whiskey, commonly known as "floor stock."

ROPER ORDERS INQUIRY UPON 'CORKAGE' CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Commissioner Roper of the Internal Revenue Bureau of the Treasury Department, late this afternoon decided to call on Colonel Daniel L. Porter, supervising agent in charge of the New York Internal Revenue districts, for a report as to the facts regarding the alleged practice of certain New York hotels in exacting a charge from guests who insist on supplying their own drinks in meals.

The Commissioner has no official information regarding this practice, but his attention was today invited to newspaper statements to the effect that such a practice exists in hotels in New York city and that as much as a dollar is being charged guests for "corkage." This has raised the question as to whether it is legal for hotels to take a profit out of drinking in their establishments, even when the beverages are furnished by the guests, and has also raised a question as to the right of hotels to serve intoxicating drinks to guests furnishing their own drinks. Commissioner Roper did not care to act on the unofficial newspaper report regarding this practice and for that reason has decided to ask Colonel Porter for a report as to the facts in the case.

William L. Hirst, counsel to the Society of Restaurateurs, said yesterday that nothing in the War Time Prohibition law forbade a man drinking his own liquor in a restaurant or hotel, and that the law merely provided against the sale or manufacture of intoxicating liquors. Use of liquor at a club, restaurant or hotel is not illegal under war-time prohibition, he said, and there is nothing in the law to prevent a hotel from making a charge for service in connection with a patron's use of his own liquor.

James Moore, a saloon keeper of 1,712 Broadway, Brooklyn, was discharged yesterday by Magistrate Folwell in the Gates Avenue Court, after he had been arraigned on a charge of violating the excise law in that he sold near beer on Sunday. The Magistrate ruled that he was not guilty of violating the law, and discharged him.

Jacob Radowitz, who said he was a rabbi of a synagogue at 58 Attorney Street, was held in $4,000 bail by Magistrate Harris in the Municipal Term of the City Magistrates' Court yesterday on a charge of selling wood alcohol.

According to the complaint of Hugh W. Taylor, Chief of the Division of Food Inspection of the Department of Health, Radowitz sold to Samuel Schneider of 171 Broome Street two gallons of liquor he represented to be whisky for $24.

"Between Oct. 12 and Oct. 18 Schneider took several drinks of this alleged whisky," the complaint stated, "and became seriously ill. He was removed to Knapp Eye and Ear Hospital, 500 West Fifty-seventh Street, where he was pronounced totally and hopelessly blind."

WE HAVE A BOOK, just published, which gives the history of the first 50 Pierce-Arrow trucks made. One was destroyed by fire, one was retired after seven years drastic use, and the others all remain in continuous operation, still paying dividends to their owners.

The original principles of construction maintained and improved in Pierce-Arrow design are now standard practice. They have proved their reliability. They give results which make first costs unimportant.

The old, lingering legend that Charles Stewart Parnell, the "uncrowned king of Ireland," did not die in the Fall of 1891, but merely vanished into some shrouded place of hiding is the basis and the inspiration of an Irish play which had its first New York performance last evening at the Greenwich Village Theatre. This play is called "The Lost Leader" and is the work of that Lennox Robinson who was manager of the Abbey Theatre in Dublin and who served as guard and escort for the Irish Players in their first stormy tour of America.

In "The Lost Leader" he has written a dramatic, fateful and absorbingly interesting play. Though it is presented now three thousand miles and more from the spot where Parnell's name can work its greatest magic, though it is inert for those to whom it is freighted from first to last with Irish memories and Irish politics, though its great first act must needs hold a sort of spell over the gradually diminishing interest of the acts which remain, despite all these obvious handicaps, "The Lost Leader" still has power to enthrall the stray Man in the Street who may chance to find himself at Fourth Street and Seventh Avenue in search of an evening's entertainment.

That this is true is due, of course, to the fact that it has been adequately prefaced by William Harris, Jr. All the roles that greatly matter are in the right hands, and as Parnell incarnate Frank Conroy is altogether admirable. Mr. Conroy has the force, the stature for the part. Leaving aside as secondary all minor questions of gesture and pronation, even of emotional fire, Mr. Conroy creates forcibly the impression that it is one of the great men of a century who is found in the little Poulnore Hotel. He makes you believe that it really is Parnell who hears once more the roll of his troubled people.

Like the legend of the lost dauphin, like the free-coursing story that K. of K. did not go down with that torpedoed ship, like many another story of a lost leader, so the belief has always flourished in the hills that it was not Parnell's body which the mourners followed through the streets of Dublin that August day twenty-eight years ago. The prevalence of this legend and a wide familiarity with it is presupposed in the play of Mr. Robinson's, which also presupposes some familiarity with and interest in the divided counsels that still beset the uneasy Isle.

The scene is a little out-of-the-way inn in Ireland, a seldom visited, unpretentious place, run by one Lucius Lenihan, who had succeeded to it at the death of his brother, with whom he, a sick and silent man, had found retreat in the early nineties. In this inn as chance visitors are a London journalist, making a three weeks' study of Irish politics for the illumination of Fleet Street, and a psycho-analyst who is trying to get a bit of rest by a fishing vacation. In the lazy talk around the fire the question of hypnotism, suggestion, dreams, and what not leads to the doctor's effort to put the young scribe to sleep. The spell does not quite work with its intended subject, but it throws into a serene and biddable trance the old keeper of the inn. The doctor, knowing that the old chap has had restless dreams, tries to draw forth and cast out forever the troubling thoughts. One by one he summons them out of the depths.

"A coffin. A woman. False friends. My name."

"Yes, yes, your name" the doctor's voice prompts him, soothingly. "Lucius Lenihan. We will put that away."

The subject stiffens haughtily.

"That is not my name. I am Charles Stewart Parnell."

Thus, in a tingling moment, does an accident set loose the secret of a quarter of a century. How gossip spreads. It far and near, how messages of wonder and alarm come pouring in from London, how pilgrimages from the ends of the earth are started toward the remote Irish village—that is the unfolding story of "The Lost Leader." It is just as contemporaries of Parnell are arriving to identify him that he is slain—struck dead, ironically and symbolically enough, by the blow of a blind follower, a blow aimed at Parnell's detractor.

It cannot be pretended, even in the first flush of enthusiasm, that there are no minor or rather secondary implausibilities, no irritating loose ends left dangling amid all these winds of doctrine. Why Parnell redivivus should claim that the solution of the Irish problem is so simple that he could write an all-uniting, all-satisfying program on half a sheet of paper and work it out in six months, it is difficult to say. He is struck down just as he is about to give his gospel, and thus Mr. Robinson stands accused of having pulled a chair rudely from under an expectant audience.

Then it is not clear why the all-pervading scandal which clouded Parnell's exit from the world should be so almost completely ignored. A coffin. A woman." That brief suggestion, and then no more. So much for Katherine O'Shea.

The performance is quite remarkably good. One could not ask a better embodiment than Conroy's, for the royal bearing, the flashing eye, the commanding presence—all are there. Robert T. Haines as the doctor, Edward O'Connor as an old leaguer, the inimitable Mr. Kerrigan as Peter Cooney, and Eric Maxon as the evil Long John Flavin—these are excellent. The work of Mae Melvin as Mary Lenihan, and, to a lesser degree, the work of Joseph Macaulay as the blind follower, leave something to be desired. His is the greatest opportunity of all, and he does only pretty well. The spark does not leap from him.

Yet the play was potent last night, even before a not completely Irish audience, even with some Sinn Feiners applauding loudly at inconvenient moments, even with some peculiarly audible and offensive chatterboxes lodged squarely in the middle of the house, even with the subway making the little theatre tremble with emotion at trying intervals, even with Parnell dead these many years and Dublin far from Greenwich Village—"The Lost Leader" proved its magic for us all.

McBRIDE'S POLICY

THE extravagantly high premiums that are being charged for theatre tickets at various offices all over town discourages theatre going, hurts theatre management and therefore impels us to repeat our long-established policy to our patrons.

Our fixed charge for service of fifty cents per ticket over box office prices is the cornerstone upon which our business was founded forty-six years ago, and we limit ourselves to that moderate amount.

A recent law fixes that amount as the standard. This was our practice long before the law.

With the high cost of living we appreciate the theatre-going public cannot afford unreasonable prices for amusement and we want our patrons to know that so far as McBride's is concerned there is now no higher cost of tickets over box office prices than heretofore.

We are the same people who started this business, father and sons, and we propose to continue to deserve the approval of the theatre-going public and the theatre management by standing for a square deal—a square deal to one and all alike—by making theatre going a real pleasure and not carrying with it a feeling of injustice in ticket buying.

Our policy is to stabilize the business for the benefit of all.

THE LAW IS SUPREME.

Admirable in form and worthy of even higher praise because of its spirit, the statement made by the executives of the United Mine Workers at the close of the meeting at which they prepared the communication withdrawing the strike order changes at once the public attitude toward them and toward their demands. "We are "Americans. We cannot fight our "Government." That is Americanism, it is a conclusion stated in an American way, and the fact that it was expected makes it no less deserving of recognition.

These representatives of the miners do not say merely that they are not going to resist the decree of the Federal Court, they declare that they "cannot fight our Government." It is a thing outside the realm of possibility. If some among them may at first have counseled a different course, they must all rejoice that reason and respect for law prevailed in the end. Inevitably, this decision taken at Indianapolis and the manner in which it was proclaimed will be contrasted with the most unfortunate outgivings of the American Federation's Executive Council at Washington and with the ill-considered remarks of Mr. GOMPERS. The American spirit triumphed at Indianapolis. Some strange impulse, unknown to American thought and usage, prompted the Federation utterances at Washington.

Now the representations of the miners concerning their wages and conditions of work can be considered. They will be considered. Secretary of Labor WILSON has called operators and miners into a conference which ought to lead to settlement of the controversy. The Government of the United States is not unjust; more than that, it is concerned that injustice shall not prevail. It had an immediate concern in the coal strike when the law was violated. With great firmness and wisdom it has compelled respect for the law. There can be no doubt that now it will use its good offices to bring about the understanding and agreement which the President and the whole country desire.

NEGLECT OF SMALL INVESTORS.

The Secretary of the Treasury and Governor STRONG of the Federal Reserve Bank call attention to the neglect of the interests of small investors in Liberty loans by the banks connected with the Federal Reserve system. They need no eulogy upon the manner in which they have met the great burdens put upon them by the war, and perhaps it is not surprising that they have thought their duty fulfilled when they have cooperated in placing the war loans among some twenty million investors. It was a notable achievement, but the sequel has not been so pleasing. The education in investment extended only to the first primary lesson, and its power for good has been largely lost by the manner in which purchases, sales, and collateral loans on Government bonds have been abandoned to irresponsible sidewalk dealers, without any banking standing.

As Governor STRONG says, the bonds were placed on the assurance that banks generally would accommodate their customers in all business connected with the Liberty bonds, and many have done that. But the fact remains that many have regarded the business as small, troublesome, and not profitable enough for attention. Yet there has been built up a considerable business in odd lots of miscellaneous securities on the Stock Exchange, which involves trouble and expense much greater than so simple and safe a matter as dealing with Government bonds. The owner of them either has, or is likely to have, other financial interests, which would fall naturally to banks caring for Liberty bond investments. The officials are not thinking so much of the interests of the banks as of the Government, which feels that its interests are injured when dealings in its bonds are prejudiced by the character of some of those who find irregular profits in business the banks neglect.

In some respects our banks set an example to the banks of Europe—the use of checks, for example. But the world's great example of small business by large banks is set by the Bank of France. It has upheld the hands of the Government during the war by multiples of billions, and yet it has a record of loans and deposits even on a smaller scale than the French postal banks. Our Federal Bank is rather a bank of banks. But the Bank of France has 192,500 shares, and 11,845 owners hold only a single share. Our savings banks are admirable, a world example in some ways, but our commercial banks must yield to one of the world's largest banks in regard for small business. The other day the world's largest check, for $2,648,339,171.53, was signed in adjustment of Treasury accounts. At the other end of the scale we still have something to learn, and it would be a good beginning if there were a new departure with small transactions in Liberty bonds.

THE FOUR AMENDMENTS.

It is a little surprising to find that every borough of Greater New York cast a majority of votes in favor of each of the four amendments to the State Constitution submitted to the people on Election Day. Hitherto it has seemed to be the prevailing popular frame of mind to hit a constitutional amendment on the head whenever it appeared. Its merits or demerits counted little. The voters were conservative. Sometimes they seemed a little lazy. In the case of the revised Constitution made by the Convention of 1915, and containing many admirable and even necessary changes, there seemed to be a sort of passion among all sorts and conditions of men to vote it down. Possibly the passage of the Woman's Suffrage Amendment in 1917 marked the beginning of a more sympathetic attitude toward alterations of the fundamental law. As amendments, State and Federal, got more numerous, one might expect that the people would grow weary of them; but here are all the four amendments carried in this city, probably contrary to the expectation of most observers, and carried, it would seem, by majorities not likely to be reversed in the rest of the State.

Amendment Number Two, authorizing absentee voting, got the largest majority, more than 144,000. This is natural, as there had been intelligent organization work in its behalf. The vote on Amendment Number Three, increasing the salaries of members of the Legislature, showed a majority for it of 107,753. That is a gratifying result, as is the nearly equal majority of 104,825 for Amendment Number Four, increasing the salaries of Judges of the Court of Appeals. These are salutary amendments. By their approval of them the city voters have shown that they are not penny-wise and pound-foolish. Proposals to raise salaries, and particularly those of legislators, are seldom popular. The vote on these amendments indicates a sagacious and pondered popular judgment.

Amendment Number One, declaring the use of property for the drainage of swamp and agricultural lands "a public use," and providing that the compensation for lands taken for drainage purposes and "the cost of "such drainage may be assessed, "wholly or partly, against any property benefited thereby," was approved by a majority of 76,916. The majority for it was thus less than half that for the absentee voting amendment and from twenty-seven to thirty thousand less than the votes on the salary amendment. Evidently there was a considerable appreciation of the doubt or the danger connected with this amendment. That it should be approved by nearly 77,000 majority in New York City may be thought to indicate a certain sublimity of altruism. Apparently the city is content to take the chances of paying higher taxes for the benefit of certain or uncertain persons up the State. Let us hope that the amendment will turn out to be more harmless and clearer than its looks, and that no future Legislature will take advantage of the large latitude authorized in regard to compensation and assessments for drainage to make the State pay the whole bill, of which the lion's share, of course, would come to the city so strangely hospitable to the "Swamp Amendment."

HOW THE RAILWAYS STAND.

The House expects to take a final vote next Saturday on the bill for the return of the railways to private operation, less than a week from the report of the Esch bill. That would seem hasty if there were greater likelihood that the bill as passed will be the bill finally adopted. On the other hand, the details are familiar to everybody interested in the subject, and it is well understood that the so-called final vote is only a vote to proceed to the more critical stage of conference between the houses. Deliberation then will be in order. Meanwhile notice should be taken of the House committee's summary of the tangled finances of the railways.

The roads at the end of this year will be in debt to the Government $890,188,261, immediately payable. The items are for advances, betterments, equipment, and open accounts generally. On the other hand, the Government is debtor to the roads on unpaid standard compensation $889,895,951. Depreciation and open account balances raise the total due from the Government to the roads to $1,224,660,154. On balance there is coming to the companies $336,541,893. The difference between the earnings of the companies and their rental due from the Government for twenty-four months is $351,777,439. The working capital necessary to leave with the companies for private operation is $387,948,276. The additions, betterments, equipment costs, and similar items which must be carried by the present Railroad Administration for an uncertain future amount to $678,075,309. The total expenditure on account of the railways has been $1,576,541,896, against appropriations of $1,250,000,000. Accordingly, "to "discharge its obligations as they ex-"ist at Dec. 31, 1919, on the basis of "the standard contract the Railroad "Administration will need an addi-"tional appropriation of $326,541,-"893."

This is the first coherent account of the Government's railway adventure, and upon the whole it is encouraging from the point of view of both the railways and the Government. The credits are the successful application of the resources of the railways to the winning of the war, and they are inestimable. Disillusionments regarding Government operation are also valuable salvage. All the economies and efficiencies of Government unified administration have been tried and some merit found in them. But all of them together do not offset the fact that it has been found necessary to increase wages more than the total paid for the standard return, leaving a deficit sufficient to embarrass the resources even of the Treasury.

That is particularly true when it is considered that the mere statement of the accounts does not exhaust the subject. Many of the items are in dispute, some in litigation, with a better prospect that the companies will enlarge their credits than that the Government can enlarge their debits. Depreciation has always been a bone of contention between the companies and their regulators, and it is now likely to take a prominent place in the settlement of these accounts. For example, one road has been making a gratifying statement of earnings, but a State Commission has complained to the Director General that its mileage in part "is unsafe for normal opera-"tion, and in some districts at the "point of danger." Specifications are that inspection has shown ten rotten ties to a rail length, six laid consecutively in main line track. It is declared that the itemized defects are an average. There is a wide field for disputation whether conditions like these are fulfillment of President WILSON'S statement that "the prop-"erties will be maintained during the "period of Federal control in as good "repair and as complete equipment "as when taken over by the Govern-"ment."

The President made similar statements regarding the safeguarding of the interests of investors in railway securities in his address to Congress last year; for instance: "It is also an "obligation of public conscience and "public honor that the private inter-"ests we disturb should be kept from "unjust injury." It is now seen that the interests of the roads and of their investors are not antagonistic to the interests of the shippers. The roads must be prosperous if they are to be efficient carriers. If Congress meets public expectations in this respect, one cloud over the situation will be cleared away with as good effect on the general situation as on the railways themselves.

VICTOR BERGER'S DEFENSE.

VICTOR L. BERGER of Wisconsin, whom the House has debarred from taking the seat to which he was elected by his constituents, had no case at all if we are to judge by the report of his speech in opposition to the House's action. He pretended that he was being excluded because he was a Socialist, which is not true, and because he had been convicted of a statutory crime in a Federal court, which is not true. He also alleged that he was in the same position as other Socialists in that he had to follow the platform of his party, which is true only in form.

He was excluded, he said, because "I am a Socialist and an opponent of war and profiteering." In 1910 Mr. BERGER was elected to the House from the same district that has now, after an interval of some years, re-elected him. He was just as much of a Socialist then as he is now; he was in fact practically the leader of the Socialist Party in the nation. He was just as much an opponent of "war and profiteering" as he is now. Not the slightest objection was raised to his taking his seat. He served his full term, and enjoyed the friendship and esteem of the acquaintances he made in the House, without distinction of party. When he made a speech he was listened to with attention and respect; and this although he was "a Socialist and an opponent of war and profiteering." Now he comes before the same House and its committee with a new record; or the same record, but one that is unmasked. It must be platform to such ears that he is old pamphlet lecturer of his pamphlet or his application to war and profiteering.

As a further reason for his exclusion he says, "Because I was in-"dicted upon order from the Attor-"ney General under charges of con-"spiracy" and "found guilty by a hand-picked Federal jury." The Constitution provides that each house is to be the judge of the qualifications of its own members. The House does not require that a man must be indicted or convicted of any offense in order to exclude him. It will exclude him if it is convinced he is for any reason unworthy to sit in its membership. Indictment or no indictment, conviction or no conviction, it can exclude any man for any reason that, in its opinion, disqualifies him for participation in making the laws of the country. The committee considered the Chicago case, but only because that case supplied it with evidence concerning Mr. BERGER'S fitness, not at all because he was convicted.

Why, then, did the House exclude from its membership in 1919 a man whom it welcomed to that membership in 1911, and whose views had undergone no change in the meantime? Because in time of war he had lent his influence toward the obstruction of his country's preparations and subsequent activities, and to that extent, whether intentionally or not, had ranged himself with his country's enemies; whether intentionally or not, had given what aid he could to the enemy. For no man could obstruct the war efforts of the United States without aiding the war efforts of Germany just that far. He was not a follower but a leader. It was he, with two associates, who drew up the treasonable Socialist platform of 1917, and the great influence of these three men, the leaders of the Socialist Party, was exerted to the utmost to drag the party as a whole into support of that platform. BERGER might have pleaded that other men whose records are not much better than his own still remain in Congress. But his case is the most glaring, the most flagitious; so much so that his attempt to enter Congress with such a record savors of impudence.

THE ANNIVERSARY IN GERMANY.

The anniversary of the German revolution was received, as was to be expected, with sentiments dependent entirely on political predilections. To the conservatives the revolution was the sole cause of all the humiliations and miseries of the people; to the liberals the sins of the old régime were responsible, the revolution was merely the receiver in bankruptcy. Nor is there lacking the plaint of a professor of history who laments that the course of events has entirely violated the logic of historical deduction, and that of course only trouble can come from such trifling with the laws of science.

More to the point, however, for the rest of the world—and for the Germans themselves, though some of them do not realise it—is the present state of the revolution and its prospects. Not what has happened but what is going to happen is the question on which the future welfare of Germany and the peace of Europe are likely to depend. The Berliner Tageblatt expresses the general opinion of foreign countries when it says that the revolution of Nov. 9, 1918, was not a spiritual upheaval or a forcible assertion of new ideas, but merely "the collapse of the old system, "which had heaped mistakes upon "misdeeds, and was bound to col-"lapse the minute it lost the protec-"tion of bayonets."

The rule of the Hohenzollerns broke down because it had failed—failed to win the war and failed to maintain the welfare of its subjects. But we have yet to discover what will take its place. EBERT and BAUER have the titles, but NOSKE and the army officers in the Eden Hotel seem to have the power, and the nominal republicanism of the Government is threatened from both sides, by a frank monarchist counter-revolution and by a communist rising. NOSKE'S machine guns and barbed wire in the streets of Berlin seem to offer some protection against the Reds, but it remains to be seen what NOSKE and his soldiers could or would do against the Whites.

To be sure, if we believe the official voice of the eloquent Mr. SCHEIDEMANN, speaking for the benefit of the outside world, there is no danger and no reason for danger—and particularly no danger from the Right. "Since "the adoption of the new Constitu-"tion no land on earth has a democ-"racy in such approximate perfec-"tion as the German Republic. The "people's will at last is the highest "law. The rule of Prussian Junkers "is forever past, but with the rule of "communists we will not make even "the most modest experiments."

Thus SCHEIDEMANN in a statement for publication, from which we should infer that the last Junker had broken his dishonored sword and gone into the oblivion of exile. So it is surprising to find that after giving out this picture of a perfect democracy SCHEIDEMANN on the same day makes a speech in which he urges reunion of the Majority Socialists with the Independents because "the danger from "the Left is not so menacing as that "from the Right." This friendly overture does not seem to have met with a very warm reception; at the same moment Landsberg was preaching a crusade by demonstrations of Spartacans and Junkers, and calling on his hearers to swear that they would carry the revolution "in Germany and elsewhere" to a victory not yet achieved.

The German Independent Socialists are fairly red, but as a party they have not bowed the knee to Spartacus. They do not seem very likely to do much to promote the revolution "else-"where." But they are for the moment the most honest party in Germany. The rest of the world could far better afford an Independent Socialist government in Germany than a frankly Junker government, without the check which nominal republicanism gives at present. And SCHEIDEMANN'S remarks about the danger from the Right are not so alarming, after all; indeed, his overture to the Left is one of the most encouraging political signs that has been seen in Germany of late. For SCHEIDEMANN has a genius for siding with the winners, and if he really thought the Junkers were going to run away with the Government he would be trying to make his peace with LUDENDORFF and renew the alliance to which he was so loyal while he thought the Kaiser was winning.

ARMISTICE DAY.

It will not escape the notice of patriotic Americans who desire their country always to be in the van of liberty, progress, and enlightenment that Marshal FOCH, the Commander in Chief of the allied armies; General JOHN J. PERSHING, who led the American Army, and President WILSON, all struck the same note in dwelling on the supreme lesson of the great war in their public utterances yesterday. Thus Marshal FOCH, the knightly soldier whom Americans admire and love, in a message to the American Legion in convention at Minneapolis, said to his "Valiant War Com-"panions":

"On this day, when for the first time we celebrate the anniversary of the armistice, I want to be with you to commemorate the past, and to tell you that, with your eyes ever raised toward the same ideal of justice and liberty, we must remain united, as we have been in the days of trial and the days of triumph.

General PERSHING, who could not remain silent on such an occasion, recognized with characteristic good sense the common service of the American soldiers and sailors and the people at home who stood behind them with all their resources and with indomitable resolution to see the war through to victory. And looking into the future General PERSHING said:

"These experiences safeguard the future of America and enable us to look forward confidently to the development of a stronger nationality and a deeper sense of the obligations that rest upon us.

From his seclusion on account of disability incurred in the line of duty President WILSON saw in the armistice that ended hostilities an opportunity for the world "to reconstruct its "shattered order and to work out in "peace a new and juster set of inter-"national relations." Armistice Day, he said, was an occasion for Americans to express their gratitude for victory, "both because of the thing from "which it has freed us and because "of the opportunity it has given "America to show her sympathy with "peace and justice in the councils of "nations." The war will have been fought in vain if America boasts only that she threw her sword into the balance and achieved victory for her allies. Germany will have won the war if America declines the opportunity to serve mankind by proving herself as great and efficient in peace as she was in the titanic struggle.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

The End of a Promising Career.

Among the victims of the ill-planned and ill-fated Gallipoli campaign was Lieutenant HENRY GWINN JEFFREYS MOSELEY, Royal Engineers, and the recent meeting of the Royal Society in London gave many British leaders in science an opportunity to express a deep regret—which was really severe criticism—that the British Government had so little understanding and appreciation of this young man's value to the nation that it found nothing better to do with him than to put him in the trench where he was shot dead by a Turkish sniper.

MOSELEY, young as he was—he died at 27—had already won attention in higher scientific circles by brilliantly successful investigation of the atom. His work was in a domain in which there could win little of popular interest, but those competent to judge it ascribe to it great importance and credit him with having made a large and distinct addition to human knowledge.

Professor E. RUTHERFORD, himself among the most distinguished searchers into these most intimate secrets of matter and its nature and structure, says that the result of MOSELEY'S investigations "are of far-reaching importance, both on the theoretical and experimental side, and are likely to stand out as one of the great landmarks in the growth of our knowledge of the atom." Other scientific men of like prominence speak in similar terms of the young man's work, and intimate a like resentment of what they evidently think was the Government's reprehensible negligence of inborance in wasting such a man on a task at which he was no better than companions at the front who had nothing of his special ability.

He Saw His Duty and Did It.

It is impossible not to share the sorrow of the British scientists over the loss made of their brilliant young colleague, but their criticism of the British Government is hardly fair. Its fault in this as in so many other respects came in the general category of ungreparedness, and was due to the fact that the whole nation was thinking rather than the Ministry or the Parliament, however blind, of which MOSELEY was a humble member. He was in Australia when the war began, sprang to leave for home at once as the best service he could give his country. He hurried home, volunteered, sought and obtained a commission, and as an officer in the Signal Corps soon found opportunity for proving the practical value of his scientific attainments.

It was no time then for continuing to study atoms—not for one who was a real man as well as a real student—and lamentable as was Lieutenant MOSELEY'S death, he served the cause of science better in the Gallipoli trenches than he would have done by remaining of his own choice safe at home in his laboratory. What seems the waste of his life is not to be charged to the military authorities of England, who probably never had heard of counting electrons, but to the Germans, who had created a situation so desperate that the place for any Englishman who could fight was in the field, no matter what he could do elsewhere.

Later in the war, as the world knows, and the Germans best of all, the Allies did call upon their men of science to use their scientific knowledge and skill, and Lieutenant MOSELEY himself died while orders for his return to England for work of another kind were on their way to him.

Soldiers Make a Mistake.

It is to be hoped that not in many towns are there as many returned soldiers with wrong ideas of what the country owes them as there seem to be in Port Chester. In that pleasant and prosperous suburb six men, with good war records ran for office at the recent election and five of them were defeated. Resenting these results, ex-service men of Port Chester to the number of 150 have petitioned the village Trustees to remove their names from the honor roll that has been in the square to which has been given the fine designation of "Liberty."
